Former nurse wears a number of ‘hats’ at funeral home

what I’m doing today are two completely different things, but it’s amazing to me how similar they are. They’re both about being there for people.”

Today’s Tribune includes our annual Women in the Workplace special section, where the newspaper tells stories of area women who excel at their jobs and make contributions to their communities.

And Connie Njus’ story is a unique one — one that is filled with warmth and compassion.

GROWING UP IN New Hampton, the youngest of Bill and Marlene Weigel’s eight children, Njus knew whatever career path she took had to fulfill her desire to help others.

She attended St. Joseph Community School for eight years before transferring to New Hampton High School, where she was a member of the Class of 1984.

She thought about becoming a physical therapist, but she wasn’t sure if she wanted to spend that much time in school, so when she headed to the University of Iowa, Njus made the decision to go into nursing.

“I knew I wanted to go into the medical field because of my passion to help people,” she said. “I guess, for me, it was my calling.”

And she thrived in it, too. After graduating from Iowa, she spent her entire career in Rochester, Minnesota, where she worked for the Mayo Clinic, mostly at St. Marys Hospital — first in the cardiac surgery intensive-care unit for five years and then as a physician extender for the next eight years. The first one is easy — not the job itself but the explanation.

“At the bedside in the ICU, we were trying to keep people alive,” she said. “It was, yes, fast-paced and sometimes, yes, a heartbreaking job, but I enjoyed it and found it very fulfilling.”

But a physician extender? What exactly is that?

“Basically, I worked closely with three cardiac surgeons, managing their patients’ post surgical and follow up care. I was given a lot of autonomy in this role under the doctor’s supervision. This was another job I thoroughly enjoyed.”

In the early 2000s, however, the Mayo Clinic was transitioning their extenders into nurse practitioner and physician assistant roles, and instead, Njus decided to go back to school to become a nurse anesthetist.

“When asked at my 15-year class reunion what I was doing nowadays,” she said with a laugh, “I joked with them that I was studying to be a professional gas-passer. ... My anesthesia practice gave me great satisfaction through to my retirement. I worked with some wonderful people. Really, that was the case for my entire nursing career. I have no regrets, not a single one, about choosing nursing.”

IN SOME WAYS, though, it was a grueling career because Njus basically spent decades commuting from New Hampton to Rochester. She and her husband, Dennis, had long talked about retiring earlier, rather than later, and when COVID-19 hit, Njus explored her options.

“I met with our financial planner, and got the go-ahead,” she said, “and I thought, ‘You know what? I’m going to do this.’ I loved my career, but I was ready.”

Her husband, who works at Bodensteiner, hasn’t taken the retirement plunge yet, but then again, neither has his wife.

Her last official day with Mayo was on February 1, 2021, and her first day at Hugeback-Johnson was on Feb. 1, 2021. Although, to be fair, Njus did have some vacation “built up” so it wasn’t like she traded her scrubs in for her funeral home attire.

“Anyone who knows Connie knows she is just so genuine,” Hugeback said. “There’s no question in my mind that her nursing career would transition to what we do because it’s really about caring for people. Connie cares.”

And just what does she do in her second career?

“That was the first question I had,” Njus said with a smile, “and it’s been a work in progress. I would say my priority is to help families go through the death process.

“It’s so hard to say goodbye to the ones you loved — I went through it with my parents — and I guess I hope my families here know that I’m here to lean on, to help in any way I can. I want to share the comfort with other families that was given to my family.”

Njus often sits in with one of Hugeback-Johnson’s funeral home directors — Bryan and Andy Hugeback, Johnson, or Anthony Hable — when they meet with families. She helps make and fulfill arrangements for the celebration of life. She assists families in personalizing the visitation room. She is a facilitator for the local GriefShare support that meets both in the spring and fall.

“Anything they need, that’s my job,” she said. “Family is my priority.”

CONNIE AND DENNIS Njus never had children, but she has a slew of nieces and nephews.

“Trust me, I’m the fun aunt,” she said with a laugh, “or at least, I’m pretty sure they will say that.”

Unlike her days at Mayo, she doesn’t have a set schedule. At Hugeback-Johnson funeral home, if she’s needed and she’s available, she answers the call.

“Some weeks, it’s crazy busy,” she said, “and then it might be a week or two of almost nothing. I’m OK with that.”

She loves to travel — evening drives in the countryside with Dennis; longer trips with her “traveling partners” — and many road trips to Green Bay to see her beloved friends and Packers.

That’s a plus for Johnson who may bleed green and gold. His brother-in-law, the younger Hugeback, who is a Minnesota Vikings’ fan, laughed when asked about Njus Packer fandom.

“I thought we should fire her right away,” Hugeback said, with a laugh before turning serious. “I think her biggest strength is her wanting to help people. Her past job was helping people, and you can tell. She’ll do anything for the families she works with.”

NJUS IS NOW 20 months into her second career, and that caring attitude remains her No. 1 asset, her co-workers say.

Like any new job, there’s a learning curve — one that she rode throughout her 30-plus years as a nurse.

“You’re always learning in any job you do,” she said, “or at least, that’s how I look at it. One thing here is that the biggest challenge when people are grieving is to not take things personally. Just as it was as a nurse, this job can be very humbling. My goal is to always try to meet the needs of the family first.”

Before the interview ended, Njus was asked one final question: Did she make the right decision to accept the offer made by the funeral home back in the winter of 2021?

The answer came quickly.

“No regrets whatsoever,” she said. “I get to keep helping people. That’s what I’ve wanted to do my entire life, and, yes, sometimes it’s hard to watch my friends, our families, go through what they’re going through, but hopefully, in some small way, we — and I really mean that because this is totally a team effort — are helping them through it the best we can.”

An unsinkable ship
Our faith will carry our church through these troubled times

Some will remember one of Garrison Keillor’s “News from Lake Wobegon.”

Pastor Ingqvist was hosting the local pastors for a seminar at Lake Wobegon Lutheran Church in small town Minnesota. Afterward, they went for a dinner cruise of hot dogs on Wally’s new pontoon boat.

Keillor described the scene: 24 Lutheran pastors, in earth tones and Hush Puppies, all trying not to stand too close together on a pontoon on the verge of capsizing. All of a sudden a few of the pastors moved to the stern, and then the over-correction on the bow side caused eight of them to be fully immersed in the lake.

Then the displacement dumped the remaining 16 off the back. Thankfully, the water was only five feet deep as the 24 pastors stood there for a moment of silence, none of them knowing exactly what to do next. Wally had only recently christened the pontoon, naming it after his late mother.

Living in these days of uncertainty we could re-naming it: “2020-2022.” These years have felt as unstable as Wally’s pontoon, with dramatic swings, corrections and sometimes over-corrections.

It feels like some of our friends have fallen off the bow and the rest of our friends off the stern. But all of us have lost our balance, and all of us are wet, and none of us know what to do next.

Symbolically, the church is a boat. The “nave” is from the Latin word navis, translated ship or boat. Luther used this image in the Large Catechism when he talks about the strong promises made to us in our baptism as an “unsinkable ship.”

I recently read that the Queen Mary was a luxury liner with an average of three passengers for every room. During World War II, the ship was transformed into troop transport and averaged 12 passengers for every room. Same ship, totally different configuration!

This is a time great upheaval economically and socially. Many Christian writers have called what’s happening in the church in America, a “fracturing” and a “sorting.” It is leaving many people in the pew and the pulpit wondering if they even belong in their congregation anymore.

Many have left or feel like leaving. Many of those who haven’t left, have voted with their lack of congregational involvement. Attendance at worship and financial support in many congregations has suffered. There are times and seasons, times to sort and times to stay.

The church world-wide needs stability people during this time of upheaval. Those persons will speak the best on what their neighbor does or says. They will season their words with salt. They will add the light of their flickering baptismal candle to the other smoldering wicks that God promises not to extinguish.

Even though the furniture on the pontoon might be re-arranged and what used to be stable now feels topsy-turvy, God’s promise remains: “I will build by church, and the gates of hell will not prevail against it (Matthew 16:18).

Jesus’ church is not going to sink, but it will be equipped differently for different seasons.

On the wall of my office are the words of one of my favorite hymns, “Jesus, Savior, Pilot Me.”

“Jesus, Savior, pilot me over life’s tempestuous sea;
Unknown waves before me roll, hiding rock and treacherous shoal;
Chart and compass come from thee.
Jesus, Savior, pilot me.”

Do not be afraid, little flock, for your Father has been pleased to give you the kingdom.

Should You Own Bonds When Interest Rates Rise?

As you know, the stock market has attracted a lot of attention – and for good reason, as we’ve seen considerable volatility almost from the beginning of the year. But if you own bonds, or bond-based mutual funds, you might also have some concerns. However, it’s important to understand why bonds should continue to be an important part of your portfolio.

To begin with, let’s look at what’s happened with bond prices recently. Inflation has heated up, leading the Federal Reserve to raise interest rates to help “cool off” the economy. And rising interest rates typically raise bond yields — the total annual income that investors get from their “coupon” (interest) payments. Rising yields can cause a drop in the value of your existing bonds, because investors will want to buy the newly issued bonds that offer higher yields than yours.

And yet, despite this possible drop in their value, the bonds you own can still help you make progress toward your financial goals. Consider these benefits of bond ownership:

- Income – No matter what happens to the value of your bonds, they will continue to provide you with income, in the form of interest payments, until they mature, provided the issuer doesn’t default — and defaults are generally unlikely with investment-grade bonds (those rated BBB or higher). Your interest payments will remain the same throughout the life of your bond, which can help you plan for your cash flow and spending.
- Diversification – As you’ve probably heard, diversification is a key to successful investing. If you only owned one type of asset, such as growth stocks, and the stock market went into a decline, as has happened this year, your portfolio likely would have taken a big hit — even bigger than the one you may have experienced. But bond prices don’t always move in the same direction as stocks, so the presence of bonds in your portfolio — along with other investments, such as government securities and certificates of deposit — can help reduce the impact of volatility on your holdings. (Keep in mind, though, that by itself, diversification can’t guarantee profits or protect against all losses in a declining market.)

- Reinvestment opportunities – As mentioned above, rising interest rates and higher yields may reduce the value of your current bonds, but this same development may also offer you some favorable reinvestment opportunities. If you own bonds of varying durations — short-, intermediate- and long-term — you should regularly have some bonds maturing. And in an environment such as the current one, you can reinvest the proceeds of your expiring short-term bonds into new ones issued at potentially higher interest rates. By doing so, you can potentially provide yourself with more income. Also, by owning a mix of bonds, you’ll still have the longer-term ones working for you, and these bonds typically (but not always) pay a higher interest rate than the shorter-term ones.

It might not feel pleasant to see the current value of your bonds drop. But if you’re not selling them before they mature, and you take advantage of the opportunities afforded by higher yields, you’ll find that owning bonds can still be a valuable part of your investment strategy.

This article was written by Edward Jones for use by your local Edward Jones Financial Advisor.

Edward Jones. Member SIPC. Before investing in bonds, you should understand the risks involved, including credit risk and market risk. Bond investments are also subject to interest-rate risk such that when interest rates rise, the prices of bonds can decrease, and the investor can lose principal value if the investment is sold prior to maturity.

Food, movie and popcorn event set for Sept. 4 at Iowa Dairy Center

A “Food Trucks & Moo-vie Night on the Farm” will be held at Iowa’s Dairy Center — located just south of Calmar at 1527 Highway 150 South — on Sunday, Sept. 4.

The event, hosted by the Northeast Iowa Dairy & Agriculture Foundation, is a family-friendly event and is open to the public, beginning at 5 p.m. at Iowa’s Dairy Center.

Guests are invited to try a variety of delicious food from local food trucks from 5-8 p.m. At dusk, attendees will be asked to find a place to sit on the lawn to enjoy the movie Barnyard, shown on an outdoor projector screen. The movie will begin around 8 p.m. Free popcorn sponsored by Iowa Corn will be provided with the movie.

Attendees are encouraged to bring their own blankets and lawn chairs for the viewing of the movie. Food Trucks & Moo-vie Night on the Farm is a weather permitting event. Weather updates will be posted on the Food Trucks & Moo-vie Night Facebook event page, along with additional information.

