Patrie murder trial pushed back

Judge grants defense motion for a continuance, trial may be months away

BY BOB FENSK
editor@nhtrib.com

The trial of a Charles City man accused of murdering a retired grocer in rural Nashua 10 years ago could be months away after a district court judge granted a defense motion asking for a continuance.

Forty-year-old Randy Patrie has been charged with the killing of Kenneth Gallmeyer in September 2012, and his first-degree murder trial had been scheduled to begin in Chickasaw County District Court on Jan. 25.

But earlier this month, Patrie's attorney, assistant public defender Steven Drahozal, asked for a continuance.

In his filing, Drahozal told the court that the defense was continuing to review information provided by prosecutors and that he had communicated with prosecutors and was told that his motion for a continuance would not be contested.

He also wrote that "based on counsel's schedule, it is believed that the trial date will need to be after August

Drahozal also said his client has waived his right to be tried within one year of his arraignment.

District Court Judge Richard Stochl granted the continuance and scheduled a hearing on Jan. 17, when a new trial date will be set.

Patrie had long been considered the chief suspect in the murder of Gallmeyer, whose body was discovered by Chickasaw County sheriff's deputies when they were called to do a welfare check on Gallmeyer at his home north of Nashua on Oct. 4, 2012.

Supervisors will move ahead with interviews to replace sheriff

County resident says board is wasting time by not appointing chief deputy to replace Hemann

BY BOB FENSK
editor@nhtrib.com

The Chickasaw County Board of Supervisors received an "earful" from an area resident about how it is filling the soon-to-be-vacant sheriff's office, but board members moved ahead with their original plan to interview those who had applied for the job.

Late last month, Sheriff Marty Hemann announced his intention to resign and retire, effective Jan. 19, and although Hemann endorsed having the board name his chief deputy, Ryan Shawver, to the post, supervisors opened up the position to applicants.

Board Chairman Matt Kuhn on Tuesday said the county received four applications — from Shawver, Douglas Kollmann, Kennan Seda and Dan Sargent — and New Hampton resident Chuck Stanton questioned the board on why they were going down the application path.

"Why can't the sheriff be appointed and they can file for a special election, according to the law," he said. "You have a candidate that is very well groomed for the position, under the recommendation of a county-wide elected official. You would be foolish not to appoint Ryan Shawver to be the sheriff. ... I think it would be a slap in the face to Marty and Ryan if you do not appoint Deputy Shawver to the position, and I speak for

Board OKs resolution to give elected officials 9 percent pay increases

BY BOB FENSK
editor@nhtrib.com

The Chickasaw County Board of Supervisors made 9 percent pay hikes for elected office holders official on Tuesday. Just how official, though, is a matter of interpretation.

Board members voted 3-1 — Tim Zoll cast the lone nay vote while Jake Hackman voted "present" — to approve a resolution that will lead to pay increases for the 10 elected officials — five supervisors, attorney, auditor, recorder, sheriff and treasurer.

The vote came after County Attorney David Laudner for a second consecutive week expressed frustration with Iowa law that is, as he puts it, "confusing" and "illogical" when it comes to when county's should act on compensation board recommendations.

During a Dec. 19 meeting, the county attorney pointed out that on one hand, the code seems to be telling counties it shouldn't act on a compensation board's recommendation until the public hearing is held on the budget, yet it also states that wages should be set before putting the budget up for the public hearing.

"The code doesn't to me reflect the practical realities of the budgeting process and is illogical and totally does not support the compensation board itself," Laudner said. "That's why it's a mess. The fact of the matter is that every county

CHICKASAW COUNTY'S AMBULANCE SAGA REPEATS AS TOP STORY OF YEAR

No story dominated the front page of the Tribune in 2022 like the ongoing ambulance saga; in fact, at one point, we went 26 straight weeks with some kind of EMS story on Page 1.

But as 2022 gives way to 2023, the story that wouldn't go away is about to become a reality, for on Sunday, Chickasaw County EMS will begin offering ambulance service to rural residents of the county and to those

At the beginning of 2022, the idea of a county-owned ambulance service had been floated, but this was a story that had so many twists and turns, ups and downs, that it resembled the wildest roller coaster ride.

REPUBLICANS HAVE PLENTY TO CELEBRATE

There was a time when Iowa was considered a "purple" state, i.e., a toss-up when it came to elections.

And there was a time when Chickasaw County was supposedly a Democratic county.

Those days are long gone, and for proof we offer the mid-term election of 2022, which brought a red tidal wave to the state in general and the county in particular.

If you were a Republican on Nov. 9, you were one very, very happy camper.

To say the GOP dominated the Nov. 8 election would be an understatement. Republicans won every statewide office, save

Old Man Winter giving us a break

After a week of snow, cold, wind and blizzard, we're basking in a heat wave

BY BOB FENSK
editor@nhtrib.com

Here's our belated Christmas gift to you: Winter's grip on Northeast Iowa has loosened this week.

After a week in which New Hampton received six inches of new snow, endured arctic temperatures and spent 36 hours under a blizzard warning, we deserve a little break.

