Hackman: Former county home could make a great office building By Bob Fenske

editor@nhtrib.com

A Chickasaw County Board of Supervisor member once again on Monday reiterated his opposition to selling the Heritage property, but other supervisors said they want to see what the bids are before they make a final decision.

Bids for the Heritage building and adjacent property - excluding the farmland that the county currently rents out - are due by Friday, Aug. 19, and board members are set to discuss the possible sale at their meeting on Monday, Aug. 22.

Jake Hackman, who joined Tim Zoll last month in voting against a resolution to sell the property, said there are a number of reasons he believes the county should keep the building that for the previous nine years has been occupied by Inspiring Lives.

"I don't know why we're selling it," he said and then referred to the ambulance issue. "If you guys are going with EMS/EMA, why don't we just move those guys to the Community Services Building. It has bathrooms, it has showers, it has garage, it has the EOC. You can make living

Six cities are 'in' on publicly-owned EMS

By Bob Fenske

editor@nhtrib.com

Chickasaw County's ambulance saga continued this week, but here's what we know, as of Tuesday night when this edition of the Tribune went to press.

Six cities are "in." Two cities - Nashua and Alta Vista — are "out" when it comes to a potential publicly-owned ambulance service.

And now it's in the hands of the Board of Supervisors, who met Wednesday morning.

'We'll vote on the 28Es and if we have enough votes, then we'll get to work getting this off the ground," Board Chairman Matt Kuhn said Tuesday evening.

Asked if that meant purchasing equipment and possibly a building to house the new service, Kuhn said, "that and hiring a director. ... We know we have a lot of work to do. And I mean a lot."

During a meeting of the Ambulance Council last week, New Hampton, Ionia, Lawler and North Washington all said they would sign their 28E agreements while Fredericksburg Mayor Jimmy Mitchell said he had to take it back to his City Council one final time.

Ionia set to celebrate annual Fun Days this weekend

Ionia Fun Days will kick off its two-day run on Friday, and the committee putting together the event have packed a lot into the schedule for what they're billing as "Aloha from Ionia: Where Life is a Little Cooler."

Friday night's slate includes Big Foot's BBQ food truck, the crowning of Little Mister and Little Miss Ionia at 7:30 p.m. and the music of Country Line Drive as the band will play on Main Street from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Saturday's events will be highlighted by the Fun Days 2-Way Parade that begins at 11 a.m. and will be led by Grand Marshals Louie and Linda Hugh.

There will be a number of kid's activities, including a tractor pull, inflatables and water games after the parade. Fun Days will also include a Farmers Market, a bean bag tournament, the Show and Shine Car, Truck and Antique Tractor Show and the annual Fun Days softball tournament at the park.

The event will come to a close Saturday night when a hypnotist will put on a show for kids at 6:30 p.m. before the band Redline rocks Main Street from 8:30 p.m. to midnight.

Little Brown Church to hold annual Marriage Reunion Sunday

The Little Brown Church in the Vale will hold its 69th annual Marriage Reunion and Vow Renewal on Sunday, Aug. 7 at the church located just to the east of Nashua.

The event will begin with registration at 9 a.m., the "Sing-A-Long" at 10 a.m. and the 10:30 a.m. worship service that will include the vow renewal. Lunch and entertainment on the church grounds will follow.

The event is not only open to those who were married at the historic church, where more than 75,000 marriages have been performed, but to all married couples.

To let church officials know you are coming and/or to make a lunch reservation, please email info@littlebrownchurch.org or call 641-435-2027.

Madison Kolbet talks with a portion of the crowd gathered to hear her first single, "Remember When," on Friday evening in Jerico.

Songwriter debuts 'first ever single'

New Hampton alum overcomes nerves to deliver live performance of 'Remember When'

By DOROTHY HUBER dorhubernews@gmail.com

If Madison Kolbet learned anything Friday night, it was how to handle hecklers.

Now these hecklers, to be fair, were of the friendly type, as friends and relatives of Madison, friends of her parents - Brady and Andrea - and friends of her grandparents gathered in Jerico for her "release party."

That was the day Kolbet released her "first ever single" Remember When, which she co-wrote with Jill Miller of Sioux City.

She admitted it was only her second time in front of an audience, though she handled the crowd - including someone who thought she needed to sing Free Bird – with grace and humor.

The 2020 graduate of New Hampton has been interested in songwriting since she was small. "I still have songs I wrote when I was little – they're all super-bad – and when I was in the eighth grade I pretended I had to go to the bathroom because I had a song idea in my head and wanted to write it down."

During high school Kolbet said she gravitated more toward writing than singing, and since she was a senior during the COVID school shutdown, she joined an organization geared toward teaching the basics of writing songs.

"That really helped me a lot," she said. "This song was written over Zoom on a shared document. I am really glad to be able to share it with people tonight because it means a lot to me.'

The song is about wanting to live in Grandpa's day, "when people meant every word they'd say and you could hear the truth on the news."

After Kolbet made the video, she worked up enough nerve to post it on Facebook. "I've never posted anything before, but I went out on a limb, and it ended up having 1,000 views."

Wish comes true for young Alta Vista boy

Leisure Time owner and Make-A-Wish Foundation join forces to give Brady Einck a cool golf cart Brady Einck (above) shows off his amazement after receiving a golf cart, thanks to the joint efforts by the Make-A-Wish Foundation and LeisureTime Golf Cars, and Make a Wish's Angie Edgington and LeisureTime owners Leslie and Nick Noehl (below pose with the Einck family and friends who were part of the granting ceremony held in rural Alta Vista last week.

By Kelly Terpstra sports@nhtrib.com

A cool summer breeze on a cruise around town – it doesn't get any better than that.

Don't forget to roll the windows all the way down.

A trip to any particular destination is one of Brady Einck's favorite things to do with his family.

The energetic seven-year-old Alta Vista youngster will have no problem in touching and feeling the wind whipping through his fingertips after his wish was granted last week.