Don’t Quit Your Day Job to perform at Mikkelson Park Sunday evening

The Don’t Quit Your Day Job Big Band will hold its first concert in three years when it plays at Mikkelson Park this Sunday evening.

The concert will begin at 7 p.m. in the band shell at the park.

This is the 28th year the band has played, and one of the highlights of the Aug. 28 concert will be the debut of a new piece Gary Griffin had commissioned for the band to perform in 2020, but it didn’t get the opportunity because of the COVID-19 pandemic.

The rain location for the concert will be the New Hampton Elementary School Auditorium.

Supervisors battle on ambulance issues

AMBULANCE: FROM 1

“I get Mr. Kuhn’s quest for equipment, and I understand that,” he said. “However, you have multiple people from multiple sources with up to 45 years of experience tell you that a lot of this stuff isn’t available but you’re going to hinge your decision on one guy in Iowa Falls that’s never done a consulting gig in the past. Take that into consideration before ... because my offer expires today.”

McGrath also questioned Byrne’s motives in supporting the new equipment that would be built by Life Line Emergency Vehicles, a firm based in Sumner, but bought through a different company — saying that the supervisor from Lawler who had “relations” working for Life Line.

Byrne countered with the fact that the offer was a good one.

“It’s a local company, we have many taxpayers that work there,” the supervisor said. “I mean if there was a company outside Chickasaw County that threw us this kind of deal to get ambulances, that would probably be a viable option, too.”

He said with McGrath’s equipment, “we’ve got no guarantee, we’ve got no warranty, we’ve got nothing.”

Byrne added that company officials had told him that their price was “guaranteed if you ordered by the end of the month ... or probably be about a 9 percent increase if we wait past this month.”

Supervisor Jake Hackman made the motion to buy McGrath’s equipment, saying he was comfortable with basing the purchase on the appraisal made by Kolbet and adding that it was the best way for the county to guarantee it had the equipment it needs to start the service that will include six Chickasaw County cities — Alta Vista, Basset, Fredericksburg, Lawler, New Hampton and North Washington.

As he did a week ago, County Attorney David Laudner expressed concern about the fact that supervisors would be basing their decision on an appraisal that McGrath paid 424-Plus’ Kolbet to provide him.

“I just want to make sure that you guys have all the documentation and more than enough documentation to prove what you’re paying is reasonable,” he said. “... Sooner or later, in some ways you’re going to have to justify what you did, and the more documentation the better off you’re going to be.”

Laudner was quick to point out he wasn’t questioning the credentials of Kolbet, a New Hampton native who has been in the ambulance business for more than 20 years.

When it came down to the vote to purchase McGrath’s equipment, Hackman and Tim Zoll voted for it while Kuhn and Byrne voted against it.

So where does that leave supervisors in their quest for ambulances and equipment so Chickasaw County EMS is up and running by Jan. 1?

After the vote, Laudner asked them what concerned them the most?

“Is the hesitation to vote on Jeremy’s that you want to make sure you have

New auditor takes oath

Sheila Shekleton (left) takes the oath of office from Chickasaw County Magistrate Judge Christine Skilton on Monday, Shekleton’s first day as Chickasaw County’s auditor.

Shekleton was appointed by the Board of Supervisors earlier this month and is replacing Stephanie Mashek, who resigned in July after serving in the position since January 2021.

The new auditor will serve until the results of the November election are canvassed by supervisors.

enough documentation to satisfy me and the private auditor and the federal government or is the hesitation the fact that you want new equipment. ... Those are two different tacks.”

Byrne responded he had two concerns.

“I think it’s what we’re paying for used equipment and two, if we can get new equipment for the same price, why would you not?”

McGrath also said he would be willing to sign a no-compete agreement if the board purchases his equipment and that “maybe wait until next week and see what Steve thinks.”

Kuhn said he would ask Larson for a “full comparison” between McGrath’s offer and his proposal and would also email SafeTech officials to see if they can appraise McGrath’s equipment and how much it would cost the county.

“I think SafeTech is out if it’s going to take two or three weeks,” Zoll said. “We don’t have that time.”

But it wasn’t just equipment that led to rifts between the board members.

Hackman said the county must move ahead with getting a budget set up for the new service.

“When we get a director hired, he or she is going to have some kind of guidelines,” he said. “Like how much money do I have to run this, x amount for the service?”

Hackman also questioned why board members received an email from Kuhn Sunday night, less than 13 hours before Monday’s meeting, but the chairman said he wasn’t “holding on” to information but instead, wanted to make sure he was providing his fellow board members with complete information.

Board members also didn’t agree to appoint a medical director for the new service.

Byrne said he had talked to Dr. Lucas Brinkman, a Fredericksburg physician, who said he would be agreeable to take a paid position with the service, but Hackman wondered if anyone had reached out to doctors at MercyOne New Hampton Medical Center.

When asked how much Brinkman would be paid, Byrne said that he would reach out to him this week, get a price and bring it back to the supervisors this coming Monday.

Darlene Schwickerath, who attended the meeting, said she was confused how the county could use two separate processes to sell the buildings, and County Attorney David Laudner explained that the board has wide latitude on how it sells county-owned property.

“There’s really no restrictions on how you sell property,” said Laudner, who added that the only things the county were required to do is publish a legal notice of its intent to sell the building and hold a public hearing on the sale before supervisors can make a final decision. ... They started a bidding process with that property [the Heritage], but they did not start a bidding process for the East Main property and again, that’s their discretion.”

The Heritage had been home to Inspiring Lives, a mental-health facility, for the past nine years, but the organization and the county couldn’t agree on an lease extension earlier this year.

After Inspiring Lives vacated the property on June 30, supervisors decided to accept bids on the property and held two “open houses” so potential bidders could walk through the building and the grounds.

During an Aug. 8 meeting, Supervisor Jake Hackman expressed his opposition to the sale, but the rest of the board decided to go through with the bidding process, knowing the county had the option to reject all bids.

Now, the county may be looking for a new home for its Veterans Affairs and General Assistance offices, as well as several non-profit organizations who are currently located at 910 E. Main St.

That’s because earlier this month, the board voted 4-1, with Kuhn casting the lone nay vote, to hold a public hearing to consider a $100,000 offer from a company that wants to put up a second Dollar General store on the 0.8-acre property.

Darlene K. Miller, 70

Darlene K. Miller, age 70 of New Hampton, passed away at home on Saturday, Aug. 20, 2022, with her family by her side.

Funeral services for Darlene will be held at 10:30 a.m. on Monday Aug. 29, 2022, at Prairie Lakes Church in New Hampton, with Cory Orr officiating the service.

Burial will be held at a later date.

Visitation will be from 4 to 7 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 28, 2022, at Conway-Markham Funeral Home in New Hampton and will continue at the church one hour prior to the funeral service on Monday.

Online condolences may be left at www.conway-markham-fh.com. Memorials may be directed to the family.

Darlene K was born Nov. 29, 1951, the daughter of Clifford and Onalee (Galli) Brown in Cedar Rapids.

She attended and graduated from Washington High School in Cedar Rapids. After completing her education, Darlene worked as a swim instructor at the YMCA.

She welcomed her children Shane in 1971 and Tonya in 1973. Darlene continued to care for her children.

On Feb. 24, 1978, she met the love of her life, Greg Miller, at Your Place or Mine in Reinbeck. After three days, Darlene was asked to "lock horns" with her new beau. The couple were united in marriage on Aug. 19, 1978, in Cedar Rapids.

The family made their home in Reinbeck. Through various career changes, the family finally settled in New Hampton in 1988. Darlene and Greg worked together raising pigs northwest of town and moved into town after a number of years.

Side by side, they took over management of the Northeast Iowa Swine Improvement Center. In 1991, the family settled at their current location south of town.

Darlene worked at Mr. Z's restaurant in Bassett and Great Plays Daycare and made an impact on everyone's life that she crossed paths with. Many of them will remember Darlene for her automatic answer when asked how she was doing, "I'm blessed and highly favored."

Darlene eventually developed a condition which cost her the majority of her vision and was approached by Gerald Johnson of the New Hampton Lions Club with an opportunity to work with a service dog, "Tages." Darlene and Tages were an exceptional team for 14 years. During that period of time, Darlene was diagnosed with breast cancer and numerous other health conditions.

Her positive attitude and strong faith helped her fight through her 22-year battle with cancer. She was able, however, to have opportunities to spend time with her friends, family and loved ones.

She thoroughly enjoyed traveling, camping and quilt making. Darlene took her last trip in December 2021 to Branson, Missouri, returning home to New Hampton until she was welcomed by God into Heaven on Aug. 20 with her family around her.

Those left to cherish Darlene's memory are her husband, Greg Miller of New Hampton; her children, Shane Burns of Cedar Rapids and Tonya Burke of New Hampton; her grandchildren, Jade (Bronson Schoonover) Halvorson of Fredericksburg, Tanisha Theis of New Hampton, Kody (Savannah Hauglum) Bill of Riceville, and Kolton Bill of Riceville; one great-grandchild and another on the way; her sister, Janice (Dennis) Meyers of Cedar Rapids; her brother, Leslie (Joni) Untiedt of Moberly, Missouri; and several extended family and friends.

She was preceded in death by her parents; grandparents; her three brothers, Keith, Melvin and John; and one sister, Pam.

Lloyd E. Prilipp, 72

Lloyd E. Prilipp, age 72, of Bettendorf, passed away on Wednesday, Aug. 17, 2022, at the VA Hospital in Iowa City.

A Funeral Mass was held at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 23, 2022, at St. John Vianney Church in Bettendorf.

Visitation was held from 4 to 7 p.m. on Monday August 22, 2022, at Weerts Funeral Home.

Inurnment will take place at a later date at the Rock Island National Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers, memorials may be left to the family. Online condolences may be expressed at www.weertsfh.com.

Lloyd was born on May 14, 1950, in Hampton to Virgil and Margery (Morrow) Prilipp.

He attended Hamilton Business College in Mason City, where he met the love of his life, Elaine Kout. They were married on Sept. 4, 1971 in Lawler.

Lloyd proudly served in the United States Navy, serving on the USS Saratoga from 1970-1979. He worked as a computer technician for AT&T for 25 years.

Lloyd was a member of St. John Vianney Church. He was better known by his friends and family as "Sweet and Loveable." He had a quirky sense of humor always showing up to family events dressed in various costumes and disguises to get a laugh out of his family. He was a loving husband, father and grandfather.

Lloyd is survived by his loving wife of 51 years, Elaine; children, Michelle (Tim) Morrison, Christopher (Victoriana) Prilipp, and Anthony (Tiffany) Prilipp; grandchildren, Alexandra, Isabella, Kerrigan, Tessa, Anthony and Savannah; and his sisters, Nancy Moore and Eva Miller.

He is preceded in death by his parents and one brother, Roger.

Dale Edwin Christie, 67

Dale Edwin Christie, age 67 of Cedar Falls, died Thursday, Aug. 18, 2022, at Unity Point Allen Memorial Hospital in Waterloo.

Dale is the brother of Pastor Mike Christie who previously served at the United Methodist Church in Fredericksburg.

The family will be holding a Celebration of Life at a later date. Arrangements are entrusted with Hugeback-Johnson Funeral Home and Crematory in Fredericksburg Online condolences for the Christie family may be left at hugebackfuneralhome.com.

Duane E. Harper, 76

Duane E. Harper, age 76, of Waucoma, passed away on Wednesday, Aug. 17, 2022, with his wife by his side at Country Winds Manor in Cresco.

A memorial service will be held at 10:30 a.m. on Saturday, Aug. 27, 2022, at St. John's Lutheran Church in Stapleton, with Pastor Laurie Ludin-Nelson officiating the service.

Burial will follow at St. John's Cemetery at Stapleton.

There will be a one-hour visitation at the church prior to the memorial service on Saturday, Aug. 27, 2022.

Online condolences may be left at www.conway-markham-fh.com. Memorials may be made to St. Jude's Children's Hospital.

Duane Eugene was born May 12, 1946, the son of Eldon and Fern (Folkerts) Harper in Hoisington, Kansas. He was raised on the Harper Family Century farm in Albert, Kansas. Duane attended school and graduated from Otis High School.

After completing his education, Duane attended Fort Hays State University where he earned his master's degrees in business and accounting.