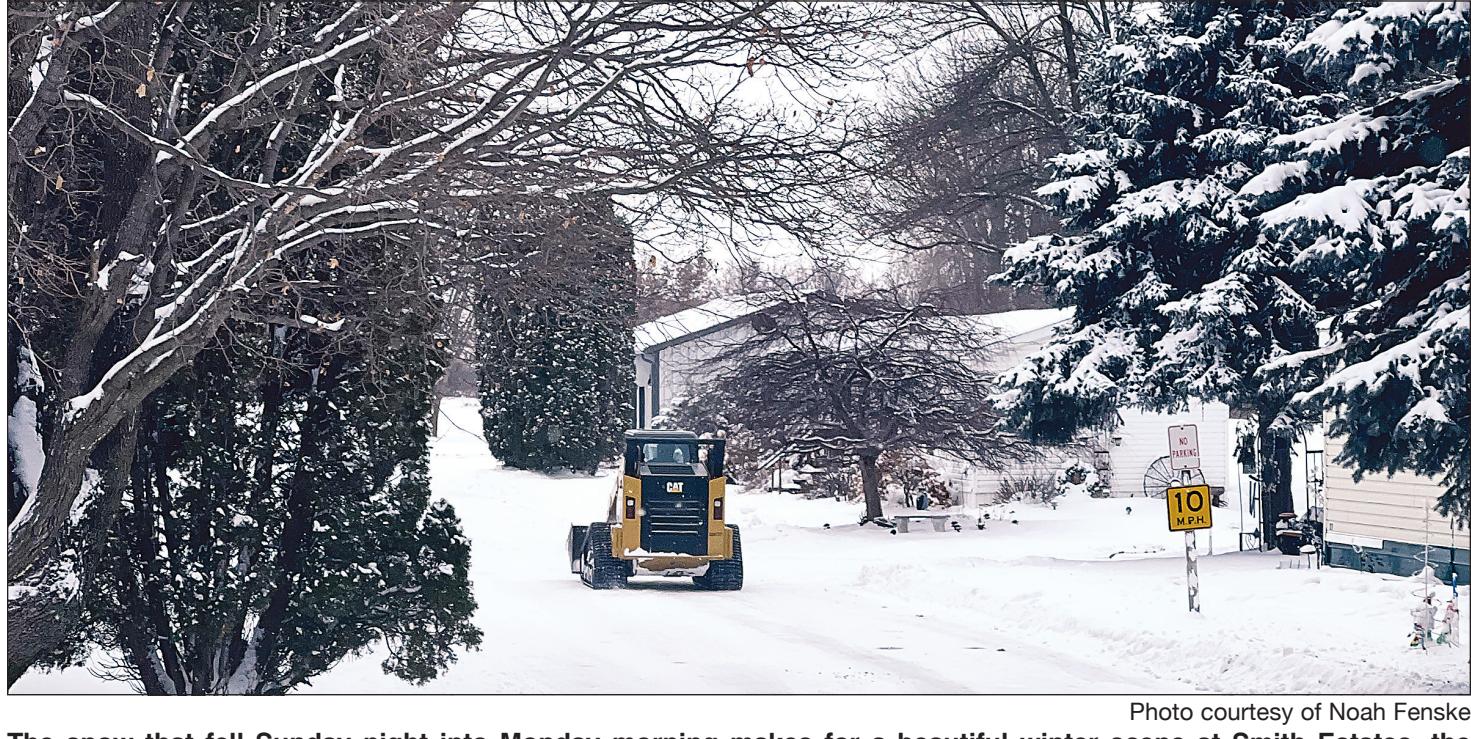

And the weatherman is providing us one as we're in the midst of a relative heat wave.

New Hampton officially received three inches of new snow Sunday night into Monday morning, and Monday's high temperatures in the area didn't make it out of single digits in a number of places.

But by today (Thursday), we might be breaking out the shorts as the high temperature in New Hampton is expected to be 40.

Best of all, it looks like we'll stay on the warm side through at least the New Year's holiday — with highs above freezing each day — although forecasters say there is a slight chance of rain and snow falling on Saturday.

The snow that fell Sunday night into Monday morning makes for a beautiful winter scene at Smith Estates, the mobile-home park located on New Hampton's west side.

The votes are in and all counted and the winners of the annual New Hampton Parks and Recreation Holiday Lighting contest include the Travis Thiele home (above) at 217 S. Locust Ave., the Kipp and Jamie Jones home (right) at 415 N. Chestnut Ave. and the Steve and Virjean Chapin home (below) at 414 N. Hartwell Ave.

The Thiele home received 75 votes on the Parks and Rec Facebook page, the Jones home, which also includes inflatables that weren't up when we took this picture because of the wind, garnered 68 votes and the Chapins got 51 votes.

Parks and Recreation Program Manager Tara Hackman, who will take over as the department's director on Jan. 9, said she appreciated all those that participated in the contest.

Patrie reduced sentence led to state charges

TRIAL: FROM 1

In June 2014, Patrie was sentenced to life in prison in federal court after he pleaded guilty to possession of firearms by a felon as an armed career criminal and possession of sawed-off shotguns.

That sentence, however, was later overturned by a federal appeals court, and Patrie was re-sentenced to 20 years in federal prison.

Earlier this year, Chickasaw County Sheriff Marty Hemann said that once Patrie's life sentence had been rescinded, his office's goal was to bring him to trial in state court.

"We want justice for the family," he said, "and we felt like we had that with the life sentence. Once that was removed, we knew we were going to do everything we could to bring him to trial."

Gallmeyer was a 70-year-old retired grocer who had moved to rural Nashua after selling his store in Clarksville.

In a complaint and affidavit filed in federal court, law enforcement authorities said they discovered that Gallmeyer had suffered a gunshot wound to the head and that numerous items — including several firearms and Samsung 40-inch flat-screen TV, had been taken from his home.

The affidavit went on to say that on Oct. 4, 2013, the Charles City Police Department executed a search warrant at Patrie's residence in Charles City and that investigators from the Sheriff's Office and the Iowa Division of Criminal Investigation contacted Charles City police and obtained a copy of the items seized during the execution of the search warrant.

It was discovered that several of the items seized were items taken from Gallmeyer's home. They included three firearms, one of which, according to the affidavit was "consistent with the firearm used to kill" Gallmeyer.

An additional search warrant was then executed by the Sheriff's Office and the DCI at Patrie's home, and additional items belonging to Gallmeyer were located and seized. During the second search, officers discovered a Samsung 40-inch flatscreen TV mounted on the wall of Patrie's bedroom.

Patrie was moved from a federal prison in New Jersey to Iowa in March, and he is currently being housed at the Fayette County Jail in West Union.

Hemann has said that Patrie is being held out of the county because the jail in West Union is more modern and offers more "segregation" and "classifications" than the aging Chickasaw County Jail in New Hampton.