Some 10 miles or so north of New Hampton, on a gravel road that leads passersby to the Einck's two-acre homestead – Nick and Leslie Noehl pulled their trailer into the driveway last Thursday evening with a present that would make any boy light up with excitement.

This gift had four wheels and engine. Einck received a golf cart courtesy of the New Hampton family-owned and operated business run by the Noehls – LeisureTime Golf Cars. The local Make-A-Wish Foundation formed a union with LeisureTime – one of the leading retailers of golf cars in Iowa. The Make-A-Wish Foundation is a non-profit organization that helps families of children with critical illnesses such as Brady's.

"It's goose-bumpy to be able to do this for families that are struggling with something like this," said Nick "IT'S GOOSE-BUMPY TO BE ABLE TO DO THIS FOR FAMI-LIES ... TO BE ABLE TO PUT A SMILE LIKE THAT ON HIS FACE IS PRETTY COOL."

- LeisureTime Golf Cars owner Nick Noehl

Noehl. "To be able to put a smile like that on his face is pretty cool."

That grin on Brady's face could have lit up any room after Nick backed down the blue golf cart onto the lawn of the Einck's property and fired up the mode of transportation that will help Brady and his family enjoy trips near and far – maybe even to nearby Alta Vista.

That's where Brady donned a cape and was named the official "kid captain" of AV Days this summer. He rode on a fire truck in the parade with his folks and sister Amelia.

"When we're in town and we say windows are open.' He just goes crazy," said Brady's mother Katie Einck. "He giggles and laughs. He waves out the window to everybody that's a stranger."

Brady – who is dealing with an incurable and rare genetic nervous system disorder called metachromatic leukodystrophy – will benefit

The importance of prayer God is listening and there's no right or wrong way to pray to Him

The gospel text about Jesus teaching the disciples about prayer has always been intriguing to me – possibly because I'm never sure that I know how to pray correctly.

I remember when I was young, my mom told be to just talk to God the way I talk to other people. That advice didn't seem especially helpful at the time, as being only in the third grade, it seemed like I was always just asking for things or that things go right in my life.

My Sunday School teacher told the class one day as we were leaving that she would pray for us in the week ahead. This got me to thinking about the Bible verse we had talked about during class ... "Let each of you look not to your own interests, but to the interests of others." ~ Philippians 2:4.

My prayers changed that day to include other people, their problems, and their challenges. I believe this is the way Jesus meant us to pray and I have continued in this way. Oh sure, I pray for myself, too, but more often I pray for others.

These times during the COVID pandemic has brought more people in the world to prayer – including holding someone else in prayer.

Praying for another person establishes a sacred trust between the prayer and the one being prayed for.

Taking note of God's presence while in prayer for them, and visualizing them receiving the prayer, God's power going into them, and feeling blessed by the prayer.

I'm certainly not perfect in my prayers, but I know my prayers don't have to be fancy. Your prayers don't have to be fancy, either. It doesn't matter when we pray. God just wants us to ask our questions and

529 plans: Underused but valuable

In just a few weeks, students will be heading off to college - and parents will be getting out their checkbooks. Without a college-bound student in your home right now, you might not be thinking much about tuition and other higher education expenses, but if you have young children, these costs may eventually be of concern - so how should you prepare for them?

It's never too soon to start saving and investing. Unfortunately, many people think that they have a lot of "catching up" to do. In fact, nearly half of Americans say they don't feel like they're saving enough to cover future education expenses, according to a 2022 survey conducted by financial services firm Edward Jones with Morning Consult, a global research company.

Of course, it's not always easy to set aside money for college when you're already dealing with the high cost of living, and, at the same time, trying to save and invest for retirement. Still, even if you can only devote relatively modest amounts for your children's education, these contributions can add up over time. But where should you put your money?

Personal savings accounts are the top vehicle Americans are using for their education funding strategies, according to the Edward Jones/Morning Consult survey. But there are other options, one of which is a 529 plan, which may offer more attractive features, including the following • Possible tax benefits – If you invest in a 529 education savings plan, your earnings can grow federally income tax-free, provided the money is used for qualified education expenses. (Withdrawals not used for these expenses will generally incur taxes and penalties on investment earnings.) If you invest in your own state's 529 plan, you may receive state tax benefits, too, depending on the state.Flexibility in naming the beneficiary - As the owner of the 529 plan, you can name anyone you want as the beneficiary. You can also change the beneficiary. If your eldest child foregoes college, you can name a younger sibling or another eligible relative.

• Support for non-college programs - Even if your children don't want to go to college, it doesn't mean they're uninterested in any type of postsecondary education or training. And a 529 plan can pay for qualified expenses at trade or vocational schools, including apprenticeship programs registered with the U.S. Department of Labor.

• Payment of student loans - A 529 plan can help pay off federal or private student loans, within limits.

Keep in mind that state-bystate tax treatment varies for different uses of 529 plans, so you'll want to consult with your tax professional before putting a plan in place.

Despite these and other benefits, 529 plans are greatly under-utilized. Only about 40% of Americans even recognize the 529 plan as an education savings tool, and only 13% are actually using it, again according to the Edward Jones/ Morning Consult study.

But as the cost of college and other postsecondary programs continues to rise, it will become even more important for parents to find effective ways to save for their children's future education expenses. So, consider how a 529 plan can help you and your family. And the sooner you get started, the better.

New Hampton Parks and Recreation officials are doing everything they can to keep the city's pool open as long as possible, but for now, the lack of lifeguards means the pool is only guaranteed to be open through next Thursday.

And it won't be open every day, either, over the course of the next week.

"We're trying to be as creative as we can," Parks and Rec Program Manager Tara Hackman said, "but obviously, we have to have lifeguards to be open and as we have our college kids heading back and our high school kids involved in sports, it's getting tough. But we're definitely working on it."

Kenneth Harada, 86

Kenneth Harada, age 86 of Fredericksburg, died Wednesday, July 27, 2022, at his home.