In 1968, Duane enlisted in the United States Army Reserves. He proudly served his country as a senior drill instructor and achieved the rank of sergeant first class prior to his honorable discharge in 1974.

Upon his return home, Duane began his lifelong profession as an educator as he taught his passion of business.

In 1986, through a chance meeting, Duane bumped into a young, Charleen Dudley. The couple became friends and were united in marriage on March 26, 1988. Duane lovingly welcomed Charleen's children, Elizabeth and Christopher. Together the family welcomed daughters Victoria, Meredith and Monica.

The family has lived in Kansas and Texas and has called Iowa, "home," since 2000 when he accepted a job at Upper Iowa University until his retirement in 2010.

Joan M. Marcatante, 85

Joan M. Marcatante, age 85 of Alta Vista, passed away Wednesday, Aug. 17, 2022, at her daughter's home in Elba, Minnesota, surrounded by her loved ones.

A Celebration of Life service will be held at 5 p.m. Friday, August 26, 2022, at the Hugeback-Johnson Funeral Home and Crematory in New Hampton. Dinner will follow the service at the funeral home.

Friends may greet the family an hour prior to the service at the funeral home.

Online condolences for the Marcatante family may be left at hugebackfuneralhome.com.

Joan was born on Aug. 16, 1937, in New Hampton, the daughter of Jeromy and Alice (Hilsman) White.

Joan moved to Waterloo in 1947 with her mother and sister. She graduated high school from Our Lady Of Victory Academy in Waterloo.

Joan then moved to Chicago, in 1957. There Joan met the love of her life, Frank Marcatante. They married on March 1, 1960, and had 62 wonderful years of marriage together. They raised two daughters, Rosemarie and Katherine.

Joan was a wonderful mother, wife and friend. She enjoyed being a housewife, raising her daughters, and taking care of their home.

Joan also enjoyed sewing and making matching outfits for her daughters.

In 1976 Joan, Frank, and their two daughters moved to her hometown of Alta Vista. Joan then learned how to drive the school bus and drove for many years for the district of New Hampton. Joan also cleaned houses and became lifelong friends with several of her clients.

Joan was a very caring person and enjoyed camping, traveling with her family, knitting, crocheting, gardening, reading, doing search words, puzzles and baking.

Most of all Joan loved spending time with her husband, daughters, grandchildren, great-grandchildren and friends.

One of their favorite places to travel to was the Black Hills. Her favorite music to listen to was Vince Gill.

Joan is survived by her husband, Frank Marcatante; daughters, Rosemarie Kieffer (Gerald and Katherine Marcatante (Steve) Nelson; grandchildren, Nicole Hanna (Jake), Makel Gebel (Will), Nicholas Hanna (Brianna), and Jackelyn Gebel (Corey); eight great-grandchildren, Hailley, Lilley, Amelia, Addison, Annie, Evelyn, Harper and Miley; numerous step-grandchildren and great-grandchildren; and sister, Marie Dedic.

Joan is preceded in death by her father. Jerome; mother Alice White; great-grandchild, Emma; and numerous aunts and uncles.

News Bits From Our Past

Week of Aug. 21 1947 (75 years ago)

- The new heating system for the downtown section of New Hampton is making rapid progress toward the home stretch, since the rain, floods and mud gave way to dry weather and a chance for man and machinery to keep going.
- It looks like the job will be completed this fall before the heat is needed in the downtown section. It is a very big and expensive job. It has caused a lot of inconveniences to those who use the downtown section.
- But like all big and good things, it will be appreciated by the public.
- The proceeds of the picnic given by St. Mary's Church last Sunday amounted to around $2700.
- Between 700 and 800 dinners were served and a nice sum was realized from the concessions and other sources. The money will be applied toward the big building project the parish will undertake before too long.
- 1972 (50 years ago)
- Over 500 area residents attended the Chickasaw County Market Hog Show and Barbeque last Tuesday evening at the Northeast Iowa Training Station near New Hampton.
- The event was sponsored by the Chickasaw County Cooperative Swine Improvement Association, the Vocational Agricultural Departments and the County Extension Services.
- The evening began with a barbeque, followed by the hog show and drawing for prizes. A special guest for the evening was Chickasaw County Pork Queen Kathy Treloar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Treloar of Sumner.
- Deep Rock Station 'N Store: Buy Up To 24 Bottles of Pepsi Cola for a nickel a bottle plus dep. with 10 gallons of gas; 6' Air Mattress, 67 cents; Baseball Glove and Ball, $1.99; Rubber Car Mats, All Sizes and Colors, 1/2 price; Wall Mount U.S. Flag Kit, $2.69; Ladies Straw Hats, FREE, with 10 gallon purchase of gas; Picnic Cooler, 1/2 Gal, Hot 'N Cold, 66 cents.
- 1997 (25 years ago)
- The 1997 Club Championship was played at the New Hampton Golf and Country Club recently. Scott Hogeland came from behind in the final round to beat young Derek Sauser for this third championship shooting 108 for a three-shot win in the 27-hole tournament.
- In the ladies tournament, Karen Anderson fired an 80 to win the crown by six strokes over Diane Nelson in the 18-hole event. This was Anderson's 19th Club Championship.
- In the handicap side of the tournament, the husband and wife duo of Cindy and Al Gilbert bested the field with the net scores of 62 and 60, respectively.
- On Sale at Liddle's Super Valu: Coke, 24 pack, $4.19; Kraft Singles, $1.79 per package; Mayonaise, 2 jars for $3.00; Blue Bonnet Margarine, 2 1 Lb. sticks, 2 for 89 cents; Shaved Ham, $1.79 per Lb.; Lay's Potato Chips, 14 oz. bag, $2.19; Homepride White or Wheat Bread, $1.49; and 3 Piece Chicken Strip Dinner, choice of potato or cole slaw, $3.39.
- 2012 (10 years ago)
- The 2012 farming season has been rough. The drought continues, and Chickasaw County remains classified as suffering through a severe drought.
- But ISU Extension Agronomist Terry Basol is hoping that a turnaround is underway. Rainfall amounts have varied, New Hampton has officially recorded 3.87 inches of precipitation so far this month. For all of August, the area averages 4.76 inches of rainfall.
- About 100 or so dogs attended the annual Spay and Neuter All Pets (SNAP) Doggie Swim. On a cool Sunday dogs of all sizes from New Hampton and the surrounding area gathered for their night at the pool.
- The big winner was SNAP. Gayla Hugeback, one of the organization's board members, said more then $250 was raised and one of the two dogs currently under SNAP's care was adopted.
- 2017 (5 years ago)
- During cross country camp, participants had to run and took some rescue dogs along with them. It was an idea proposed last year to coach Jamie Quass, but it never happened until this year.
- Two dogs from SNAP (Spay Neuter All Pets) organization, and one dog that belonged to an elderly woman, had some running and walking time from the runners, who also gave them some TLC.
- Chickasaw County will have its first complete flood plan map after the Board of Supervisors approved its adaption recently. The map, which was created by the Federal Emergency Management Agency, replaces the 1978 version that contained no information for a portion of the county.
- The biggest change is that it covers the whole county. FEMA is updating the flood plain maps in response to the 2008 flood.

Dem candidates hold rally in Nashua

Franken makes first appearance in the county; Prichard urges candidates to door knock

By Bob Fenske
editor@nhtrib.com

If area Democrats learned anything during a Meet the Senate District 29 Candidates event that was held Saturday afternoon in Nashua, it was this: Door knocking is critical.

That's because current State Rep. Todd Prichard, who is not seeking reelection this fall and who moderated the event, kept bringing it up.

"I think it's critically important to get out there and meet people," he said, "especially in an area like ours. ... Let's be honest, this isn't the most Democratic part of the state, and my district probably leaned red more than blue and I really believe getting out there and knocking on doors, having volunteers do the same, is the reason I won five elections."

So as Prichard introduced the slew of candidates — Admiral Michael Franken, who is running for U.S. Senate; Eric VanLancker, who is running for lieutenant governor; Jenn Wolff, who is running in State Senate District 29; Dene Lundberg, who is running for the Iowa House District 58 seat; and Carissa Froyum, who is running for the House District 57 seat — he made a point to encourage them, especially those running for the Legislature, to hit the pavement and walk the streets of their districts.

About three dozen residents turned out for the event, which was highlighted by an appearance by Franken.

The retired three-star admiral is running against longtime U.S. Sen. Charles Grassley, who is seeking an eighth term in the Senate, and while he knows his task is daunting, he told the crowd that Iowa deserves a change.

"What we're seeing more and more is that what voters want to talk about is the person and not the party," he said, "and in my opinion, my opponent is all about the Republican Party. We have to get away from this 'Trumpism' and start being civil to each other, start working together."

It was a common theme throughout the event, and those running for the Iowa Legislature emphasized their support for public education, more mental health services for rural Iowa and the urgency of being able to have a buffer against Gov. Kim Reynolds.

"Public money should only go to public schools," said Wolff, who is facing State Rep. Sandy Salmon in November. "I will say it over and over again; if we don't elect Democrats, they're going to win on vouchers and that would be a tragedy."

School Board bets natural gas prices will go up

District locks in its price for the year; board appoints three student members

By Bob Fenske
editor@nhtrib.com

The New Hampton School Board last week "rolled the dice," and Superintendent Jay Jurrens believes the board made a good bet.

Granted, Jurrens isn't making any guarantees but he does believe the board made a good call when it voted 4-1 to join a local government risk pool for natural gas.

Basically, it works like this. New Hampton will spend a little more than $217,000 for natural gas during the next year. That figure is locked in, no matter what happens to the cost of natural gas this coming winter.

"I don't think I've ever seen natural gas [prices] go down in the winter," Jurrens said, "and everything we're hearing is that prices could really go up, especially after the election this year. It was a tough decision, but I told them, if they go up like people are talking, you will look like geniuses, but yes, we're taking a chance."

The risk pool takes a district's average use of natural gas over the past several years and then adds 25 percent to come up with an annual expense.

The lone dissenting vote came from board member Tim Denner.

"I understand it," Jurrens said, "but I think it's worth a try and if it doesn't work, we're only obligated to one year. This would be something we have to vote on every year so for one year, it's worth a try."

Also during last Monday's meeting the School Board made its decision on its student board member of the upcoming year, and actually, it should be board members.

Three seniors — Catherine Pethoud, Aydin Ries and Quinten Reicks — applied for the non-voting position on the board, and after all three went through their interviews, the voting board members decided to appoint all three.

"First, it was going to be a very difficult decision to appoint just one," Jurrens said, "and second, all three of these students are really busy. The board just felt they could all bring something to the table. It's a new situation, but we're excited to have all three on board."

Jurrens said the board approval of personnel items also created, at least for him, a new situation.

That's because the district now has three "temporary" teachers — Barb Havlik, who will teach elementary special education instructor; Linda Wright, who will teach high school science; and Al Nielsen, who will take over industrial technology for both the high school and middle school.

Unlike typical teacher contracts that cover an entire school year, the temporary teachers have signed contracts for just the first semester.

"I've never had a temporary contract and now we have three," Jurrens said, "and it's becoming more and more common. For those who don't think there's a teacher shortage out there, my rebuttal is the temporary contracts you're seeing these days."

Cedar Valley Hospice to hold butterfly release fundraiser

Celebrate someone you love at the 11th annual Cedar Valley Hospice Release and Remember fundraiser on Sunday, Sept. 11. This no-cost, meaningful event draws hundreds of supporters to the banks of the Cedar River for an afternoon that has become a tradition of honoring our family, friends and neighbors in an extraordinary way. A short program and the release of 1,000 monarch butterflies will take place at 2:30 p.m. at the Waterloo RiverLoop Amphitheatre. Food (while supplies last), kids activities and live music with Flatland Ridge will be from 1 to 3 p.m. Community members are encouraged to dedicate one or several butterflies as a tribute to someone important to them. For each donation of $25, a butterfly will be dedicated in their honor. Tribute names will be displayed at the event if the donation is received by Aug. 26. Release & Remember T-shirts are also for sale for $15 at any Cedar Valley Hospice location (excluding the Hospice Home) and at the event while supplies last. At the event, wheelchair ushers will be on hand at the handicap accessible entrance to the Amphitheatre near the Phelps Youth Pavilion where extra handicap parking is also available. For more information or to dedicate a butterfly, visit www.cvhospice.org.