About the only comfort for Democrats was the "red wave" was basically confined to the Hawkeye State as Democrats barely lost control of the U.S. House and maintained control of the U.S. Senate.

REPUBLICANS HAVE PLENTY TO CELEBRATE DURING A 'RED-WAVE' ELECTION IN IOWA

ELECTION: FROM 1

for state auditor, where incumbent Democrat Rob Sand eked out a narrow win. In Chickasaw County, they won every race that included a Republican and a Democrat, save for the recorder's office, where incumbent Shirley Troyon beat GOP challenger Tim Zoll.

Otherwise, it was a deep red election.

Gov. Kim Reynolds easily won election, as did senator-for-life, or so it seems, Charles Grassley.

Republicans won all four congressional seats. The GOP knocked off longtime Democrats Tom Miller (Attorney General) and Michael Fitzgerald (treasurer). And here in Chickasaw County, they elected two supervisors, a county attorney and a county treasurer.

About the only comfort for Democrats was the "red wave" was basically confined to the Hawkeye State as Democrats barely lost control of the U.S. House and maintained control of the U.S. Senate.

Can anyone explain why we let Rick Kramer have a whistle (above) at a Farmers Market in 2012, and they say a picture is worth a 1,000 words, but the look on the face of Kramer (below) can be summed up in five — get rid of that camera — during a Breakfast with Santa several years ago.

Happy retirement to a great Park & Rec director and good pal

It's a memory forever seared into my mind.

The date was Dec. 12, 2009, and I was six days into my New Hampton Tribune career as I made my way to the New Hampton Community Center for something called Breakfast with Santa.

It had been a hectic six days. I started work on the previous Monday, the same day the boys headed off to New Hampton Elementary School for the first time. The next day, a snowstorm that dropped more than a foot of snow on our new hometown, sent the boys home early from school and me scurrying to figure out where I had put the shovel.

The storm closed down New Hampton for much of Wednesday and Thursday so I hadn't gotten out and about to meet people, like the Parks and Recreation director, a guy named Rick Kramer.

So there I was on Saturday, Dec. 12, 2009, walking into the Community Center, and I did what I always do — I started snapping pictures.

A few minutes later, this guy named Kramer comes up to me and says, "Can I help you and why are you taking pictures of all these kids?"

I couldn't help but laugh because it hit me why someone had come up to Kramer a few minutes before and said something like "who's the strange guy taking pictures of kids?"

"Oh God, this doesn't look good, does it? I'm the new editor at the Tribune," I said, "and seriously, I'm just here to get pictures for Tuesday's paper."

It's a story both Rick and I have shared consistently over the years, and while I may have scared a few people that day — oh my gosh, stranger danger! — I'll always be grateful for Dec. 12, 2009.

It was the day I met one of the best friends I've had during my 57 trips around the sun.

THE FACT IS that we're the proverbial two peas in a pod.

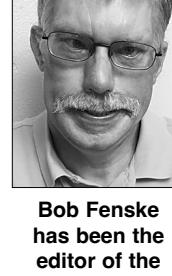

Rick and I are championship BSers. We love giving anyone and everyone grief. We, at least I hope people know this about me, care greatly about the place we call home. And we both think there's tremendous value in having a strong parks system and a healthy recreation program.

I will admit that there have been times when I spent way too much time in Rick's office, taking as much crap as I was dishing out. I will also admit that if I used all the pictures I've taken of Rick for this column, my camera would be shoved up ... well, you know.

But there's also this: When I've needed a kick in the arse — either professionally or personally — Rick Kramer has never been afraid to provide the boot.

"What in the hell are you doing?"

I've heard that so many times from Rick that I've lost count, but 99.9 percent of the time, he's done what a good friend

Bob Fenske has been the editor of the New Hampton Tribune since 2009, and he can be reached by email at editor@nhtrib.com.

Kramer to be honored at Jan. 4 open house

Longtime New Hampton Parks and Recreation Director Rick Kramer will be honored during a retirement open house that will be held Wednesday, Jan. 4.

Kramer's fellow city employees will celebrate his accomplishments and 32 1/2 years of service to the department during the event that will run from 3 to 5 p.m. at the New Hampton Community Center and will include plenty of refreshments and, of course, good conversations.

Kramer worked the first half of his career as the "parks guy" before being named director in 2006, and his final day with the department will be Friday, Jan. 6.

is supposed to do. He's made me rethink the direction I was going. Sometimes, I've listened to him. Sometimes, I haven't. And quite frankly, friends like Rick Kramer have kept me on the rails more often than not.

THERE ARE A FEW naysayers in the community, I know, that think Rick Kramer is all bluster and all talk. And they'll tell you that this reporter gives him a pass too often.

So this next sentence will probably gall the hell out of them. Rick's going to be a tough act to follow.

He cares passionately about his hometown in general and its parks and recreation in particular. Since I moved here, the list of accomplishments his department has achieved is almost endless. From the revival of Garnant Pond to the many additions at Mikkelsen Park to the makeover at the New Hampton Municipal Pool to the TRIBE Trail, at least the first two-thirds of it, to the events like the Father-Daughter Valentine's Day Dance and the annual Halloween Parade, I'd put our Parks and Recreation Department up against any in the state.

Look, it hasn't been a one-man show, I know that. Tara Hackman, who will take over as the department director, and Laurie Marzolf were huge parts of the department's successes, as was that guy who occasionally answered the phone or helped at the counter when Rick was soloing in the office and occupied with something else.

OK, that was me, and I may have overstated my importance in that last paragraph!

But what I've appreciated the most about the professional Rick is that — at least since I've known him — he's always put kids and programs first. In a world of travel and AAU ball, he understood that every kid has value.

And I appreciate that.

NEXT FRIDAY, RICK Kramer will work his last day at the office that has employed him for more than 32 years.