A Memorial Service was held at 11 a.m. Wednesday, Aug. 3, 2022, at The United Methodist Church in Fredericksburg with the Rev. Roberta Robbins presiding.

Friends greeted the family from 4 to 7 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 2, 2022, at Hugeback-Johnson Funeral Home & Crematory in Fredericksburg. Visitation continued an hour prior to the service at the church on Wednesday.

Ken was born on New Year's Day in 1936 to Yoshio and Irene (Tanaka) Harada in Kapaa, Kauai, Hawaii, and grew up on the island.

After graduating from high school in 1954, he followed a family member to Drake University in Des Moines, majoring in education and finding that he loved the seasons Iowa had to offer. He received his degree from Drake in the spring of 1959 and accepted a job offer from Fredericksburg Community Schools.

For 37 years, Ken taught science and social studies, touching the lives of thousands of students over the years. Many will tell you that "H" was their favorite teacher because of his smile and his quick wit. Ken had a knack for engaging his students, and many remember that he was the teacher who could imagine what they could be.

A year after beginning his teaching career, he met firstyear home economics and French teacher named Carolyn Wagamon, and the two hit it off almost immediately. The couple was married on Oct. 20, 1961, at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Waverly, beginning a wonderful union for almost 61 years.

Ken Harada

Ken and Carolyn had two children, Susan and John, who understood Ken's time was the greatest gift he could give to them. He and his daughter enjoyed golfing together and he coached her in softball. Ken and his son enjoyed fishing together, and the entire family cherishes the vacations they took to places like Hawaii, Europe, and California.

After retiring from teaching, Ken and Carolyn traveled extensively. They loved taking cruises and visited every continent but Antarctica during their travels, snowbirding in California every winter, and they spent as much time as possible with their four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

As good of a father as Ken was, he was an exceptional grandfather. He and his wife continued their "teaching careers" with them and loved attending their sports and school events. Ken, quite simply, was a loving, spoiling grandfather and great-grandfather.

Ken believed in giving back to his community, and he was generous with his time and talents. He was a member of the United Methodist Church, Plum Creek Golf Course, FHS Teachers' Association, and the Fredericksburg Lions Club. He enjoyed playing 500 and poker in his card clubs, and he also served on the Fredericksburg City Council for a number of vears.

He was an avid gardener, and Ken and his wife froze and canned much of his harvest. His iams and jellies were the best, too. Ken also loved to trout fish in the Decorah area, and the family joke is that Ken knew the schedule of the hatchery truck and would follow it to the trout stream.

Ken probably would think this obituary is too long, but he lived a truly remarkable life. One of his former students wrote that "I still tell my kids stories of Mr. Harada. He was such an awesome teacher and person."

Indeed, he was, and we will dearly miss him.

Ken is survived by his wife, Carolyn, of Fredericksburg; his two children, Susan (Joe Fagundes) Bentley of Cerritos, California, and John (Jodi) Harada of Waukee; four grandchildren, Rachel Harada, Jordan (Haley Bergman) Bentley, Natalie (Daniel) Barnett and Andrew Harada; two great-grandchildren, Harlow Bentley and Iris Barnett; and one sister, Joyce (Tommy) Hayashi of Torrance, California and many relatives.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Yoshio and Irene Harada; daughter, Sallie Ann Harada in infancy; sister and brother-in-law, Marion and Roy Mikami; sister-in-law and husband, Boots and Gavlen Hafar; parents-in-law, Nick and Irene Wagamon; son-in-law, Larry Bentley; aunts, uncles, and cousins.

Memorials donated to the Harada family will be directed to the Fredericksburg United Methodist Church and the American Kidney Fund.

also enjoyed gardening.

He was a great father but an even better grandpa to his four grandchildren. He loved spending time with them, and he loved spoiling them.

A fierce friend and devoted father/grandfather, Joe always put others before himself and was the life of the party. He will be remembered as a man who had a quick wit, playful sense of humor, a cheerful laugh, and a contagious smile, and he will be dearly missed by all those who were lucky enough to know him.

Joe is survived by his wife Branda Arens of Fredericksburg; two daughters, Emily age of 14 – for 20 years before (Adam) Heidinger of Mt. Vernon, South Dakota, and Samantha (Travis) Holm of Tripoli; four sons, Josh (Sarah) Arens of Des Moines, Hunter (Molly) Arens of Waterloo, Lane (Alyssa) Arens grandchildren with one on the way, Lily Holm, Lucy Holm, Lavonne Heidinger, Sawyer er, Marjorie Arens of Lawler; one brother, Lou (Kristi) Arens of Cape Carol, Florida: four sisters, Sandy (Bill) Hall of Medford, Wisconsin, Susie (Mark) Stagg of Cottage Grove, Minnesota, Jean (Jeff) Wick of Elgin, Minnesota, and Amy Arens of Lawler; father-in-law, Clyde Hayen of New Hampton; and mother-in-law, Barb Havlik of New Hampton. He was preceded in death by his wife, Diane Arens in 2005; father, Eugene Arens in 2002; one sister, Alice Arens in 2009; mother-in-law, Cheryl Hayen in 2020; and father-in-law Jim Home & Crematory in New Hampton has been entrusted with Joe's arrangements. Online condolences for Joe's family may be left at hugebackfuneralhome.com.

Joe was born on Nov. 1, 1959, in New Hampton, the son of Eugene and Marjorie (Elenz) Arens, and grew up on the family farm with his six siblings. At an early age, he found a passion for the land and farming, and it remained with him for the rest of his life.

He was confirmed at Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church and attended Turkey Valley Schools, where he played trombone in the band, wrestled, and was a member of the Class of 1978.

Joe was one of the hardest-working guys you could find; for most of his life, he worked two jobs - farming the family homestead and raising cattle and pigs while also working for Don Kurtenbach time outdoors farming, huntat CASH Inc. - starting at the ing, fishing, and camping. He Havlik in 2003.

Hugeback-Johnson Funeral accepting a position at TriMark.