Matt Kuhn, Chair of the Chickasaw County Board of Supervisors, was in attendance to explain two possibilities that may occur with the garage space that currently houses the ambulances. First, the Chickasaw County Ambulance Council (CCAC) may request to end the lease agreement without the required 180 day notice. If Chickasaw County assumes responsibility of the county ambulance service, the CCAC may no longer need to lease the garage space. Second, Kuhn suggested there is a possibility that Chickasaw County may want to sign a lease agreement with the City of New Hampton for garage space if the County does not have space to house the vehicles after January 1, 2023. The council was inclined to be cooperative with both scenarios.

Public Works Director Casey Mai requested council input on which city funds will be used to pay for the dead tree/stump removal project with Wilson Tree Service in the amount of $121,500. Mai requested that the Road Use Tax not fund the entire project, he suggested he can budget a portion of the expense from the current budget. Mai is concerned with the uncertainty of unexpected expenses for streets that will deplete the RUT fund. Council member McDonald was not inclined to take funds from the General Fund. Moved by McDonald, seconded by Denner; that the Road Use Tax fund be solely used for the payment of the Wilson Tree Service contract of $121,500, be approved. Ayes--Six. Nays--None. Absent--None. Motion Carried.

The Committee as a Whole met at 6:00 pm to discuss the possible addition of a public works employee. The Committee recommended to PDW Mai to suspend his research until later in November, 2022. The Mayor requested this item be put on the November 21, 2022 council agenda.

Mayor Schwickerath requested the appointed committee of Speltz, Fisher, Clemens and himself, meet on August 22, 2022 at 5:30 pm in the Economic Development office to discuss the LOST ballot request on November 8, 2022.

City Clerk Clemens notified the council that she received an email today from the IDOT requesting that a sign permit needs to be completed to install new signage at the intersection of Linn and Main for the 'No Right Hand Turn on Red'. The signs were installed last week. The signs will need to be changed to comply with code.

Moved by Denner, seconded by Fisher; that the meeting adjourn at 7:38 p.m. Ayes--Six. Nays--None. Absent--None. Motion carried.

SEASONED CHICKASAWS

VETERAN SQUAD AIMS TO TAKE NEW HAMPTON TO THE UNI-DOME

By BOB FENSKE

editor@nhtrib.com

Flash back to a year ago when New Hampton took a team that was as green as a rain-soaked lawn to Monona for its season opener.

"We didn't really know what we were doing," senior Brady Speltz said. "We had like three or four guys who had played varsity before, and it looked like it for a while. This year, it's a lot different. We have a ton of experience, and we know what we're getting into."

The Chickasaw quarterback isn't wrong.

New Hampton may not be the deepest team heading into the 2022 season, but the Chickasaws' roster is loaded with young men who can be called veterans.

Coach Scott Frerichs' team welcomes back 24 letterwinners and a slew of starters on both sides of the ball, and they're ready, unlike a year ago, to hit the gridiron at full speed.

"It's been a while since we had this many lettermen back," said Frerichs, who is entering his 30th year at the helm of New Hampton's football program, "and no coach is ever going to argue with having experience. I think it's looking pretty good, but obviously, we have a lot of work to do and improvement to make to be where we want to be at the end of the season."

Make no mistake about it, though, the Chickasaws are heading into '22 with high expectations. After dropping their first two games last fall, they won five of their next six games to earn a share of the Class 2A, District 3 title with Clear Lake and Osage.

Folks around the state have noticed. In the first major rankings of the season, New Hampton is ranked eighth in Class 2A by the Des Moines Register, despite losing a small but talented senior class that included all-state receiver Drake Wemark and all-state lineman Jacob Burgart.

"We do have some holes to fill, no question," Frerichs said. "Drake, Jacob, Mason [Lane] played a really solid quarterback for us, and really that wasn't a big class but they all contributed to a district championship team."

Still, there's a lot in Frerichs' cupboard. Start with the five all-district selections — junior running back/linebacker Braden McShane, senior offensive lineman Logan Peterman, senior running back/linebacker Isaac Howe, senior fullback/linebacker Ben Tenge and senior defensive back Evan Knowlton. Throw in two all-district honorable selections in junior lineman Gatlin McCumber and Speltz plus a host of other returning starters and the Chickasaws appeared prime to make another playoff run this fall.

Start with the defense, where McShane, Tenge and Howe were the Chickasaws' three leading tacklers a year ago.

"They're all really good linebackers," Frerichs said. "They have a nose for the football, good instincts and run well. That's what you want in any linebacker."

Up front, New Hampton welcomes back two starters in McCumber and classmate Kam Josephson and the secondary's experience will be provided by Knowlton and Speltz.

"Just having that experience is huge for us," Tenge said. "The thing about going to varsity football is it's just so much quicker and maybe it took us a while last year to get that. But we're ready this year because we've been through it."

SEE NH FOOTBALL, 17

Ready to make a run

Chickasaws welcome back bevy of talented volleyball players

By KELLY TERPSTRA
sports@nhtrib.com

Plain and simple. cut and dry, however you want to put it ... the New Hampton volleyball team is good.

Just how good? That is the question. Jess Geerts, starting her 17th season this fall as the leader of the Chickasaw program, returns a boatload of quality contributors in 2022.

Nine returning letterwinners may be the most key returnees she's had over the years establishing her quality Northeast Iowa squad that played in the state tournament for the first time ever in 2019.

"We're pretty deep. We have a lot of experience coming back," said Geerts. "We're excited to finally have depth and letterwinners coming back because usually it's a couple. I don't remember the last time we've had this many returning."

The Iowa Girls High School Athletic Union released its pre-season rankings for Class 3A on Monday and the Chickasaws are ranked No. 8. New Hampton went 24-11 a season ago and lost to Vinton-Shellsburg in three games in the Class 3A regional semifinals.

On paper, New Hampton could be as good as any in 3A and it sure doesn't hurt that the Chickasaws play in the rugged NEIC. Waverly-Shell Rock (44-8) won the league last year and finished state runner in Class 4A to the Western Dubuque Bobcats. Decorah finished the year 28-7 and lost to the Bobcats in the 4A regional championship.

Geerts and her Chickasaws know full well not to count their chickens before they hatch, which is another way to say play with a humble spirit and never underestimate anyone.

"We don't want to be too overconfident or anything. We still obviously have a lot to work on," said Geerts.

Junior middle/outside hitter Marissa Cahoy leads the pack for the Chickasaws. The 5-11 jumping jack was hard to stop as evident by her 294 kills on to the hardwood. Cahoy was honorable mention all-state last year as a sophomore.

"She plays a lot of volleyball and plays year-round," said Geerts.

Along with Cahoy, junior setter Molly Wegner was a first team all-NEIC selection. She led the Chickasaws with 479 assists and is a stable presence in Geerts' lineup that could feature a nine or 10-girl rotation.

Carlee Rochford, one of nine seniors on Geerts' roster, played a large portion of the season in the middle last year but will predominantly be featured near the net on the outside. Her explosiveness near the net will be a key asset for New Hampton. Rochford, arguably the best all-around athlete in the NEIC, racked up 118 kills last year. Look for those numbers to increase dramatically this fall.

"What she brings to the table is just her drive to want to be successful and win," said Geerts. "She's a good leader."

Also providing pop and fire-power near the net is junior Hailee Pesek (right side hitter). The lefty rocketed down 100 kills her sophomore season. Chickasaw senior Kandice Eggerichs (S/MH) is a valuable Swiss Army knife that can play multiple positions for New Hampton. She accumulated 89 kills and can play almost anywhere on the court.

"Kandice is kind of like our utility player," said Geerts. "We're super fortunate that she can set. She can play right side, she can play middle, she can play outside," said Geerts. "Not a lot of teams have that."

Returning letterwinners Alivya Wisner (Sr., DS/L), Jenna Tank (Sr., DS/L) and Paige Steinlage (Jr., S/RS) are also key components of the NH roster. Wisner and Tank will help fortify the back row for the Chickasaws.

NH junior Claire Geerts (L/OH) led the Chickasaws in digs (252) and aces (30). She's currently dealing with an injury but the NH head coach said she could be back on the court by October.

Chickasaw senior Elaina Rosonke and sophomore Braelyn Rosonke will add height to the New Hampton lineup and should be reliable spark plugs in the middle that can fire away at defenses to soften them up. The pair are cousins. Taylor Ries, a sophomore libero and defensive specialist, has also been a bright spot for New Hampton according to Geerts.

Seniors Mallory Cleveland, Koryn Lane, Lydia Olson and junior Jenna Heeren will also vie for playing time once the season warms up.

While there's considerable preseason hype surrounding her squad via praise from various media publications and news outlets, Geerts prefers to lay low if at all possible. It may not take long for New

Hampton to have a target on its back if the Chickasaws can start piling up the wins like many pundits think they can. "I personally would rather lay under the radar," said Geerts. "At the end of the season it's to your advantage to be ranked high because the Union (Iowa Girls High School Athletic Union) does a nice job of pairing people up to try to get the top eight teams there."

The "there" in that quote is the state tournament, which is now held at the Xtream Arena in Coralville after last year's state tournament crowned victors in Johnson County. The state volleyball meet had been held in the Alliant Energy PowerHouse in Cedar Rapids since 1991.

"We're just looking forward to a great season," said Geerts.

CHICKASAWS LOOK TO BREAK THROUGH AND SEND TEAMS TO STATE MEET

By KELLY TERPSTRA
sports@nhtrib.com

Even in spirit, Dylan Usher is still having an impact on the New Hampton cross country program.

The two-time state competitor for New Hampton is no longer running for head coach Jamie Ohrt’s Chickasaws, as he graduated this past summer. Usher finished off his career in fine fashion at Fort Dodge last October with a 20th-place showing at the state meet held at Lakeside Golf Course.

Usher’s work ethic and overall impact has made a lasting impression on the current roster of Chickasaws — who are hungry to get back to the state meet.

“A lot of them — seeing Dylan run around town the last how many years — they kind of wanna be that next kid,” said Ohrt. “He kind of inspired them to work really hard.”

This time the New Hampton boys and girls teams want to run in the grueling race at state instead of watching from the sidelines as spectators and fans.

“I would like to send both teams. The really cool thing about this group of kids — and I have motivated kids every year — but I’ve never had this many motivated kids on one team. It’s

Trojans welcome new coach

Balk takes over Turkey Valley team with plenty of experience

By Kelly Terpstra
sports@nhtrib.com

To get to know Turkey Valley volleyball coach Shelby Balk, one must first scan her resume and run through her list of accomplishments. That could take some time, as the military veteran has an impressive track record of serving her country and helping others stay healthy and pain free. But it's her dedication to a sport that she wants to keep successful in Jackson Junction that may also go a long way toward endearing herself to a Trojan fan base that supports its athletics with a dedicated devotion.

It's been a whirlwind last couple of months for the new leader of the Trojan volleyball program.

She married her husband — Bobby Balk — last month. She's also settling into her new job — which is to guide a program that was under the direction of co-coaches, Jackie Novotny and Tammy Vrzak, last fall.

Balk, who took over the Trojan volleyball program just two weeks ago, is a United States Army veteran that was deployed overseas to Afghanistan in 2012. After four years of active duty, Balk remained in the Army Reserve for four more years. After returning home from active duty, Balk returned to school and earned a bachelor's degree in nursing. She's currently an operating room registered nurse at Regional Health Services of Howard County.

"It has been the most rewarding, yet challenging coach position, and I love it!" said Balk, a 2006 Marshalltown High School grad.

Balk coached youth volleyball fundamentals at the Marshalltown YMCA from 2014-2016. She has also guided youth AAU volleyball. Then last fall she instructed and guided fourth and fifth graders in the Turkey Valley Volleyball League.

Fundamentals, as you could imagine, are what Balk is stressing early on with players. Balk says a successful program starts at the lowest grade levels.

"I was super nervous about moving up to the high school level, but reality is that it is all fundamentals," said Balk. "Knowing the basics of volleyball will only aid in increasing the competitiveness. Every player should be able to know how to successfully pass, set and hit the ball. This makes an effective, versatile team."