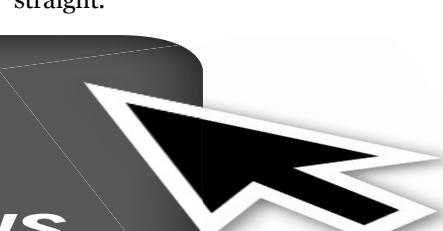

Thankfully, for me at least, he's not going anywhere. Wow, scratch that. I'm sure there will be more time spent with his kids — Scott, Travis, Nicole and Ryan — and his seven grandchildren.

But he and his wife, Donna (God help her; sorry Rick, I couldn't get through this entire column without one smart-aleck comment), will remain in New Hampton, which means that in between visits to see Bryson, Addie, Fletcher, Lainey, Eden, Cal, and Jamie, his garage will be open.

Sometimes, I'll stop to BS. Sometimes, I'll pop in to give him grief.

And sometimes, I'll walk in knowing I need a kick in the rear end and there's a friend who's more than willing to set me straight.

NEWS BITS FROM OUR PAST COMPILED BY TERRI JOSEPHSON

Week of Dec. 25

1947 (75 years ago)

- A huge building expansion was dedicated by the Oliver Company in Charles City recently, and during the celebration, it was noted that employees travel from near and far to work at the tractor factory.

Figures showed 111 of the 2,347 employees of the plant lived in New Hampton, 112 in Nashua, 61 in Ionia, 29 in Elma, 20 in Bassett, 18 in Lawler, 9 in Fredericksburg and 8 in North Washington plus office personnel from these communities also.

- New Year's Midnight Jamboree at the Firemen's Theatre advertised "Copacabana" as the main feature, starring Groucho Marx.

1972 (50 years ago)

- Thursday afternoon saw the climax to the 1972 New Hampton Chamber of Commerce-sponsored Treasure Hunt with 19-year-old Tim Angell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Angell, garnering the prize of $300 in New Hampton Chamber Bucks as he correctly deciphered the final clue and found the medallion.

Tim was working at Coast to Coast when the final clue came across the radio and he heard it and made a guess as to the location of the medallion. The Treasure Hunt has caused considerable excitement in the area.

- A longtime New Hampton businessman and a native of the community, Lloyd D. Snyder has been associated with the Blue Line Oil Company for 42 years. His son, Richard L. (Dick) Snyder purchased his interest in the company and became a partner with Robert Weber.

Dick Snyder, a 1963 graduate of New Hampton High School, recently returned to his hometown from Omaha, Neb. He and his wife, Betty Jo, are parents of two children, Sheila, 4 and Johnny, 1.

1997 (25 years ago)

- The Hospice Tree of Life was lit on Dec. 11 and will remain in the Chickasaw County Courthouse throughout the holidays. During the ceremony Hospice staff and volunteers read the role of loved ones "honored" or "remembered". This year 693 lights adorn the tree as they signify the extra light in our lives we need in times of grief and sorrow to help us bring light and hope into our lives.

- The Chickasaws varsity wrestling team completed the pre-holiday portion of their 1997-98 season with a very successful outing in Saturday's New Hampton Dual Team Invitational. The Tribe was the team champion after defeating four opponents, including defending state placer and top-ranked Independence.

The Chickasaws had six champions for the day with perfect 4-0 records, Adam Kramer in the 112-pound division, Ryan Utterback (130), Jamey Pesek (135), Cory Beckman (140), Matt McGrath (152) and Jason Reicks (171).

2012 (10 years ago)

- Michelle Good, a senior at New Hampton High School, will perform with an all-American dance team both before and during halftime of the game between Texas A&M and Oklahoma in Cowboys Stadium, which is located just outside of Dallas in the suburb of Arlington.

But throwing a group of elite dancers from around the country for couple of days of practice isn't enough so organizers have sent Good her choreography and notes so that come Jan. 3, she and her new teammates will at least have an idea of what their routine will look like.

Good said a ton of time is put into dance and it is such a great way to express yourself.

- The first major winter storm of the season not only made travel treacherous, it caused scheduling issues for New Hampton Community Schools.

New Hampton High School students will start their holiday break without finishing up semester tests, they will finish up the first semester on Jan. 7, when they return to class.

The early start to Christmas break also means the end of the academic year will come a little later than originally planned.

2017 (5 years ago)

- Heading into Friday night's quadrangular at Osage, the New Hampton/Turkey Valley wrestling team was ranked first in the latest Class 2A dual-meet rankings while Clarion-Goldfield-Dows was No. 2.

The Chickasaws came out firing from the start, winning the first seven matches and building a 34-0 lead and rolled to a 54-15 victory. There is no other way to put it than this was just a good old-fashioned butt kicking.

- New Hampton girls basketball coach Chad Pemble came up with a one-word description, "chunky," to describe the first half on Thursday night.

Coach Pemble said foul trouble caused the team to get out of any normal rotation. The second half was more graceful, with lots of intensity thrown in, as New Hampton scorched North Fayette Valley for 25 third quarter points on its way to a 68-43 win that gave the Chickasaws a 7-3 record heading into the holiday break.

Two graces

Let's say thank you to God with a pair of graces in our hearts

As we meditate on the birth of Jesus, two great things come.

The first is the grace of Immanuel.

"The virgin will be with child and will give birth to a son, and they will call him Immanuel, which means, God with us" (Matthew 1:23, NIV). Jesus was called "Immanuel." Jesus was God's son, but He was also God Himself, appearing here on earth to be with the people of the world.

Sometimes, the Lord seems far away, but He comes close to us. We feel as though the Lord is on high, but He comes close to us, and

He allows us to associate as much as we want as friends. God has come to our side.

We can feel it in our hearts. That is Jesus Christ, the God of Immanuel.

Another grace that we can receive through Christmas is the grace of the Atonement lamb. God told Joseph and Mary to name Him "Jesus."

The name Jesus means "the Lord saves." The name was important because Jesus was sent by God to save the world from sin. God loved us so much that God sent His only Son to die on the cross to save us from our sin.

I hope that it will be a week in which you give thanks before God with two graces in your hearts. Amen.