But as hard as Joe worked, he really made his mark in life with his family.

He was united in marriage with Diane Havlik Arens on Sept. 12, 1987. They had three of Fredericksburg, and Lewis children - Emily, Samantha, Arens of Fredericksburg; four and Joshua. After Diane's passing, Joe's family was joined with Branda Hayen-Arens and Joe gained three sons - Hunter, Heidinger, Baby H; moth-Lane, and Lewey.

He never missed a sporting event of his six children, and he loved spending time with them. He was a giver who taught them the value of hard work and always being there for others. When Joe was employed by the Kurtenbachs, he did more than just work for them, he was like a member of the family and taught Don's kids how to drive.

Joe planted deep roots in Northeast Iowa, where he lived his entire life raising his family and tending to the land and animals. He spent much of his immensely from the golf cart specifically designed for him through the work of the Noehls – who purchased LeisureTime Golf Cars in 2018.

"He likes to be outside," said Neil Einck, Brady's father. "He's going to lose some of his mobility, so this is a way to keep him outside and active and playing, basically.'

Neil said there has been a lot of support for his family from the New Hampton school district and local 4-H group – just to name a few from the community that have wanted to help out the Eincks.

The golf cart was a pre-owned vehicle that was built to the specifications of the Eincks. LeisureTime donated the labor and the cost of the golf cart is less than what it would be on the retail market.

"We did have a chassis to build this. Everything on the vehicle is brand new wheels, seat, body, audio system, turn signals," said Nick Noehl.

The golf cart is also a practical and tangible way for Brady to get around and enjoy the sights and sounds of an Iowa summer – or spring or fall for that matter.

"We were talking about something that would be fun that you could go for rides in," said Katie. "He has a hard time getting around physically. It's obviously more practical for him to go for a little ride than to go for a walk or a bike ride - or things like that, that other seven-year olds can do."

As the seasons change – so does Brady's ability to maneuver around in a world that is full of obstacles, especially for a child just starting to explore and understand his surroundings.

Time, especially in the here and now is of the essence for Brady and his family. They don't know what the future holds for their lively and spirited sevenyear-old. So they grab on to the present and hope for the best in a fight against a disease that can slowly take away eyesight, hearing and the ability to walk in those that are inflicted with the genetic condition.

"We put him in a stroller a lot, so if we have a golf cart we can take him to parades and little town festivals that he worldwide that make up the Make-Alikes. We'll have a way of transporting him without wearing him out or wearspend as much time with him as we can.'

Make-A-Wish volunteer Angie Edgington – who made the trip over to the Einck's home on Thursday – said she granted another wish just the day before to an 18-year old girl that will go on a trip to Hawaii.

Hope – above all else – is perhaps one of the most important aspects that the Make-A-Wish Foundation grants children of all ages in their fight against illnesses that can be unrelenting.

"So give the child hope – give the family hope, give them the strength to get through any challenges that they're facing," said an emotional Edgington, who also brought Brady some of his favorite toys that he could play with.

Wish Foundation.

A wish is granted every 33 minutes granted over 330,000 wishes to children in the U.S.

Edgington said there have been many wishes that have been put on hold because of COVID-19 – which has limited travel. Currently, over 370 eligible children are waiting to receive their wish.

"It was definitely a priority to work quickly. I could tell that was a huge priority for Make-A-Wish that wishes they could grant quickly that wouldn't get delayed," said Katie.

Brady's wish being granted first got off the ground after social workers and physical therapists with the University of Iowa Children's Hospital referred the Einck's to the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

There are over 34,000 volunteers time LeisureTime Golf Cars has helped the window," smiled Katie.

out a family through the Make-A-Wish Foundation. The business that has been in operation in New Hampton since ing everybody out, too," said Neil. "We on average and the organization has 1987 delivered a golf cart to a young man in St. Ansgar about a year back and just three weeks ago to another boy in Dyersville.

"It's been a really fun partnership. It's cool when somebody comes in and picks one out for themselves, but it's really neat when we get to do this for somebody else," said Leslie Noehl.

No word on what the Einck family is planning on doing if their rambunctious and curious son decides to test the waters and their patience by being, well, a seven-year-old. There is no amount of rolling the windows up that can probably contain Brady's enthusiasm and zest for life.

"He loves having the windows down a lot. We have to use the child locks Leslie Noehl said this is the third because he'll toss sippy cups or toys out

Wartburg gallery to hold art contest

The Waldemar A. Schmidt Art Gallery on the Wartburg College campus is partnering with the Wartburg Community Symphony to hold an art contest for area creators.

The Music Takes Flight Art Competition will require each artist to create a suite of four pieces based on Ottorino Respighi's "The Birds." Each submission must include one piece for each of the four birds depicted within the music a dove, hen, nightingale and cuckoo. The top three suites of work will be projected digitally during the symphony's "Music Takes Flight" concert on Feb. 18.

The two-dimensional pieces must be submitted in person on the Wartburg College campus on Dec. 12 or 13. Those who are unable to get to campus should contact Briana Borchert, gallery director, at gallerydirector@wartburg.edu. Cash prizes ranging from $125 to $250 will be awarded to the top three artists.

Nashua looks toward AMR, Charles City for ambulance

Mayor: AMR says it will provide service to the city as long as Nashua can 'work it out with Charles City and Floyd'

By Kelly Terpstra sports@nhtrib.com

On paper, the deal looks pretty good.

It's some of the best news the Nashua City Council has heard in quite some time.

In what could potentially be a significant development concerning the town of Nashua's quest to obtain reliable ambulance service, city officials have been in contact with Charles City and AMR (American Medical Response) about possibly filling a void in service once the town of 1,500 sees its current EMS contract run out at the end of the vear.

That new information was gleaned from a regular Nashua City Council meeting that was held on Monday.

While talks and negotiations are essentially in the preliminary stages, Nashua Mayor Alex Anthofer said he has asked Charles City and AMR for a six month-contract for approximately $15,000 to $20,000 that would start ambulance service on Jan. 1, 2023 and run through June 30 of that year.