Balk inherits a team that went 17-16 a year ago and lost to St. Ansgar in the Class 1A quarterfinals of regional play. The Trojans graduated setter Josie Weber, a unanimous Upper Iowa All Conference first team selection. Honorable mention all-conference hitter Kourtney Schmidt also graduated, but there is plenty to like about this current TV roster.

Back this year — pigtailed and all — is junior Adriana Tiedt. Tiedt transferred from Sumner-Fredericksburg in 2021 and made an immediate impact near the net as a sophomore. She riddled defenses with her powerful right arm en route to 240 kills. Tiedt is an accomplished jump server and was second in the league in aces (50). That led the UIC and she'll obviously be a focal point for defenses that will try to stop her aggressive and exciting style of play.

"Adriana brings so much potential offensively and defensively. She is one of the most competitive players on the team and continues to drive those around her to be competitive," said Balk.

Trojan seniors starters Clare Courtney (libero), Brianna Busta (middle) and junior Halle Weber (defensive specialist) will also help right the ship this fall. Halle Weber was second team all-conference as a sophomore and Courtney was selected on the UIC honorable mention team. Halle Weber led the team in digs (319) and Courtney managed 261 digs. Busta hit 96 kills over the net — second best on the team.

"Brianna is an aggressive hitter. She always has a positive attitude and shows gratitude towards everyone," said Balk. "Clare and Halle are the most effective defensive players separately and together. They have been playing together for a few years and that has created a strong, trustful relationship. Watching them play is so rewarding because they are so aggressive and can control the ball." TV senior Jacqlyn Schmitt (right side hitter) is also another pivotal contributor for the Trojans. The lefty worked her offensive game to the tune of 75 kills in 2021.

Trojan freshman Maici Weber, Halle's little sister, had a tremendous season this past summer on the softball diamond. She's looking to continue that incredible start to her varsity athletic career out on the hardwood. She'll play setter and right side hitter. Maici Weber, like Tiedt last season, could be an underclassmen that may be tough to stop for opposing defenses.

"Maici is quick to think and analyze the situation on the court to set the best hitter at the right moment. Maici is always willing to work on improving her hitting and setting game, which makes her a dynamic player," said Balk.

Trojan senior Olivia Snyder (outside hitter), junior Mariah Thronsdon (setter) and sophomore Delaney Busta (middle, right side hitter) are others to watch this season that should provide TV fans with many thrills and big plays.

"I expect their continuous potential to shine throughout the season," Balk added.

What does Balk like about this squad so far? For starters, it sounds like the varsity group is very coachable.

"I love that every day they come to practice, they are willing to learn. They are eager, determined and motivated to be the best," said Balk.

Balk said the team's main focus at the start of the season is learning to play next to one another. Those strong bonds created in August could pay big dividends in October.

"The girls are working on establishing a trusting relationship with those they play next to," said Balk.

As far as X's and O's are concerned, Balk is making sure to get that covered as well before TV opens the season.

"We are ramping up our offense to work on quick sets and back-row attacks. Serving aggressive and defensive coverage has been a major priority," said Balk.

Turkey Valley to have a quartet of runners

By Bob Fenske
editor@nhtrib.com

It's a small squad — and one of the runners is trying to do a "fall double" — yet Turkey Valley cross country coach Sarah Bakula is just as excited at the start of the season as she was a year ago. And a year before that.

"It's always fun to see what kids will do and how far they will go by the end of the year," Bakula said. "It's different. Obviously, we don't have Jalyssa or Cambree anymore, and they were such a big part of our program for so long."

Jalyssa would be Jalyssa Blazek, and Cambree would be Cambree Kruse — the two Turkey Valley runners who competed at the 2021 Class 1A state meet, where Blazek capped her brilliant cross country career with a second-place finish.

The bottom line is the lone returning veteran for the Trojans is Bode Balk, a junior who finished 43rd at the Upper Iowa Conference meet a year. The rest of the squad — junior Russell Nieman and freshmen Morgan Wenthold and Haylee Hanson — are new to the sport, at least at the high school level.

Start with Nieman, who will also play football for the Trojans this fall, but after a solid track season in which he qualified for the Class 1A state meet, Nieman decided to give cross country a try.

"He's got some good goals set, and he's more than willing to put the time into both sports," Bakula said, "so we're going to do what we can to accommodate him."

Asked about the differences between track and cross country, Bakula couldn't help but laugh.

"Well, obviously, we run 5Ks, and track's longest race is the 3,200," she said, "so he's going to run longer. We'll really work on Russell's endurance, but we're also going to make sure we're not wearing him down for either sport."

Meanwhile, Bakula is also excited to welcome the two freshmen girls to the program.

"They had good track seasons, and I think they have great potential," she said of Hanson and Wenthold. "We may not have a lot of kids — OK, we don't — but they're hard workers and they are willing to do the things they need to do to improve."

And although Turkey Valley has just four runners this season, it doesn't necessarily mean the entire quartet will run in varsity races.

"I think one of the things I want to do is help them get acclimated to a new sport," Bakula said, "and I also want them to gain confidence. If that means running in some JV races, that's what we'll do. The goal — just like it was for people like Jalyssa, Cambree and Jaycie [Byrne, a 2021 graduate] — hasn't changed. We want to get better and faster as the season progresses."

PLENTY OF FIREPOWER

TURKEY VALLEY FOOTBALL LOOKS TO REACH EVEN LOFTIER HEIGHT

By Kelly Terpstra
sports@nhtrib.com

Turkey Valley has the horses. Now it's just a matter of letting these ponies run.

Opponents may want to hold on tight to the saddle, because trying to tame Mark Scott's powerhouse squad in Jackson Junction might induce a few bumps and bruises should one try to pull back on the reins.

An eight-second ride might be wishful thinking.

The Turkey Valley football team ran roughshod through its regular season schedule last fall en route to a perfect 8-0 record. That unblemished 2021 regular season campaign was highlighted by a thrilling double-overtime thriller over the perennial-power Dons of Don Bosco. TV's 48-42 win over the 8-Man stalwart was the first time the Trojans had ever defeated Don Bosco.

TV's dream of another trip on to the carpet of the UNI-Dome and the state semifinals was stopped short in the second round of the playoffs against rival Kee High in 2021. The Hawks outlasted TV in a wild affair, 42-40. TV was vying to crack the semis and play in Cedar Falls at the University of Northern Iowa's indoor home stadium for the second time in school history after playing there in 2019.

New dawn, new day.

That page has been turned.

"Well, that game was last year, so it's in the past. So we don't really dwell on that a whole lot, to be honest," said Scott.

Scott begins his 20th season at the helm of TV this fall and he has weapons back across the board on each side of the ball.

At least on paper, Turkey Valley appears like they have the firepower to win quite a few games. Scott said a key factor as to whether or not that will happen is his squad needs to remain healthy and not buy into the preseason hype.

"As long as we keep focus and don't get too big of heads - we've got to get better and better as we go," said Scott.

While the Associated Press does not release preseason rankings, the Cedar Rapids Gazette has TV tabbed at No. 8 in its preseason 8-Man poll.

"People may not understand, to win consistently in this game you have to score 45 to 60 points and be able to," said Scott. "With the kids we've got coming back, I think we'll be able to do that."

TV senior quarterback Noah Hanson, a third-team all-state selection last year, is Scott's signal caller and he's a treat to watch. Hanson can both run and pass - which is almost a necessity if teams want to win on a regular basis in the smallest of the seven classes in the state of Iowa.

"He had a nice season last year," said Scott. "He makes good decisions and he throws a nice ball. This year he's probably going to run it a little more than he did last year. The kids have confidence in him. They know he can do the job."

Hanson passed for 751 yards and threw 13 touchdowns. He rushed for almost 500 yards and was one of the better, if not the best, punt returners in eight-man football.

TV will have to fill the void of losing first team all-state performers Marcus Herold (RB/LB) and offensive lineman Collin Kleppe to graduation.

Will Turkey Valley's offense look a little different with Herold and Kleppe gone?

"It is and it isn't," said Scott. "Year in and year out we'll run our play we call our bread and butter and it runs through the fullback. When we're consistently winning games, that play has to work. With Oliver (Schmitt) back there, it will work just fine. We run it a lot. Teams know it's coming but you still gotta be able to stop it."

Schmitt, a 6-0, 180-pound junior, will replace Herold at fullback and also play at the linebacker position. He cranked out 240 yards on the ground in 2021 and contributed with 34.5 tackles on defense.

"He doesn't run quite like Marcus, but he brings a different dynamic to it. He's a good back to get through the hole. He does a good job of avoiding getting tackled," said Scott.

Herold was a ground-and-pound punishing back for TV. His physical style of play allowed the Trojans to grind out drives and wear down defenses - only to catch opponents sleeping by letting Hanson run out of the pocket or connect through the air with his tall and athletic receiving targets in the passing game.

Herold rushed for 1,171 yards and scored 24 rushing touchdowns. He also tied for the team lead in total tackles (55) along with Dylan Reicks.

Reicks was another all-stater and dangerous weapon for TV that also graduated.

The cupboard is far from bare, though. Back this year are athletic senior offensive weapons Chase Hayek (6-2) and Calvin Bodensteiner (6-3). They'll catch passes and do a lot of different things in Scott's offense. While Bodensteiner and Hayek's numbers aren't eye-popping, that's partly because they were playing behind Reicks (426 yards rushing, 224 yards receiving) and an all-district standout in Garrett Kurtenbach (240 yards receiving), who was also a senior last fall for the Trojans.

Perhaps TV's most gifted athlete is senior running back Carson Busta, who is also a returning starter at cornerback along with Bodensteiner. Busta can do a little bit of everything and rushed for 251 yards.

"He's a good high school back. He's quick. He reads well. He catches the ball," said Scott.

Burke Busta, a junior, also has a high motor and will see his fair share of carries at his backfield position in an offense that should spread the ball around quite a bit.

Senior Treyton Hulbert is a multiple-year starter at center and will also try to plug holes on the defensive line.

Trojan senior Ryan Franzen, who stands an imposing 6-7, is a star defensive end that is back for Scott's squad as well.

Scott projects his starting guards as seniors Troy Schmitt and Brady Fischer. Trojan seniors Arin Rausch, Mauricio Tinajero and Hulbert will rotate on the interior defensive line.

TV junior Caleb Kurtenbach will backup Hanson at quarterback and is a returning letter-winner. Trojan junior guards - Russell Nieman and Braylen Byrne - are also returning letter-winners.

One drawback to TV's schedule is that Rockford has been taken off of it. The Warriors will not compete on the varsity level this year as low numbers precipitated the move.

That means TV loses a game and will play just seven games in the regular season (five district matchups).

"Every game will be big when you start district. You can't let somebody sneak up and knock you off because you didn't play well," said Scott.

TV, which went 9-1 a year ago, opens the season this Friday at Community Dreams Field in Ed-Co. The rematch and showdown against Don Bosco is slated the following week and will be played in Jackson Junction.