Exploring the wise men

No nativity scene is complete without the three wise men presenting their gifts to baby Jesus, a gigantic star hovering over a stable bathing them in light. It's such a beautiful picture, majestic kings kneeling in the hay with the shepherds among the oxen and cattle, all adoring a baby in a manger.

Except that isn't what happened.

Who were the wise men really? Where did they come from? Did they ever see the stable? And were there actually three of them?

The answers may not be what you think.

What Does the Bible Say about the Wise Men and the Christmas Story?

The wise men are mentioned in Matthew 2.

"After Jesus was born in Bethlehem in Judea, during the time of King Herod, Magi from the east came to Jerusalem and asked, 'Where is the one who has been born king of the Jews? We saw his star when it rose and have come to worship him'" (Matthew 2:1-2).

Matthew goes on to record their search for Jesus. They went to the court of King Herod and asked him where they would find "the king of the Jews" that had been born. Herod called together the chief priests and teachers of the law, who determined that, according to the Old Testament prophecies, the Messiah would be born in Bethlehem.

They discovered Jesus in a house (notably, not a stable) in Bethlehem according to the prophecies and brought him gifts. God then warned them in a dream not to let King Herod know where Jesus was, so they returned home without telling Herod, who was secretly plotting to kill Jesus.

They followed the star to find Jesus in a house (notably, not a stable) in Bethlehem according to the prophecies and brought him gifts. God then warned them in a dream not to let King Herod know where Jesus was, so they returned home without telling Herod, who was secretly plotting to kill Jesus.

Who Were the Wise Man/Magi in the Christmas Story?

The Greek word μάγοι (magoi) is translated as "wise men" or "magi" depending on the English translation. This word was originally meant to refer to a class of Persian wise men that were something like priests, interpreters of special signs, and especially astrology.

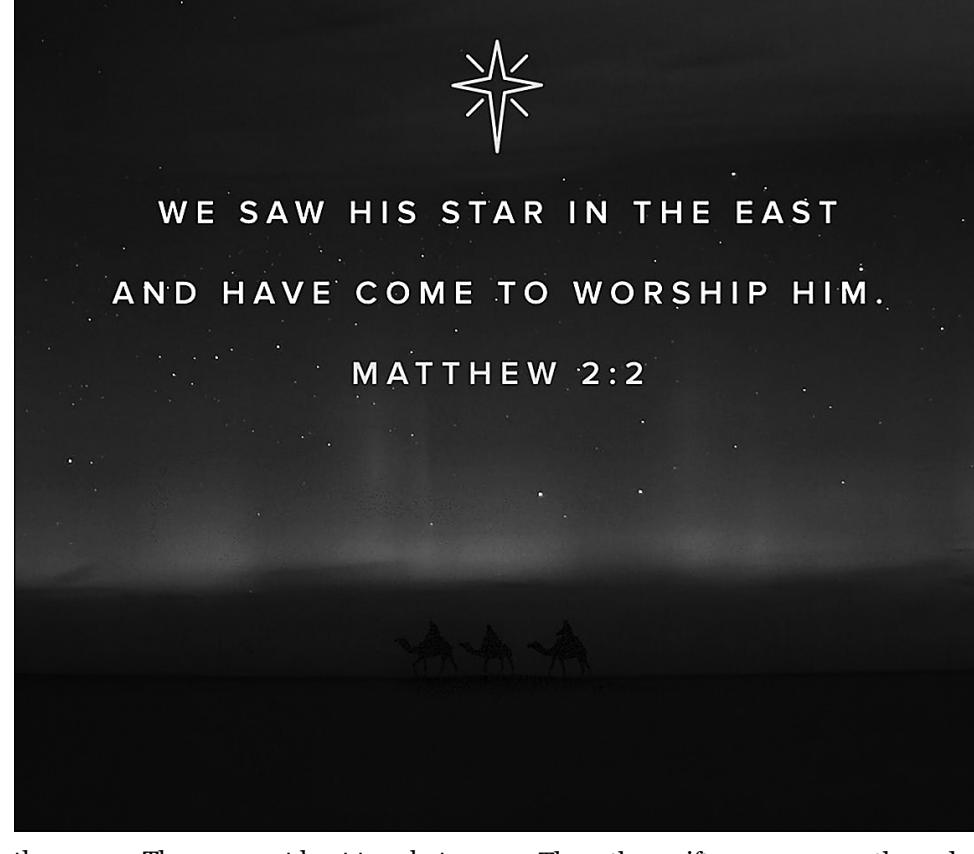

Eventually, the word came to be used for anyone who had supernatural knowledge or ability, or a magician. The same word is used in Acts 13:6 to describe the false prophet Bar-Jesus. It could even mean a deceptive person; the NIV translates the word to "sorcerer" in describing Bar-Jesus.

Māgoi as used to refer to the wise men is probably in line with the first definition. Like these Persian wise men, the magi were interested in astrology (they followed a star) and they were from the east (the direction of Babylon/Persia).

Sometimes the magi are referred to as kings, but the Bible never calls them that.

How Many Wise Men Were There in the Christmas Story?

The Bible never says how many magi there were. There were at least two, but there is no indication other than that. The idea of three wise men probably comes from the fact that they brought three gifts. Early church traditions actually suggested that there were twelve wise men, but we have no idea.

What Was the Star They Followed in the Christmas Story?

No one is exactly sure what star the wise men followed, or whether it was even a "star" in the strictest sense at all.

Some have suggested a supernova. Others have suggested a comet. Many theories concern a specific massing of planets, such as Jupiter and Saturn, inside of meaningful constellations, like Pisces.

There are many astronomical happenings that could potentially fit the bill due to the meanings planets and constellations had for ancient astrologers. For example, Jupiter and Saturn were planets of rulers, and Pisces was associated with Israel. When these three came together in 7 B.C., some scholars postulate that this could have been what the magi saw. There are other such theories involving various other planets and constellations. You can read about some of them here.

Others, however, believe that the star was a supernatural manifestation that can't be explained scientifically.