"We had asked for six months to follow along with Charles City," said Anthofer. "AMR said yes, as long as we can talk with and work it out with Charles City and Floyd. AMR said it would work. We just have to have it approved by them.

That EMS is run by the budget that could increase or decrease Waverly Health Center and services depending on which towns commit to Butler and Bremer counties.

"People that I've talked to or that Now Nashua is exploring other have talked to me about this in the community - nothing's changed my mind yet," said Dean.

year and is currently being provided by Chickasaw Ambulance Service, a private entity run by Jeremy McGrath. He has stated he has no interest in providing ambulance service for the county after that date.

Nashua's main stumbling block in accepting the 28E Agreement is money. Nashua's portion of a per-capita pie that each town would have to pay into is over $158,000. Per the rough draft, the contract is for five years and there are numerous clauses in the contract that are enacted should cities opt out of the deal after signing on the dotted line.

Dean said there were 92 calls for service last year that had a Nashua address through the current service although it wasn't determined how many of those were in the city limits or in rural areas.

That breakdown on cost per call on a monthly basis is $13,200 according to Dean. The cost per call would be $1,700.

John Ott, Nashua's City Clerk, has been in contact with Charles City Administrator Steve Diers about having AMR potentially cover the Nashua City limits and providing EMS support.

"He seemed very on board with being able to help the city of Nashua out," said Ott about his talks with Diers. "Again, that's all very preliminary.

Ott said Charles City and Floyd County work with AMR on a contract where the price is already fixed.

"From the discussions that I've had, what AMR is saying is they have enough staffing and stuff that they can cover us," said Ott. "We would basically be subsidizing Charles City and Floyd County – so whatever they would want to charge us to offset that cost.

Of course any contract signed would require pen and paper and a thorough review, not to mention approval from Council members.

Nashua City Attorney David Skilton made sure everyone in attendance in the Council Chambers understood that point.

"They seemed receptive. It's a matter of cost. Before anything is really talked about – it has to be in writing for Council to review," said Skilton. As the Council knows, we have to be concerned with cost and saving money when we can. We're that tight.'

At prior meetings, Nashua City Council members have stated that along with that $158,000 and the current contract for law enforcement service with Chickasaw County that total is two-thirds of the city of Nashua's general fund.

"We're basically trying to get us something to cover the area for six more months until we can have something in line and help offset our budget that we already have set for this fiscal year," said Anthofer about the potential union with Charles City and AMR.

Kuhn says county can have service ready by 2023

AMBULANCE: FROM 1

On Monday night, Fredericksburg leaders voted to be a part of the publicly-owned service. That same night, the Nashua City Council once again opposed the move and said it would look elsewhere for ambulance service on Jan. 1, when the Ambulance Council's current contract with Chickasaw Ambulance Service begins.

But Kuhn said that Bassett, the county's smallest city, appeared to be on the verge of being a part of the new county-owned service. Although Bassett did not deliver a signed 28E agreement by Kuhn's deadline of 4 p.m. on Tuesday, he said he told that town's mayor, Jim Ashley, that if the city had the agreement to the county by the time it met Wednesday morning, he felt the county would accept it.

"I know I'm going to get grief about it," Kuhn said Tuesday, "but Bassett couldn't meet until tonight because Jim had another meeting."

That would leave just two cities out of the mix. Nashua officials have said they wouldn't join the service without having an ambulance stationed in the city while Alta Vista leaders have decided to partner with an ambulance that will be based out of the small Howard County city of Elma.

During a meeting on Monday night, the New Hampton City Council unanimously approved signing the 28E, and after the vote was taken, Mayor Bobby Schwickerath echoed Kuhn's thoughts.

"Now, the real work begins," Schwickerath said. "We've got a lot to do in a short amount of time.'

Kuhn was asked Tuesday if the county and the cities on board had enough time to get a service up and running by the beginning of the 2023? "Yes, we do," he said. "It's not going to be easy, but we can get this accomplished."

Supervisors disagree when it comes to selling the Heritage property

still think we are jumping the gun here by selling that building.<sup>2</sup>

But Supervisor Jason Byrne countered, saying the board still has the right to keep the building.

"That's why we have the right to reject all bids," Byrne said.

Zoll, meanwhile, even suggested putting a county-owned ambulance service at the Heritage.

"It's 30 seconds to get on the interstate [Highway 63] to go down to 346 and go to Nashua or Fredericksburg,' he said. "Their chute time would be less than a minute.'

Board Chairman Matt Kuhn expressed his frustration with Hackman.

"Why did you bring up selling this then," Kuhn said, "if you're saying we should keep the building?'

Hackman responded quickly and in November or December – but from the building so prospective buyers could tour the facility.

And Hackman said he heard an oftheard refrain.

"I heard from 10 of those people who toured it," he said, "why are we selling it? ... It might take an extra two-stall garage [at the Community Services Building], you know, to house the Rescue Squad, if need be."

He also suggested that the Heritage could be the "911 dispatch center, that could be the new jail.'

Kuhn said he understood that Hackman had every right to change his mind about the property but admitted that "it's just frustrating.'

"Do we listen to our taxpayers, Hackman said, "or do we listen to you, Jason, Steve or Tim?'

In the end, board members didn't take any action and will continue to accept bids on the building for the next

Topping the list is a new wastewater treatment plant that the city is being mandated to build by 2037 and could cost up to $25 million.

During Monday's meeting, Mai expressed disappointment that not all the department heads submitted items to the council, although City Clerk Karen Clemens pointed out that some of those departments have their own autonomous boards.

City Council members said they will use the plan as they prepare budgets for future years.

"It's about taking care of the things we need to take care of," McDonald said. "This is a good starting point, a good reference point for us as council members.'

Rochford's training leads to national heptathlon title

as she excels in basketball and volleyball as well.

So it goes without saying that Rochford is also considered one of the more talented young athletes in her track and field age group in the entire nation after she placed eighth in the heptathlon at the prestigious Nike Outdoor Nationals in Eugene, Oregon just last month.