Chickasaws hope busy summer pays off in fall

NH FOOTBALL: FROM 12

New Hampton’s offense, meanwhile, has even more starting experience returning. McShane ran for 1,248 yards on 213 carries, caught nine passes for 158 yards and was 2-for-2 passing for 96 yards as he accounted for 15 touchdowns while Howe added 137 yards in 34 carries and Tenge had 118 yards on just 12 attempts. “We want to run the football, but at the same time, we want to be as balanced as we can be,” Frerichs said. “We have some nice backs and a lot of lineman back so that’s a positive.” Up front, New Hampton welcomes back four starters — Peterman, Marshall Zeien, Daniel Orthaus and Logan Fettkether while senior Carsyn Leistikow will be tasked to replace Burgart at center. Peterman is coming off a busy summer in which he attended nine football camps — traveling much of Iowa and hitting camps in Minnesota and Illinois as well. “I feel like it helped me a lot, playing a lot against guys who are going to play college ball,” Peterman said. “The big thing is I learned to move my feet better, and I got a better understanding of the game.” And while Peterman hopes to play beyond the season, his focus is the present, not the future. “All I’m thinking about right now is New Hampton football,” he said, “and helping my team having a great season.” Maybe the biggest unknown heading into the season in the Chickasaws’ passing game; after all, gone are Wemark, who caught 46 passes for 925 yards and 12 touchdowns, and Lane, who took virtually every snap behind center in 2021. But two senior ends — Carter Steinlage and Aiden Roberson — return, and Speltz has looked good in the preseason. And the Chickasaws’ new quarterback may be inexperienced, at least when it comes to varsity quarterbacking, but he’s confident. “I don’t feel any pressure. I just feel super excited,” said Speltz, who joined his teammates for three 7-on-7 tournaments and a couple of camps over the summer. “That helped a lot. We have big goals this year so we knew we had to put the work in to get them.” To get to the playoffs, New Hampton will have to navigate a schedule that includes that opener with MFL-Mar-Mac, which is ranked in Class 1A, and Class 4A Charles City, as well as a district that will be, in a word, competitive. Osage is No. 6 in those Des Moines Register rankings, Clear Lake looks strong again and both Garner-Hayfield-Ventura and Crestwood return plenty of experience. “I like where we’re at right now,” Frerichs said, “but if we’re at the same level in October, that’s not good. We have to get better, but these guys work hard and I know they will put the time and effort we need to be a good football team.” Tenge was asked what the goal was for the Chickasaws as they begin the season, and his answer confirmed that New Hampton is embracing the high expectations. “We want to get to the dome,” he said, referring to the UNI-Dome, where the playoff semifinals and championship game are played in November. It’s a place New Hampton hasn’t been since 2009, which means this year’s seniors were all of 5 years old the last time the Chickasaws traveled to Cedar Falls. “We’re ready, and we’ve worked hard to make this the season we want,” Tenge said, “and honestly, I wish it was Friday right now. We can’t wait to play some football.”

Chickasaws have high expectations off — her reserved demeanor takes a back seat once she hits the ground running and flies past competitors toward the finish line. Nosbisch is the centerpiece of Ohrt’s girls squad and placed 35th at state in her first ever run on the vaunted state course held at Kennedy Park. “The team just loves her,” said Ohrt. “We all do. She fit in really well with all of us crazies.” The state course at Fort Dodge can be intimidating, especially for a freshman running without a teammate. That’s all the more incentive for other Chickasaws to hit another gear and join Nosbisch over at Fort Dodge if all goes as planned this fall. “I know that they’re going to do great and I said, ‘I have high expectations for you guys.’ We need to up our game,” said Ohrt. Perhaps the biggest gold nugget that the Chickasaws were able to mine out of that aforementioned state qualifier were the tangible results that proved each team (boys/girls) has what it takes to compete against the state’s best. “They finally were able to see and witness their potential in black and white. I can talk until I’m blue in the face and tell them stuff, but until they see the success for themselves it won’t mean anything,” said Ohrt. NH senior Campbelle Kolbet placed 27th at that Dike-New Hartford state qualifier and returns for her final prep season. Also back is senior Treyce Orr, who finished 23rd at districts. Chickasaw junior Jack Shawver (30th at districts) is another powerful runner for New Hampton. Cam McMorris, a junior, is also a proven commodity and has plenty of talent that should make him a mainstay in Ohrt’s top seven.

Also in the mix to crack the top seven and run on the varsity squad are junior Kyler Glenn and sophomore Jarrin Robinson. Senior Jacob Frahm, sophomores Caleb Zeien, Eddie Arnold, Xander Meyerhoffer and Nashua-Plainfield transfer Braiden Schaufenbuel are also ones to keep an eye on. Freshman Easton Monteith and Collin Shatek round out the boys roster. “The cool thing is I think there’s going to be kids that surprise us this year,” said Ohrt. “There’s going to be people on this team that step up because they’re just that much more motivated this year than I’ve ever seen.” NH senior Bailey Cox made tremendous strides last season and is a returning letterwinner for the Chickasaws girls team. Fellow senior Catherine Pethoud also won a letter last year and will be counted on by Ohrt and her teammates. Zoey Dreckman (10th), McKenzie Herzberg (9th), Ella Knutson (9th), Tegan Dungey (9th) and Rebecca Wickman (9th) will all look to lower their times throughout the season and climb the ladder of success. Ohrt has set the bar high and that will also mean an increased workload for many. “We’re increasing mileage this year, which for some, they’re ready for it — for some I think it’s a little daunting,” said Ohrt. Ohrt said competition for spots on the squad is fierce, yet friendly. Running in packs and pushing each other’s physical limits may be a recipe for success on a team that gets along well. “That will maybe ignite people who are in that middle group to be kind of like, ‘hey, I wanna run with these guys. I wanna do that extra mile,’” said Ohrt. “I want to be able to push those kids through that plateau and motivate them.”

CRUISING ON OPENING NIGHT

CHICKASAWS OPEN SEASON WITH SWEEPS OF JESUP, N-P

By Kelly Terpstra
sports@nhtrib.com

A kill or a block?
Elaina Rosonke doesn’t much care, but she sure can describe what the difference is and how it feels to accomplish both.
“A block is really hyped because you’re just shutting the other team down,” said Rosonke. “A kill gives the same energy, but it’s not the same vibe because that’s all you. Getting a block, that just takes away from the other team and it’s just a different, special feeling. The air is like electric.”
Rosonke, New Hampton’s talented and energetic senior middle for the Chickasaw volleyball team, had fun Tuesday night causing all sorts of fits for the outgunned and over-matched Jesup J-Hawks and Nashua-Plainfield Huskies.

The season-opener for all three squads was a triangular that went the way of the Chickasaws. New Hampton – gunning for its second state berth in school history this season – features a power-packed lineup. That’s why it was no surprise the Chickasaws cruised past each team with easy sweeps. NH (2-0) rolled past Jesup, 25-12 and 25-16, and made quick work of N-P by scores of 25-9, 25-11.
NH head coach Jess Geerts talked about the pros and cons of playing two squads that lost a considerable amount of talent from a year ago.
“It’s tough when you play two rebuilding teams right out of the gate. It’s also good because that kind of gives you a good chance of what you really need to fine-tune because if we were perfect they wouldn’t have scored any points,” said Geerts.

Rosonke finished with five blocks in the opener against Jesup and the Chickasaws finished with 12 blocks overall in the first win of the season over Jesup. NH broke a 6-6 tie against N-P in the second game with an 8-0 run to put the match away.
Marissa Cahoy, NH’s all-state junior middle, wound up with 15 kills and senior Carlee Rochford had five ace serves.

Athletic trainer’s goal is to make an impact

Ginn’s competitive nature is a plus when working with Chickasaw student-athletes

By Kelly Terpstra
Of the Tribune and Reporter

Emmalee Ginn’s life story is just starting to take shape. It’s already been an amazing journey for the 20-something-year-old, whose talent and dedication in a vast array of fields is certainly noteworthy. She can even double-dutch and do the banana split. Ginn – a licensed athletic trainer and emergency medical technician (EMT) – was born in the southwestern Chinese city of Zhanjiang. She then came over to the United States when she just 13 months old. As a baby, she was adopted by her parents George and Cindy Ginn – who quickly made a home for their newborn in the Boulder municipality of Longmont, Colorado – a Denver suburb.

That’s where Emmalee’s path to having an tremendous impact on the lives of others began. Oh, you can’t forget about her jump roping expertise, either. “I did a very non-traditional sport – I jumped roped,” said Ginn, who lives in the Cedar Falls/Waterloo suburb of Evansdale. “I did like all the competitions and everything.” Emmalee – who guides patients in their quest for recovery in the physical therapy department of the MercyOne

New Hampton Medical Center during the day – helps keep Chickasaw athletes healthy and performing at their peak levels during the evening. She’s no stranger to juggling jobs – obviously. She stays busy and is on-call one or two nights a week for the Evansdale Fire Department as a first responder. “Sometimes I’m up all night and sometimes I don’t hear anything,” said Ginn. “It’s quite a bit. I have to stay pretty organized. My husband’s gracious enough to kind of let me do those things and we still have time to spend with each other as well.” Whether it’s helping saves lives or something as simple as taping an ankle – the satisfaction she receives is priceless. It’s a win-win for each individual she encounters. “Working with the athletes and actually getting to know them and then to watch them as well at practice and at games – and see them progress that much – was also really rewarding for me,” said Ginn. Ginn said she received tremendous support from her parents growing up in the Centennial State. “She was like super supportive in whatever I did growing up,” said Ginn about her

KEEPING KIDS SAFE

JOBS ARE DIFFERENT BUT TURKEY VALLEY’S BUSTA, REICKS HAVE COMMON GOAL

By Dorothy Huber
Of the Tribune and Reporter

Personality-wise, Jennie Reicks and Joan Busta are pretty different. Busta is soft-spoken, Reicks is ... not. Busta chooses her words carefully, while Reicks is more apt to use the phrase “don’t put that in the paper, please” after a statement. Both women are well-suited to their jobs – Reicks’ voice is a better fit to a bus load of boisterous children, while Busta’s quiet voice and careful words are perhaps better suited to, say, an angry parent. They have very different jobs, but both are totally committed to the safety of the students riding on the buses for the Turkey Valley school system. The pair talked about their jobs for the school, where Busta is the transportation secretary and Reicks a bus driver. “Joan doesn’t get enough credit, I don’t think,” said Reicks. “That girl has nerves of steel. If I have a problem with a parent or routes, she’s the one that has to deal with it.” If you think that driving a bus filled with energetic students would also take nerves of steel, well, Reicks isn’t really worried about the driving part. It’s the getting on the bus and getting off the bus that has her worried. When she puts the stop arm out – with its flashing red lights – some people just don’t pay attention. “You don’t know how scary that is,” she said. “That would be the hardest thing, a child dying on my watch, it makes me sick to think about it. I don’t care who you are, just stop. Just stop ... very easy.” A driver for 20 years, she has learned to “time” the stop arm. That comes out as the yellow flashing lights on top of the bus – which mean, by the way, to slow down – turn to red. “Sometimes I don’t put that arm out because I don’t want my kids to start coming across,” Reicks said. “You can kind of

IT'S BEEN A YEAR FOR SIGN SHOP OWNER

ON TRACK SIGNS IS MOST DEFINITELY A FAMILY AFFAIR FOR BETH HOLTHAUS

By BOB FENSKE
Of the Tribune and Reporter

A lot has changed in a year for Beth Holthaus, but one thing hasn't: She still loves her job.

Now, that job might be a little different these days as she has gone from being an employee of Sandy's Sign Shop to the owner of On Track Signs. Same business. Same location. Different owner. But, and this is a big one, the same commitment to providing quality signs, vehicle wraps, banners and the like.

Not bad for a young woman who began her career at the shop located about three miles east of New Hampton with zero graphic design experience.

"I fell in love with it, though," Holthaus said, "and I guess more than anything I really enjoy what I do, the town of New Hampton for helping me stay here and our customers. There's a real satisfaction to see an idea become a reality, and in a lot of ways that's what we do here."

Let's put it this way: 2022 has been quite a journey not only for Holthaus but also for her husband Josh and their four children — Drey, 12; Lexi, 11; K.C., 6; and Taya, 5.

She purchased the sign shop where she had worked for the past eight years from Sandy Boeding, she added a "promotional" side to the business and she's now on her own. Actually, that might be pushing a bit; after all, her husband and children — not to mention Roxy and Tillie, two of the cutest dogs you're going to find — spend a lot of time helping her at the shop.

"There's a reason we have kid area up there," she said with a smile as she pointed upstairs, "But seriously, Josh works his regular job and every night he comes out after he's off to

Wilken and Sons VP enjoys doing a variety of jobs at salvage yard

By KELLY TERPSTRA
Of the Tribune and Reporter

Sara Wilken is a people person. She also likes to stay busy. Those pleasant and engaging attributes make Wilken a valuable member of the community of Nashua.

It's also perhaps one of the reasons she can't stay still for too long.

"I constantly have to be doing something, if not two things at once," said Sara.

Sara is the co-owner — along with her husband Andy — of Wilken & Sons Auto Salvage. The business that has been in operation since 1955 is located right next to the Big 4 Fairgrounds as you roll into Nashua on Highway 346.

Sara — who serves as the company's vice president, secretary and treasurer of the company — can also be seen at most Nashua-Plainfield athletic events. Her son Drew was a multi-sport star in track, cross country and basketball for the Huskies and recently graduated. He also helps out with the family business and can be seen on any given day operating a forklift on site that moves cars around that will eventually be sold for parts.