Whatever the star was, the important thing is that it led the wise men to Jesus.

Why Did the Wise Men Bring Gold, Frankincense, and Myrrh in the Christmas Story?

Contrary to traditional nativity scenes and Christmas pageants, the wise men most likely did not arrive to see Jesus in the manger. Most scholars believe Jesus was a year or two old by the time the wise men visited.

At the point the wise men reach the house in Bethlehem, the word Luke uses to describe Jesus means "young child."

Herod was also aware of the time the star appeared, courtesy of the wise men, and when he tried to have Jesus killed to protect his own power, he had all the baby boys two years and younger killed.

— christianity.com

These three gifts were very costly, and thus the very best, fit for a king. These were also traditionally imported from the Arabian peninsula or Africa, which means the wise men were bringing the best of their homeland.

Christians now point to more symbolic reasons, which the wise men may or may not have originally intended.

Gold is a symbol of divinity, pointing to Christ's identity as the Son of God.

Fragrant frankincense was often burnt as an offering to God. This could symbolize the fact that Jesus would give Himself up as a sacrifice.

Myrrh was a spice used in embalming.

It symbolizes bitterness and suffering.

This could symbolize how Jesus would grow up to suffer and die.

Protect Financial Accounts from “Cyberthieves”

Cybercrime is booming. In 2021, the FBI reported that cybercriminals scammed nearly $7 billion from Americans — a figure slightly higher than the gross domestic product (GDP) of Switzerland for that year, according to research organization World Economics. How can you protect yourself from cyberthieves? Here are some suggestions that can help:

- Watch out for “phishing” attempts. You may receive emails that appear to be from a legitimate firm, requesting information your financial institution would never request online — confirmation of an account number, password, Social Security number, credit card number and so on. These notes can look official, often incorporating a firm’s logo, so pay close attention to what’s being asked of you.

- Think twice before clicking or downloading. If you are suspicious about a communication, don’t click on a link or download an attachment — instead, go to your financial firm’s website or use their app to verify they sent the information or request.

- Become adept with passwords. Use a different password for each of your accounts and change your passwords regularly. Of course, maintaining multiple passwords can be confusing, so you might want to consider using password management software, which generates passwords, stores them in an encrypted database and locks them behind a master password — which is the only one you’ll need to remember.

- Use your own devices. Try to avoid using public computers or devices that aren’t yours to access your financial accounts. If you do use another computer, clear your browsing history after you log out of your account.

- Be cautious about using Wi-Fi when traveling. When you’re on the road, you may want to use public hotspots, such as wireless networks in airports and hotels. But many people don’t realize that these hotspots reduce their security settings to make access easier, which, in turn, makes it easier for cyberthieves to intercept your information. In fact, some hackers even build their own public hotspots to draw in internet-seekers in an effort to commit theft. So, if at all possible, wait until you can access a trusted, encrypted network before engaging in any communications or activity involving your financial accounts.

- Don’t give up control of your computer. Under no circumstances should you provide remote access to your computer to a stranger who contacts you, possibly with an offer to help “disinfect” your computer. If you do think your device has an issue with malicious software, contact a legitimate technician for assistance.

- Know whom you’re calling for help. If you need assistance from, say, a customer service area of a financial institution, make sure you know the phone number is accurate and legitimate — possibly one from a billing or confirmation statement. Some people have been scammed by Googling “support” numbers that belonged to fraudsters who asked for sensitive information.

- Review all correspondence with your financial services provider. Keep a close eye on your account activity and statements. If you see mistakes or unauthorized activity in your account, contact your financial institution immediately. Advanced technology has brought many benefits, but also many more opportunities for financial crimes. By taking the above steps, and others that may be needed, you can go a long way toward defending yourself against persistent and clever cyberthieves.

Resident terms application process ‘foolish’

many, many people in this county.”

County Attorney David Laudner reiterated that the qualifications for being sheriff included being at least 21 years of age, never having been convicted of a felony and be a certified peace officer.

He added that to be eligible for appointment, an applicant will have to have lived in the county for at least 60 days. Laudner did add that if the supervisors decided to wait and appoint someone who is currently living outside the county, state law automatically calls for the chief deputy to serve as acting sheriff until the vacancy is filled.

Hemann said he would be willing to work with the board to vet the candidates and help with interviews.

“I have hired, I do understand the sheriff’s office [with] 32-years-plus [of experience],” he said. “Let’s determine if any or all four have met the requirements that the county attorney has mentioned, and let’s do an interview process. ... I can certainly ask the tough questions.”

Hemann added that he would be disappointed if the board passed on his offer.

“I’ll be honest, if you don’t want me involved, that is kind of a slap in the face,” he said. “I said in my letter I want to make this as smooth of a transition as possible, so I guess just allow me to help out with that transition.”

Stanton, though, characterized the entire discussion as a waste of time.

“I appreciate Marty being very diplomatic about the interview process, but you have a person in front of you that is qualified in every category and can meet every standard you set. ... The board has way more important things to do than this. You can get it off your plate and you could be done. ... This is foolish, we’re wasting time talking on something that is cut and dried.”

Supervisor Jason Byrne, who is in his last week on the board, agreed.

“He’s been working here for many years,” he said of Shawver. “I’ve seen his work. He’s done a good job. I don’t even know why we would question it.”

In the end, the board asked Hemann to vet the candidates and work to set up interviews with those who have the qualifications.

But by then, Stanton had left the meeting, but before he did, he took one last shot at the board.

“Marty opened the position, but you guys opened the can of worms,” he said. “You guys made it a big deal, and I’m going to quit talking because this is absolutely asinine.”

Agency offering virtual class on avoiding falls

Would you like to improve your balance?

Do you want to feel more comfortable participating in your favorite activities?