Rochford and her family made the trek out to Greensboro, N.C. again this past weekend to take another crack at the heptathlon.

And the results were, well, absolutely amazing.

Rochford flew back home with her parents this past Monday as a national champion as she won the heptathlon in her age bracket (17-18 years of age) at the AAU Junior Olympic Games.

Her grandpa "Jer" must have smiling down on Rochford somewhere after her terrific performance in seven different events – 100 hurdles, 200 dash, 800 run, high jump, long jump, shot put and javelin.

"You could feel him there. You just knew the state had a special place. He's always watching me. It was extra special," said Rochford.

Carlee shattered her previous personal-best point total in the heptathlon with 4,735 points – plenty of cushion to outlast Messiah Bemis of Fayetteville, spot in the standings amongst 10th place.

Rochford won the high jump with a leap of 5-7 - tying her school-record mark at New Hampton. She also worked her way to a third-place finish in the long jump on Sunday after two as athletic achievements are less-than impressive leaps to concerned for Rochford - who start out the day's festivities in shines on the big stage in multithe sand pit. Those two jumps were around 16-6, she said.

"I hadn't jumped that short light," said Rochford. all season," said Rochford who finished off the heptathlon on grandpa, who was also a coach Sunday with that event, the javelin and 800.

Then Rochford ripped off a New Hampton High School in Arkansas (4,505) for the top 17-5.25 in the long jump to solid- 1962. ifv her spot in the overall standalmost 70 competitors. Josie ings. Saturday saw Carlee climb to the top of the leaderboard with PRs in the shot put (33-3.75) and javelin (106-11). Her throw in the shot put was over four numerous school records in feet longer than her best toss in Oregon. Those clutch efforts 800 run. No matter, as she ran were good for fourth place in Rochford placed seventh in the 100 hurdles with a 15.31 clip and wound up 15th overall in the open 200 dash in a time of 26.91.

Russler's goal is to lead Chickasaws to state tourney RUSSLER: FROM 16

"All-conference, that's not necessarily easy to do - especially with the conference we're in," said NH head coach Tate Hofmeister. "Then you have all-district. We were in a district with a lot of good teams. They were some teams that had three or four players make all-district. Then you get to all-state and that's even harder to do."

Russler bashed the softball in 2022 for the Chickasaws as she was one of northern Iowa's most explosive hitters. She crushed four home runs and knocked in 28 runs. She also hit to a batting clip of .420 and scored 26 runs. Of Russler's 34 hits - almost half, or 15 of them, were extra-base hits.

"She can do it all when it comes to softball. She can hit. She can field. If you can do both things at a high level you're going to get rewarded for it when it comes to making all-conference, all-district and all-state," Hofmeister added.

Russler also stepped up to the plate, so to speak, and filled a void at first base that Hofmeister needed this summer. She committed just three errors at that infield corner position in 119 total chances.

"I thought it was pretty smooth. We needed somebody at first," said Russler. "I'm cool with playing both. I really enjoyed first base. You get more action. You're a big part of the field."

Russler made third-team all-state last year as a sophomore and roamed around in the center field making plays for the Chickasaws. That's something she still does for her travel squad - the Eastern Iowa Barracudas.

One of the reasons Russler gets lauded for her efforts is the time she puts in to make herself better.

"She puts in the work in the offseason. She deserved everything she got this year. To do that two years in a row - that's something very special," said Hofmeister.

New Hampton played to a 9-16 mark this summer. That's a record Hofmeister and Russler are looking to improve on.

"Our season didn't go the way we wanted to, but we had some good wins. It was definitely a season of experience and learning, especially with a new ' said Russler. bach, ^ Russler feels the time is now to make a serious run toward the top of the Northeast Iowa Conference standings and a potential state berth in Fort Dodge – which Russler said is her ultimate goal. "We're a really young team. I think we have a lot of potential. I feel like we need to start poppin' it into gear. Some of us only have one year left. We might as well make some noise while we're at it," said Russler. Russler is a terrific multisport star at New Hampton. She ran at the state cross country meet as sophomore in 2020 and qualified for the girls state wrestling tournament last winter. Those individual accolades are great, but Hofmeister also sees a team-first mindset from Russler that he likes. "She's definitely a person that puts the team up there, too," said Hofmeister. "She wants to be out there winning - helping the team in any possible way she can." Russler said her softball travel squad just started practicing this week. She plays alongside Bryar Duwe of Decorah on that team based out of West Liberty. "She's a good teammate. She's more so the type of person to lead by example – which is fine," said Hofmeister. "I don't how she was last year, but with this season I also saw her do a very good job of being a vocal leader." Everywhere the Chickasaw all-stater goes, she wants to bring the noise. That includes creating good vibes in the dugout with perhaps a cowboy hat, goofy glasses or just words of encouragement for a fellow teammate. "Energy is a big thing," said Russler. "It's all how your approach and attitude is."

Settle of Kelso, Washington finished third overall (4,375).

"I've been training all summer. To see the outcome was definitely important to me, but to know my training paid off was really huge," said Rochford.

Coincidentally, Rochford's toughest event and the only undertaking over the weekend she didn't improve on since her last "hep" showing in the Pacific Northwest was that open a respectable 2:33 – good for each event.

watched me run three years ago "One of my goals was to be and we buried him two years ago. This weekend was extra special."

> The apple doesn't fall far from the tree in the Rochford athletic bloodline. Jerry is one member of a group that still holds the 4x880-vard relay record at NHHS. Carlee holds Chickasaw track and field lore.

New Hampton mayor proud of city employees, residents

RAGBRAI : FROM 1

Schwickerath, simply ecstatic. "To be honest, the best part of my day was I stood at Chestnut and Main and multiple, multiple times I heard comments like 'what a beautiful town' and 'this is our favorite pass-through city so far," Schwickerath said. "We just heard so many positive comments from so many riders. It was so much fun showing off our city."