"He has always said since he was little he wanted to be here," said Sara.

Drew's brother, Kaden, is a senior this year and is part of Al Frost's successful wrestling program. Kaden will strap on a helmet this year and should be a key contributor for Andrew Christensen's Husky football squad. He also is one of the Top of Iowa Conference's better hurdlers in track and field.

"It's sad because this is the last year. It's literally coming to an end this year," said Sara. "It has been so much fun."

Attending that many games of course means Andy and Sara have to try to find the time to travel all across

IT'S ALL ABOUT THE EYES FOR EYECARE ASSOCIATES DUO

LONGTIME EMPLOYEES MOUDRY AND MUETERTHIES WILL TELL YOU NO TWO DAYS ARE ALIKE AT NEW HAMPTON EYE CLINIC

By LYDIA GESSNER
Of the Tribune and Reporter

If Gloria Moudry and Peg Mueterthies narrowed it down, one of the things they love most about their jobs at EyeCare Associates is the variety.

"There are no two hours that are the same, let alone no two days that are the same," Mueterthies said. "It is different every single day."

"It's a learning atmosphere, there's always something new, something to learn or observe, same for Gloria," Mueterthies said, "they're coming now as adults with their kids and I remember them when they were small, so it's kinda cool."

"IT'S A LEARNING ATMOSPHERE, THERE'S ALWAYS SOMETHING NEW, SOMETHING TO LEARN OR OBSERVE SO IT IS JUST KIND OF A GROWING EXPERIENCE"

— PEG MUETERTHIES

Mueterthies is by title the front desk and insurance manager, but if she were to write her own job description, after 28 years it includes more details than that.

"I am a jack-of-all-trades. I'm the receptionist, I'm the greeter," she said with a laugh. "For the most part, I see the patients when they come in and I see them when they leave. I do the insurance, sometimes I do adjustments. I just do a little bit of everything."

She explained that almost everyone was "cross-trained" back when they started. For her that wasn't so much training in the clinic, but learning how to do adjustments, dispensing and such.

Moudry is the clinic manager, and her job includes both time behind a desk and time with patients. She said she has worked with adjustments and dispensing on the optical side of things, along with sales every now and then. More often, however, she is checking people in, answering the phone and helping out when needed.

"The main part of the job is listening to your patients, gathering all the information from them, documenting all that information and sharing it with the doctor," she said and added that she continues to learn and grow with the new equipment that comes to the office. "o it's a lot of listening, learning, because there's always something to learn everyday, from you know whatever might be happening with a patient, and then growing, growing along with the practice and with the technology that comes in."

While both Mueterthies and Moudry entered EyeCare around the same time, their path to get there was very different.

For Mueterthies, she was looking for a job in 1994 after the youngest of her three children headed off to kindergarten. Before that she had been at a furniture factory in Eldora for several years.

Moudry had a string of careers in various industries before settling at EyeCare. She worked as an administrative secretary at the Mayo Clinic Graduate School of Medicine before working at a business office of a farm equipment manufacturer and then a financial services business office and when her children were young she also did some in-home sewing.

She explained that jobs were few in those early years of 1990s and when she went to the job service office to apply for a job, this one was the only one listed.

"...it was very non-specific about what type of job it was," she remembers, "but it said it was business in a local business office and some technical experience was required. I knew nothing other than that, but I was needing a job, and it was the only one to apply for, so I applied for it!"

She said she was incredibly happy to be in the healthcare industry, even though she had liked all her positions thus far and had never pictured herself working in healthcare.
"But I'd liked all those positions that I'd had ... never ever knowing that I would ever be a healthcare worker, I have found it really fulfilling."

She explained that the training at EyeCare is mainly on-the-job training, along with continuing education courses. When Mueterthies joined the crew in 1994, Moudry was the one who trained her.

For a few years it was the two of them working behind the front desk as the first smiling faces patients see when they enter the office before Mueterthies took over and Moudry began working in the clinic area.

When asked if they had fun during those years together, they shared a laugh.
"Oh you can't have too much fun, you're working," Moudry said.

"That's right, cause you know, it's a professional office so..." Mueterthies said with a laugh and then turned more serious, "Yes, I mean we enjoyed working together, in fact we've gone on several continuing ed trips, Gloria and I ... so yes, we get along really well and we always have."

Both women have three kids, and now have grandchildren, too. Mueterthies has two grandkids while Moudry has six.
Mueterthies and Moudry came to the area after meeting their husbands. Mueterthies was originally from New Hampton but moved back to the Lawler when she got married and Moudry was from Northwest Iowa originally but her husband was from here. Mueterthies said their husbands are quite similar with their backgrounds in farming, and they all get along well at office Christmas parties and such.

Not only do Mueterthies and Moudry enjoy each other's company, but they both commented on how well the staff gets along. Mueterthies is set to retire in December after 28 years and has been training Brittany Gaede, who has been an and all the love that he makes," Santoyo said. "And you get it in a timely manner," Nolt added.

"And he's always making sure that the customers are getting what they're [going to] get, never switching recipes around, always making it what they like," Santoyo said.

They still cook from a box of old recipes cards, and when one card gets lost, the recipe is gone until they find it. Nolt remembered one time especially when a card went missing and called it "disastrous."

"Cause some of our recipes you can barely see them, we have to rewrite them with how old they are back there," Santoyo said.

"And like the index cards are all taped," Nolt added.

From dicing up onions and tomatoes, to making their own flour mix, to the taco meat and fresh pies, everything is from scratch.

"Everything here's ... homemade," Santoyo said.

"Lots of love," Nolt added.

"Sometimes we might throw a little punch," Santoyo joked with a laugh. "Yeah but we make everything, like we just need a cow back there and a garden..."

Most days, Santoyo explained that either she gets there first and Nolt joins her later or vice versa.

"Well, we pretty much get everything going in the morning," Santoyo said. "We open, get our gravy going, get like our specials for the day - have to set that with our waitress up front, see if they agree with what we have down or [if] they want to switch [to] something different."

"Then right away at five o'clock we get our first client," she added.

"I kid you not," Nolt said with a laugh. And it's always the same person who, Nolt added, is very nice.

They also start making pies, desserts and casseroles and pick the day's veggie and get that started.

"And then once your second person comes in you just mainly focus on finishing up your pies and make sure they're out on time," Santoyo said.

"Then after that it's pretty much just prep work," Nolt said. Santoyo added that they go back and forth between the kitchen all day.

Neither of them had much experience cooking prior to working at Klunder's but they have caught on quickly.

"I definitely have learned a lot," Nolt said. "A lot of trial and error."

But despite her growth in the culinary arts,

Klunder's Kafe employees Arely Santoyo and Pamela Nolt take a break from another busy day at the New Hampton eatery to pose for a picture in the restaurant's kitchen.

Santoyo leaves her chef's hat at work when she leaves.

"I make my husband cook," Santoyo said with a laugh.

Santoyo and her husband Daniel have three children Alexis (12), Asiel (4) and Ary (2).

"They're absolutely cute," Nolt said.

"[Asiel] loves Pamela," Santoyo said. "He knows Pamela pretty well from Dollar General [where she also works], cause he likes eating candy so he knows she's there."

Nolt's family includes her parents, Mervin and Darla, and her two younger sisters, Sheila and Megan, who's in fourth grade and about to pass up both her sisters in height.

But while they are at Klunder's, both women feel at home in the kitchen and around their coworkers.

"You know, we kind of make this like our own home now, too," Santoyo said.

"Yeah, it's like our home away from home," Nolt added.

"We have, like I said, our good and bad days, but no matter what we're still getting along with everybody," Santoyo said and joked, "We only make faces when they turn around and laugh at them, but that's about it."

But in the end, they want to make sure that they put out the best possible food for their customers, and in a timely manner.

"For me, it's just make sure that they like what they see and that I cooked it the way that they liked it mainly," Santoyo said. "We always try so hard just to make sure that everything is what people are expecting."

"And I'd say for the most part, people are really easy to cook for," Nolt said.

"Want to make sure that everybody's happy," Santoyo said.

And over the years they have met a lot of happy customers, including a lady who drives from Minneapolis just for Klunder's cheesecake.

Local businesses like TriMark and Zip's also draw business people from all over the country and the world for meetings, and Nolt and Santoyo said they have gotten the chance to serve people from across the globe.

On the day RAGBRAI came through New Hampton, however, they said they were too busy to meet anyone.

"But we were definitely busy that day, that morning," Santoyo said.

When things get "chaotic" sometimes Nolt and Santoyo have to step out and waitress or do other tasks.

"It's always like adventurous, everyday," Santoyo said.

"It is," Nolt agreed. "You never know what's going to happen."

That includes those frustrating times when they have a flood of orders all at once or those times when things hit the floor, or even the ceiling.

"Ranch has been dropped on the floor and goes up to the ceiling," Santoyo said.

"When stuff doesn't turn out," Nolt said with a laugh.

"We have had times where we dropped full pies," Santoyo said.

"... And it looks like a mess, like on the floor," Nolt said. "Or when you're in a hurry and it slips off the plate. And then you look back and laugh about it."

Santoyo added that there was a period of time where, try as they might, they couldn't get the meringue to turn out as perfectly as the customers expected it to be.

"That was like one of the hardest things there for a while," Nolt said.

Student Pastor Sue Cira delivers a sermon at Crane Creek Lutheran Church in rural Lawler, and after the service on a recent Sunday, she posed with her husband Lou (right) and two of their grandchildren, Gus and Bronson Becker.

Finally answering the call

After long career as dental hygienist, Cira heads to the pulpit

BY DOROTHY HUBER
Of the Tribune and Reporter

Growing up in Elma, Sue Cira always felt — well, since she was 14 anyway — a calling.

But, since she felt her calling was to become a Lutheran minister and, the Lutheran Church wasn't ordaining female ministers at the time, she took another direction.

She became a dental hygienist.

"I think I just always wanted to help people, that was important to me," said Cira. "At first I thought of becoming a physical therapist, but it seemed so many people at that time wanted to do that. I wanted to stay somewhat close, in the Northeast Iowa area, so I changed my career path."

So in 1977, Cira graduated from the University of Iowa with a bachelor's of science degree in dental hygiene, starting a career that lasted 40 years.

"I worked the last 28 years of that career for the same guy and the job served me well. The father of my children died in an ATV accident in 2005 and I was left with two girls to raise."

Also on his own about the same time was Lou Cira.

"After 10 years of being alone, Lou asked me out after church — I decided it was not a date because I was not into dating at the time."

But in 2015 the two were married, combining her two girls — Katherine and Sarah, and his two girls, Julia and Christa — for "quite the happy family."

Even though her family life was complete, Cira always felt that calling coming back. For a time, she ignored it, even though women by than had become widely accepted as pastors.

"I had a feeling God still wanted me. God kept calling, but I didn't want to take that call," she said with a laugh. "It's a strange presence." And yes, she still feels it. "That's what we call an internal call."

Cira was very active in her church in Mason City at the time. She was in organizations, alter guild, taught Sunday school, helped with confirmation classes. She also began the services to help ministers with busy schedules.

"So I was familiar with leading worship. Then other people in the congregation started telling me I should become a minister. And I said 'OK, God, but you have to help me figure this out.' I didn't want to move, so I went to my synod office and started a program they called TEEM, that's Theological Education for Emerging Ministry."

Since so many small parishes have a hard time attracting pastors, Cira was able to start working almost immediately. She started the program on Oct. 2 of 2017 and on Oct. 8 of the same year walked into the churches at Crane Creek and Zion Lutheran in Alta Vista to do her first services.

"When they asked me if I would be OK with a small parish I said 'sure, I the state to watch their two sons during road contests.

"I live by this planner – literally. I know it's old school, but if I don't have things written down – just, no way," smiled Sara.

Sara said they've almost never missed any of Kaden or Drew's athletic events and if they did, it's because both athletes were on the road in different locations playing separate sports. Andy and Sara had that one covered, as well.

"We're at every single sporting event," said Sara. "If they were on the same night, grandparents were always involved, too. So they were able to go to one, while we were at the other one."