Northeast Iowa Area Agency on Aging (NEI3A) is offering A Matter of Balance: Managing Concerns About Falls, an award-winning workshop designed to increase the activity levels of older adults with concerns about falling. This workshop has added benefit of being able to attend virtually online. During eight two-hour sessions, participants learn to:

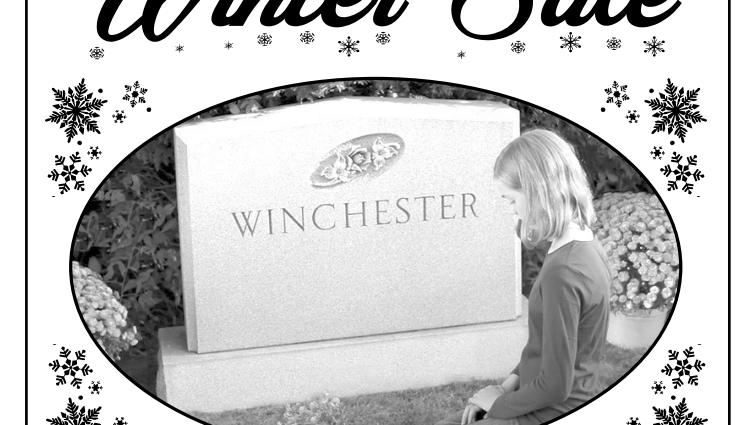

- Promote exercise to increase strength and balance
- Set realistic goals for increasing activity
- Improve environment to reduce fall risk factors
- View falls and fear of falling as controllable

The Centers for Disease Control report that falling is the most common cause of injury in people over 60.

Register today for A Matter of Balance. Classes will be held virtually online from Jan. 16 through Feb. 8 each Monday and Wednesday from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

The link to join the meeting will be sent when you register.

COUNTY AUDITOR, SHERIFF*SUBMIT RESIGNATIONS

There isn't a literal revolving door at the Chickasaw County Courthouse, but in 2022, there definitely was a figurative one.

This past spring, long-time Treasurer Sue Breitbach announced that she would not seek re-election and would retire at the end of the year.

In July, Auditor Stephanie Mashek, citing family reasons, resigned.

And earlier this month, Sheriff Marty Hemann announced that he would retire, effective Jan. 19.

The resignations of Mashek and Hemann took some by surprise. Both were elected in 2020 - Mashek to a first term and Hemann to a second term.

"I work with a great staff and I've got a good working relationship with department heads," Mashek said, but she added that the county is "very political and I only wanted to do what's best for the residents of Chickasaw County." The Board of Supervisors appointed Sheila Shekleton to replace Mashek, and Shekleton ran unopposed as a Republican in November to fill out Mashek's original term that runs through Dec. 31, 2024.

Hemann, meanwhile, said he felt the time was right for him to call it a career after a 32-year career with the Sheriff's Office.

It was a hard decision in so many ways because I love the people I work with," he said last month. "They are as professional as they come and I'll miss them dearly. But it's time to put my family first."

Who will replace Hemann, though, remained up in the air and won't be known until at least Jan. 19, when Hemann officially steps into retirement.

In a retail world where so much has changed, a family-owned business that celebrates a century in business is a rarity.

And in New Hampton, in 2022, it was a reality as Schueth Ace Hardware celebrated the 100th anniversary of its founding during the city's Heartland Days parade.

Co-owners and siblings Doug Schueth and Jackie Perkins led New Hampton's biggest parade and honored the legacy of their grandfather, J.G. Schueth, who bought an existing store in the city in 1922 and then passed on the business to his two sons - Jim and Don, the latter the father of the current owners.

The secret to Schueth's success? Follow the examples their grandfather, father and uncle set.

"But honestly, I guess the answer about what's next is probably this: We're going to do what we've done for 100 years," Doug Schueth said. "Sell good products, stand by them and treat our customers the way they should be treated. That's really it. That's been the secret for all these years so why not keep doing it?"

A LOOK BACK AT THE TOP-10 NEWS STORIES OF THE YEAR*NEW NAME, NEW PURPOSE, SAME BUILDING

Known by many names throughout the years — county home, the "poor farm" and the Heritage — the county-owned building located just south of New Hampton had an eventful year.

When 2022 dawned, the building was home to Inspiring Lives, a mental-health agency, but when county leaders could not reach a new lease agreement, the building reverted back to county control on July 1.

After considering selling the building, the Board of Supervisors switched gears.

"I can say my opinion is we have a lot of irons in the fire," Board Chairman Matt Kuhn said, "and speaking to other individuals as well as taxpayers ... I'm not going to vote to sell the property for $300,000."

Those irons included the selling of a county-owned building located at 910 E. Main St., so although the deal still hasn't been finalized, a number of county offices and non-profit groups moved this fall to the old county home.

And more offices may head south to the renamed Chickasaw Heritage Building Center.

FIVE YEARS LATER, WE THROW OUT RED CARPET AGAIN

Let's put it this way, in and around Chickasaw County knows how to throw one hell of a party when it comes to RAGBRAI.

For the second time in five years, the famed bike ride made its way through the area — stopping in Ionia, New Hampton, Lawler and Waucoma — and for the second time in five years, Mother Nature cooperated beautifully as we enjoyed a day with few, if any, clouds and temperatures in the 70s.

New Hampton Mayor Bobby Schwickerath was like every other mayor in the area. He was proud.

"We just heard so many positive comments from so many riders. It was so much fun showing off our city."

COUNTY LOSES LONGTIME PUBLIC SERVANT

The year 2022 got off to a rough start with the passing of Chickasaw County Board of Supervisors Chairman Rick Holthaus.

The longtime public servant died on Jan. 2 at the age of 62 and was remembered by his colleagues with a moment of silence during the first board meeting of the calendar year.

A call-it-like-he-saw-it kind of guy, Holthaus was a 1977 graduate of New Hampton High School, who stayed home to farm, married his wife Cindy and help raise his kids — Brandon, Miranda, Lindsey, Justina and Jarrett.

He served on the New Hampton School Board and was in the midst of his third term on the Board of Supervisors.

Steve Breitbach was appointed to fill out the term, but after District 1 residents petitioned for a special election, voters gave us a civics lesson.