New Hampton, in a word, delivered – everything from grilled peanut butter-and-jelly to beer to pickleball to beer (of course) to smiles all around. It was, in short, a blast.

THEY MAY NOT have known it, but the kids from Little Sprouts Daycare standing at the corner of Locust and Main were being recruited. That's where Cheryl Reardon, the chief of the human resources office at the University of Iowa, stood and handed out little Hawkeye buttons. For six years, Reardon and her fellow University of Iowa employees have ridden RAGBRAI, and her job comes down to two thing: Have fun and be an ambassador for her university.

"It's fun, and honestly," she said with a mischievous smile, "we're trying to recruit new kids here.<sup>3</sup>

So does she get grief from Iowa State fans over the seven-day ride?

"A little bit, but there are Hawkeye fans everywhere and the Cyclones are fantastic as well," she said. "We're blessed to have great universities in this state."

MARSHALL ZEIEN TOOK the heat and delivered some amazing food. The New Hampton High School FFA president spent hours on the griddle cooking up those tasty grilled PB&Js.

"Hey, it's getting me ready for next week's heat and football," he said with a pass-through town is this: The party a laugh.

RAGBRAI may involve a lot of bike riding, but if one bikes hundreds of miles in a week, one will have a cavernous appetite.

God only knows how many PB&Js the New Hampton FFA sold Friday, but New Hampton Parks and Recreation's Tara Hackman knows that the folks working the fundraiser for the Inclusive Park sold more than 1,200 breakfast burritos. And Hackman showed she's quick on her feet, too. Running out of supplies, save for tons of sausages, she suggested selling "Philly" sausage sandwiches.

You cook it, you fry it, you bake it, they'll eat it.

Just ask Barnes and her friends. Ivy Okoye and Tia Moore, who ate some things they never heard of before embarking on their first RAGBRAI.

"I had a fried banana sundae," Okoye said while Moore said she had never had a Scotcharoo before biting into one in Mason City.

"I've never heard of them, we don't have them back east," she said. "My God, I'm glad I heard of them now."

AND THEN THERE were Justin Watkins and his pals from Illinois, who ride RAGBRAI in Speedo swimsuits.

"Well, we pretty much swim every day we can," he said, "and we got tired of swimming in [biking attire]. So someone suggested swimsuits. And then someone else suggested Speedos. ... For the most part, we get positive comments, but there's a few people we get some extreme comments from."

He laughed and said sunscreen and a flag he wears around his shoulders keep him from frying.

And, oh yeah, he loves RAGBRAI. "I like the people, I love the small towns and the welcome you get," he said. "It's perfect."

THE FUNNY THING about being only last for a few hours.

But months of planning and a full day of work - actually way more than a full day — is part of the process.

The city of New Hampton had "all hands on deck," but in Schwickerath's mind, all that planning and all that work for a few hours of RAGBRAI was worth it. "I did try to catch as many city employees as possible," he said, "because I'm so proud of them, not just the employees but all our residents who pulled together. It was amazing, and it flowed seamlessly. I'm proud of our community beyond belief because it was a great day."

It's a winning day in Lawler

dorhubernews@gmail.com

Elmer Fudd greeted RAGBRAI riders entering Lawler, and as they left the town that usually sports a population of around 400 he was there again to implore the multitude to "ride carefully.'

The archway signs with the cartoon character were a creation of Lawler's Joe Langreck, who also came up with the idea of a "Get Looney in Lawler" theme for the event, the 49th annual Des Moines Register bike ride. That explains the giant cat and yellow canary that roamed among the riders, the bunny, pig and chicken.

For those readers that aren't old enough to remember those icons of the past, Sylvester, Bugs Bunny, Tweety Bird, Porky Pig and Foghorn Leghorn were in costume for a good cause.

A $5 donation was suggested for riders to pose with the Looney Tunes crew, with the money to go to the Sons of American Legion of Lawler, which in turn supports a number of great causes.

"I bet I took one thousand photos," said Chelsea Busta, who played Sylvester. "Not everyone donated money, but it was still cool, when everyone saw us, they all smiled." Busta took the opportunity to "mess with" her grandpa — Don Kurtenbach — who played along, even though he didn't realize it was his granddaughter under all that fur.

Deb Speltz arrived in town at 7 a.m. and was marketing Irish Fest t-shirts during the day. By late afternoon riders were still filtering out of town, though not many remained.

"These are such nice people that come through town, one rider told us 'your town does this right' and we appreciate comments like that so much," said Speltz." Of course, the people of Lawler are pretty nice themselves. "Mount Carmel ran out of bars and cookies and a lady came through and asked 'do you have anything?' She was really hungry so I gave her my scotcharoo bar and she gave me a hug. And I'll lose weight!" Win-win.

Lawler again handed out permanent markers for riders to sign their names, on the same wall some of them signed when the ride went through the town in 2017. 'That's kind of a cool memory, signing that board," said Mark Halverson of Eagle Grove. He was on the very first ride across Iowa. The year was 1973 and he was 16.

"I think the numbers of that first ride were under 300, then the second year was around 350 - that one they called SAGBRAI since it was the second annual great bike ride across Iowa. But they wanted to get the Register's name in there, and especially before the fourth annual ride!"

Halverson mentioned that during his 23 completed rides - and maybe a dozen partial rides - he's met people from nearly all the states in the nation. But Friday he was talking with Artie Hauer; the pair both grew up in Eagle Grove.

Hauer's wife Mary was biking when she could, but mostly driving a vehicle and meeting her husband along the way and every night.

The Hauers, now from Arizona, said they were blissfully unaware of what was going on as far as current events.

"You're so concerned about not crashing.... where you're going to eat next..." said Artie, "it's just a week where you can forget politics and go out and have fun.'

Ionia gets up early to give big welcome

For town's residents, RAGBRAI provides a 'fun experience'

BY LYDIA GESSNER Of the Tribune

As the sun began its ascent into the sky last Friday morning, the first of many RAGBRAI riders passed beneath the American flag and entered Ionia, "The Little Town With A Big Welcome."