The longstanding business that Andy and Sara operate in Nashua features over 66 acres of outdoor inventory on its property.

There's over 145,000 square feet of indoor inventory. Wilken & Sons also buys scrap metal and sells automotive parts online via eBay Motors.

Just how did Sara become involved in a salvage business that has been in the Wilken name for almost 70 years and has helped generations of customers find that right auto part?

Well, it happened over dinner one evening with Andy.

Sara decided to join the Wilken & Sons team after working as a personal banker with Lincoln Savings Bank in Nashua. Andy and Sara purchased a salvage business in Waukon and later consolidated that company with the current one in Nashua in 2006. The entire Nashua business was bought out from Andy's father, Jack Wilken, in 2010. The Wilkens sold the Waukon location in 2018.

"I knew absolutely nothing about it and it was just always one of those – I did my thing, Andy did his," said Sara. "But once I got in here, I absolutely love it."

Sara runs the books and is responsible for a whole host of daily operational matters – which can include something new each and every day.

"No day is the same – every day's different," said Sara, who stated there are 11 employees that work at Wilken & Sons.

Sara's daily tasks around the salvage yard office are varied and could be filing a deposit one moment, then cutting a customer a check for scrap or making sure Andy has the proper details and information for his travels to other junkyards all over the state.

"We make a good team. We work really well together – always have," said Sara. "Actually, the thing is, we don't really see each other that much during the day because he's usually on the road or visiting customers."

Roughly half of Wilken & Sons business is scrap recovery, while the other half helps customers looking for that exact right part for their vehicle or motorized piece of machinery. That could be a headlight, gear shifter or a transmission. The possibilities are almost endless.

Andy and Sara – who will celebrate their 19th wedding anniversary next month – each graduated from N-P in 2000. They also find it is important to give back to the school district that they have devoted so much time and energy into.

That's why there are scrap tubs on the Main Streets of Nashua and Plainfield if interested parties want to donate scrap. In turn, Wilken & Sons weighs that metal and keeps tickets on file.

The money is then given to the Husky Athletic Department after the treasurer from the booster club stops by and Sara hands them a check every month or so that is often in the four-digit monetary range.

"It's been a very good fundraiser for the school," said Sara. "It's just ways for people to give money without physically giving money – if that makes any sense."

While the Wilkens love to root on the Huskies, they also like the sport of hunting.

Sara bagged a big bull elk for the first time out west in Idaho last fall. Sara said Andy introduced her to the sport and they've taken hunting trips to such states as Colorado, Missouri and Utah to enjoy wildlife and encounter game. They also hunt around the area on land they own as well.

No matter what hat Sara is wearing – there could be many on any particular day – expect a smile and a warm greeting from the Nashuan that was born in Fresno, California, but raised in Minnesota.

That's just part of Sara's job – if you want to call it that – because doing what you love often times doesn't feel like work, most of the time.

"It's all right," said Sara. "There's days where obviously it gets a little overwhelming, just like anybody goes through things."

The chance to help out and keep her family business growing is all it takes to keep smiling and doing what she does best – making Nashua a better place to grow and live.

"I wouldn't want it any other way," said Sara.

Cira once thought she couldn't speak in front of people grew up in a small parish.' So it was just a matter of finding a place that would take an 'I don't know anything yet' person."

Though she's still a student, Cira can function in nearly all capacities – baptisms, funerals, and most parts of a marriage.

"I have a friend that comes in to do the legal part of marriages." She will be able to handle that as soon as she is ordained, which she hopes will happen around Christmas.

And when she does, there could be six grandchildren there to cheer her on. Two live in Mason City, two in Clear Lake and two in Decorah, so the couple is able to have plenty of time with the youngsters, including a recent Sunday when they were doing grandparent duty for Gus and Bronson Becker.

When Cira called the young children from the Crane Creek congregation up to the front to sit with the pastor during services, something she tries to do on a regular basis, her grandkids were among those listening to the story.

"I try to get everyone to participate," said the pastor. "It's a challenge on occasion, they tend to get distracted. Even my own ones, they're looking back at the statue of Jesus and want to talk about that. But it is one of my favorite times."

She even tries to hit the high-lights for those adults she says may have "zoned out" during the scripture.

Going from Alta Vista – where the service is held Sundays at 8 a.m. – to Crane Creek, which is several miles southeast of Jerico, by the 9:30 service time can be a challenge. Cira does the same sermon at each parish, or at least it starts out being the same. "Although it doesn't come out the same, I don't know why."

She hadn't been pastor all that long when everything was upended by COVID. Communion is still done differently, at Crane Creek the congregation members that are allowed communion take their own host and a small container of juice as they come in and serve communion to themselves.

"I'm hoping to get back to normal, but people are still a little leery."

The virus also put a bit of a strain on the parishes' budgets. "People, if they don't attend, they don't give as much," Cira noted. "So we're careful how much LP we use, if it's a nice morning we open the windows instead of using the air."

What might be a challenge at other parishes – a lack of volunteers – is not a problem at all for either parish. "We usually have more than we need."

Which is good, because Cira is sometimes on the short end of having time to spend. She is still a student, again at Wartburg, which means at certain times of the year she has intensive classes, where a semester of class is done in four days. "Classes are only offered at certain times," she explained. "You can only take them when they're offered." Plus she still has a Sunday sermon to write.

The Elma native sometimes wishes she hadn't taken the circuitous route to her current career. "Yeah, sometimes I do. But dental hygiene has also been very rewarding. When I was ignoring God's call, one of my reasons was that I can't speak in front of people. I said 'I can't do that, God.' But a year later I was elected to be the Iowa Dental Hygienist Association president. And you know what? I had to talk in front of people, do newsletters and such. I still didn't think I was ready to do that but I guess I was."

After 40 years, Cira's path finally has its direction.

"I feel grateful God provided me a place to be where the people are wonderful and kind," she said. "I do still get butterflies every Sunday. If I don't there's something wrong."

Ginn gets to see 'big picture' outside the clinic mother. "She was always that kind of a cheerleader for me and my sister. She was just so supportive of like, 'oh, you're interested in this – well, go for it.'"

Ginn graduated from Central College, located in Pella, in 2000 with a bachelor's degree in athletic training. As you can about imagine, the inspired and extremely motivated Ginn is seeking her master's degree in exercise science online from Liberty University. There's a concentration in her studies on nutrition and wellness.

Ginn thought she was going to work in education, like her mother. Cindy was a preschool teacher before she decided to become a nanny. Ginn's father, George, passed away when she was little.

"I kind of switched it over because I really liked the sports aspect of it and working with athletes because they're so motivated," said Ginn.

Ginn also has a inquisitive and competitive nature – much like the athletes she helps heal or get back on their feet. She also likes the team aspect of what she does for the high school players.

"When I work in a clinic here, I get to see them and I get to know them well, but I don't get to see them outside of the clinic," said Ginn. "I just like seeing more of the whole picture."

Ginn has been an athletic trainer at NHHS for what will soon be a year as the football season pushes toward the starting line.

Chickasaw fans can see Ginn roaming the sidelines of New Hampton football games, along with New Hampton's other athletic trainer – Maggie Peterson.

Sometimes small tweaks or what might seem like an insignificant word of wisdom in the training room from Ginn to a player competing, can make a huge difference in the long run.

"Just those little things – I can really impact them a lot from just this little portion of knowledge I have," said Ginn.

Ginn was married last summer to her husband Tanner Ginn. The newlywed is the middle school/high school musical director at Jesup.

Just what are Emmalee's future plans? Does that include starting a family some day or moving to the big city?

She's pretty content where she's currently at.

"We are open to a lot of things," said Emmalee. "Eventually I would like to get back to the college setting with athletic training. Here is really good for me right now with the high school setting."

Lexi Holthaus (above) laughs as her sister, Drey, gives Roxy a ride around the On Track Signs, the rural New Hampton business the two sisters' mother owns. The business not only continues to make signs (below) like the new one honoring New Hampton's 1999 state championship football team, but it has expanded to include promotional items for businesses.

This second job as we always joke, and the kids have been great, too. This isn't really just my business, it's our whole family's."

A couple of factors went into the naming of the business she took over in January. First, her shop is located near the railroad tracks that are located just to the north of Highway 24 between Lawler and New Hampton.

Second, it's the goal she has for On Track Signs.

"We want to be on track with every project we do," Holthaus said, "because if you really think about it, if things aren't on track, then we're not doing it right. And doing it right matters not just to our customers but also to me."

It's not an uncommon sight to see the Holthaus' vehicles at the shop at all times of the day or on the weekends, but the On Track Signs owner has no qualms about putting in the extra hours it takes to make her business successful.

"People say they see my car out there at night and on weekends, but that's part of our business," she said. "You have big projects, you get them done."

She paused and smiled.

"That's why we say this is our home away from home."

One of her big projects has been creating the new signs that are being placed at New Hampton High School's football field, both thanking the donors for their contributions to the recently-completed track project and honoring the Chickasaws' 1996 girls state track and 1999 state football championships.

Meanwhile, she has also worked at getting the promotional part of her business up and running.

optometrist assistant, to take her place.

It was Gaede who first came up with the idea of family dinners, and while they don't occur very often, they have been a highlight for both Mueterthies and Moudry.

"We have, when we have no doctors here, we have what we call family dinner," Mueterthies explained.

When the doctors leave the office for lunch, all eight ladies of EyeCare Associates order food to-go or get pizzas, and gather in what was formerly the accounting office for lunch.

"And we have done that for years and years, and it doesn't happen very often but it's like 'No doctors, should we have family dinner?' and it's just, you know, everybody's available, if a patient walks in, we're right there, if the phone rings, we're right there, but we're eating together," Mueterthies explained, "because that never happens..."

Normally, she said everyone does their own thing for lunch, which is what makes these moments so special when they get to eat together and catch up about their lives.

"Although we do catch up throughout the day," Mueterthies said with a laugh.

But stopping and sitting together for a meal gives them a chance to enjoy being together, not just working together.

"So we look forward, actually, to our few family dinners," Mueterthies said.

Mueterthies described her coworkers as being "like family" and Moudry said the first word that came to mind was "awesome."

"We get along really, really well. You know, when you've got eight women in an office..." Mueterthies said with a laugh.

While they do get along the majority of the time, Moudry said developing this bond in the office is something they have had to work at. Mueterthies said when she is having a bad day she tells her coworkers, "... it's my turn today."

"That's my joke, we take turns," she said, about having a bad day or frustrating moment.

"...I mean even besides the job itself you have to be able to have a good companionship with your coworkers," Moudry said. "That's what really makes the job in many ways."

Both of them agreed that one of the main highlights of their job over the years has definitely been the people, both the staff and the patients that they meet.

"I think it's the people I've met, whether it be the people I work with or the patients. You know, you go to the grocery store and they recognize you," Mueterthies said.

"I agree with that, it's all about the people," Moudry said.

When Mueterthies retires, it's these people, both the patients and her "work family" that she said she will miss most. She isn't looking for a big party in her honor, instead she's hoping to spend some time with the ones who have made this job worth it.

"You know, when [another employee] left, we closed the office for an hour and a half. I think and we all had lunch together - doctors, everybody - and I'm hoping we get to do that again," Mueterthies said.

"It's not about the party, it's what you've accomplished," Moudry added, who is in her 30th year at the practice.

And after years of accomplishment, these ladies have some words of wisdom that, if given the chance, they would offer to themselves back in the early 90s when it all began.

"You know, as a younger self, listening and observing," Moudry said, "[be]cause it's the people that have worked that job for many years that are going to give you, hopefully, good information, which then you can build on and learn from and make the job your own ... and take pride in it in above all else."

"It's ever-evolving," Mueterthies said is the advice she would give. "You know, when I started I was the front desk, and now I'm front desk and I'm insurance and you know this and that, so it's like Gloria said, it's always evolving and just go with the flow."

Mueterthies talked about the technology changes that have come to the office since they began, from transcribing equipment for doctor's notes and paper charts, to electronic health records, to now having everything on computers.

And after many years of changes and variety in their positions, Moudry would remind her younger self and her coworkers to take pride in their work.

"We're all blessed with talents and abilities," Moudry said. "You want to have a good life, you deserve a good life, and use those talents and those abilities and make your career the very best it can be, and then you can be proud of yourself always."