In the five-person race, Breitbach beat GOP nominee Mike Winter by two votes, 145-143 to claim the remainder of Holthaus' term.

and the council agreed, voting 4-2 to make the donation.

The other big issue facing the city was how it could pay for a dramatic increase in its ambulance bill, and city leaders took their case to the voters — asking them to allow them to use local-option sales tax (LOST) dollars to cover the costs of joining the county-owned ambulance service.

And that measure easily won passage in November.

Bowlers fall but continue to exceed coach's expectations

By KELLY TERPSTRA
sports@nhtribune.com

The best may be yet to come for the New Hampton High School bowling teams.

That's saying something — because in their inaugural season, the co-ed Chickasaws have paved plenty of ground in their pioneering first year.

With four home dates left at Bowlaway Lanes in New Hampton — New Hampton should feel awfully good about its chances to pull out more victories in the second-half of the 2022-2023 season.

"We'll be a little bit more relaxed and a lot more comfortable because it will be on a shot that they're used to," said New Hampton head coach Andy Aries. "I expect their scores to be a lot better."

New Hampton (1-3) returns from Christmas break with its second home meet of the season against Oelwein on Tuesday, Jan. 10.

The NH boys team has already exceeded Aries' expectations by bowling in the 2,400 range. The Chickasaws broke 2,500 at home with the first win in program history two weeks ago versus Grundy Center. While this fourth contest of the season at Lilac Lanes in West Union on Tuesday, Dec. 20 versus North Fayette Valley wasn't a victory, NH is still being competitive.

The Tigerhawks (3-0) stayed undefeated with a 188-pn victory over New Hampton — 2,667 to 2,479.

"We're getting our kids to shoot 150-plus each game," said Aries.

Landon Marr, a sophomore, continued to lead the Chickasaws the last two meets with a 358 round. He rolled a 168 in his first 10-frame outing, followed by a 190. Jackson Brincks (321), Jamison Porath (314), Chase Gebel (312), Jaxon Porath (300) and Jarrin Robinson (260) filled out the varsity score sheet for New Hampton.

The Chickasaws' baker round total was

Kelly Terpstra/Tribune

New Hampton's Jarrin Robinson attempts to pick up a spare during a bowling meet against Grundy Center earlier this season.

874. That bested NNF's 807. NH has won every baker round this year, sans the contest against Charles City.

"They're definitely improving in the individual part, but the team part — when we get into the baker part — they're bowling excellent there," said Aries.

Aries said he expected the boys squad to roll around 2,300 before the start of the second half of the season. They've upped that total and more.

The NH girls team competed in its second meet of the season and lost to the Tigerhawks, 2,260 to 830.

The story out of this meet on the girls side was freshman McKenzie Herzberg. She tallied a 70-69-131 in the first meet of the season at Charles City. She went above and beyond that score in West Union with a combined total of 201. Her high game was 124.

"She did really well for what she had been doing from the beginning of the year until now," said Herzberg. "She definitely improved considerably. With that being said, it seemed like she had a lot more fun because she was a little more relaxed. That helped out a lot."

Mary Jane Schmitz, a senior, rolled a 192 and junior Chickasaw Madison Dreckman notched a 167.

The girls' baker round was 270.

"I think this break for them is going to be a big help," said Aries. "A lot of them aren't used to going full tilt like this," said Aries. "I definitely think this break is going to give them a chance to relax and kind of refocus again."

TCOB.
That acronym stands for taking care of business – if you didn't already know.

The New Hampton girls basketball team did that and then some in last week Tuesday's rout of Charles City on the road.

"We wanted to finish the week before break with a good win," said NH junior guard Molly Wegner. "We knew we could go out there and take care of business. That was actually our game motto – is take care of business. We had a goal and that's what we did."

In the last game before Christmas break, the Chickasaws (2-6, 1-3) pulverized the winless Comets on their home floor by a score of 67-21.

NH head coach David Leichtman's NEIC group was looking to keep the ball rolling and the momentum on an upswing after the first league win of the year was accomplished over the Comets.

Mother Nature – as everyone in the midwest found out – had other plans on Thursday as almost all activities – sports related or not – were cancelled by the blizzard that forced many to stay inside for the holiday season.

That meant New Hampton's planned non-conference date with Kee High last Thursday at home was postponed and more than likely will not be made up. But New Hampton still has a league victory to hang its hat on headed into the second half, where the Chickasaws are working toward a team goal of spreading the offensive wealth around and locking down opponents on defense.

The number one way to attain that goal according to Leichtman is to focus on what his team can control and that's the quality of their play. Worrying about what the opponent is trying to do – although necessary at times – is not the focal point at this juncture of the season.

"We're worried about Chickasaw basketball. That's our No. 1 worry is our ourselves and how we can push ourselves and make ourselves better," said Leichtman. "The practice in the lead-up to Charles City was more about us taking care of ourselves."

New Hampton took that mantra to heart versus the Comets right off the bat. NH exploded for a first-quarter advantage of 26-2.

"This game was one of those games when you really saw how good we can be," said Leichtman.

Slow start dearly costs New Hampton boys in NEIC defeat

Charles City jumps out to big advantage early in 69-50 win over the Chickasaws

Ryan Rausch knows his New Hampton basketball team can make a run come postseason time.

The task at hand in the foreseeable future for his Chickasaws is to make one during the regular season.

New Hampton ran into a brick wall at Charles City last week Tuesday. The Comets played their best game of the season as they rolled to a convincing 69-50 victory in New Hampton's fourth NEIC contest of the still young season.

New Hampton swept CC last year, but not this time around as the Comets repeatedly worked for rebounds and succeeded in that effort against the shorter Chickasaws.

"We came out flat and got killed on the glass – just killed. I warned the guys the day before that if we didn't block out against an ultra-athletic Charles City team, we would get run out of the gym," said Rausch.

Charles City, 5-2 overall and 2-1 in league play, outrebounded New Hampton 36-25.