One of those riders was Tom Kurth from Marshalltown. He's been riding RAGBRAI since 1986 and likes to say he's completed "every day, every mile, every hill" for 36 years.

"There's been thousands of memories, thousands of stops," he said, as he stood outside Hide-A-Way Lounge.

Just beside him stands Sandra Tschirren and her brother Juerg Tschirren and his son Elliot Tschirren. Juerg and Elliot are from Iowa, and Elliot was born here, but Sandra flew in from Switzerland with her husband and two friends for RAGBRAI.

Switzerland has a bit different layout and geography than Iowa, but it shares a love for agriculture.

Unlike in Iowa, where corn and soybean crops go on for miles, Juerg said that each field is only two or three acres, and they boast a variety of different crops.

Riders Terry and Karen Naas also come from an agricultural area, but in North Dakota where they farm soybeans.

"It's beautiful, beautiful crops," Karen said of the Iowa Iowa," Blaise Eisenbeio said. landscape they've rode past. has grown to 19 and includes riders from Illinois, Michigan, Iowa, Nebraska and someone who just moved from California to Iowa.

He also said with a laugh, "A lot of people summer in the Hamptons and we summer in Iowa.'

Daniel Heck, another member of the group, commented on their impressions of RAGBRAI and the state.

"We really appreciate all the work they do, the locals do, to just host," he said.

Just across the street, at the Hide-A-Way, volunteer Sharon Kellogg was serving RAGBRAI riders on only an hour of sleep.

She said they did a lot of preparation work beforehand, but started setting up at 1:30 a.m. Other volunteers arrived between 4 and 6 a.m. to help get everything ready.

Fireman Jim Allison was serving up sausages to go with RAGBRAI's famed Chris Cakes. He said the first rider they served was at 5:41 a.m.

Kimberly Meyer and Randy Taylor were taking money and giving out smiles as riders came into the station.

"Yeah, it's just a fun experience to see all the riders come in," Meyer said. "It's fun to talk with them and greet them with a smile."

For some, the hospitality has made them want to return to the state.

"I want to come back to "My kids haven't seen lowa and so I would love to bring "We're going to come back my wife and kids through here and show them parts of Iowa." treasures.' He added, "I think Meredith

Waucoma serves up a RAGBRAI feast

By Lydia Gessner Of the Tribune

The best pie and the best ribs. What more could you want?

As RAGBRAI riders streamed into Waucoma last Friday afternoon, one of their first stops may have been at the St. Mary's Catholic Church.

Elaine Hoey was one of the ladies serving up slices. She said two circles from the church came together to make the pies. In total, they had 42 ladies who each made two pies which they cut into six slices and then sold for $5 a piece.

Their efforts were rewarded with kind comments from riders. Hoey said just after 12 p.m. that they hadn't had a negative comment yet. One lady even said she was on her twentieth piece of pie during RAGBRAI and this was the best one so far.

Mike Faga was working the grill on one corner of downtown for Lynch Livestock. He said people from New York to Chicago to Kansas City even had said that Lynch's ribs were the best they've eaten.

"Just being able to feature our BBQ in our hometown where it all started, that's just neat for me," he said and added that Waucoma decided to have BBQ be part of their theme along with beer and bikes.

Faga has worked for Lynch for seven years and has ridden RAGBRAI with his family at least 20 times. By the time his kids were 13 they were doing the whole week.

Their "bribe" to encourage them was always Beekman's ice cream, which would be along the route the whole week.

This year, his RAGBRAI highlight was having Beekman's set up in his front yard. The line host stuff like this. It's really reached up to the road by noon what community's all about."

as Beekman's workers handmade the ice cream in front of eager RAGBRAI riders.

Right across from Beekman's stood a giant blow-up pig, which Faga got from a friend and then printed off a giant lipstick stain to stick to its side. Behind the pig was a tent featuring piglets and lipstick for people who wanted to experience kissing a pig for themselves, along with goats, calves and a chicken.

Norma Hackman was one of the ones behind the booth which they also hosted in New Hampton for RAGBRAI 2017. Hackman voiced her appreciation for the sponsorship and set-up help from the Lynch Family Companies. The funds from free will donations went to Chickasaw County Relay for Life

Hackman said that while money is important, awareness is most important.

"Your money is not just flowing down the drain, it's going towards research and it's going to programs that will help people who are fighting cancer."

Rider Aaron Bigio said the amount of "good will" has been one of the things that amazed him about RAGBRAI.

"I'm amazed at how nice people are," he said. He grew up in a small town in New Mexico and this is his first time in Iowa. Bigio is in the Air Force reserves and was riding with other members of the Air Force team.

Faga said Waucoma is a town of 250 people and probably half of them were helping out.

"Yeah just that small town Iowa and really small like Waucoma, it's a neat place," he said is what he hopes people take away from their time in the town. "People come together to

BY KELLY TERPSTRA sports@nhtrib.com

The Greensboro Coliseum Complex in North Carolina will always hold a special place in the heart of New Hampton's Carlee Rochford and her family.

That's where her late grandfather, Jerry Rochford, was able to see the Chickasaw and field before his passing in 2020.

It was the summer of 2019 before Carlee's freshman season at New Hampton High School when the Chickasaw standout previously competed in the Tar Heel State at the AAU Junior Olympics that year.

That's a moment she won't ever forget. "I literally remember him (Jerry) yelling star run and compete one last time in track at me in the 800 the last time he saw me run. I think it was pretty hard to go back," said Rochford, who his gearing up for what should be a tremendous senior season in athletics at NHHS.

Russler was named to the second team Class 3A all-state team - selected by the Iowa Girls Coaches Association.

"I feel like I worked for it," said Russler about the prestigious honor.

This impressive distinction sets her apart from a decent portion of members of all-state squads. Russler also was named first-team All-NEIC and made the Class 3A All-District team as well for the Northeast area.
