Nashua moves ahead on EMS

City Council says it has crew chief, moves closer to purchasing an ambulance

By KELLY TERPSTRA
Of the Reporter

Rhonda Dean came bearing good news to the Nashua City Council on Monday.

For the citizens of Nashua, this was welcome information.

Nashua is hoping to have an ambulance service operational at the start of the New Year after the contract with its current provider runs out on Dec. 31, 2022. The town of around 1,500 residents has been in limbo and concerned about the future of its EMS (emergency medical services) after it chose to withdraw from the Chickasaw County proposed publicly-owned ambulance service that is still trying to get off the ground.

That means Nashua is branching out on its own in attempt to provide life-sustaining, critical care service to its residents. Dean let her fellow City Council members know at this past Monday's regular meeting that the effort to begin the framework for an EMS is moving in the right direction.

Dean, one of four new members on the Nashua City Council that were sworn in at the start of 2022, cut straight to the point to inform all in attendance inside the Council Chambers about the most recent developments concerning EMS.

"There is an ambulance that should be here this week that we are looking at," said Dean. "It's a 2004 Ford Diesel that used to be a Lifeline ambulance, which means it's smaller."

Dean did not mention the cost to purchase the ambulance, but did state that it is headed towards Iowa from Illinois – the corporate headquarters of Life Ambulance Network.

More than just a quilt

Nashua Navy veteran appreciates receiving 'thank you'

By BOB FENSKE
Of the Reporter

There were plenty of reasons this past Sunday proved to be special for Nashua resident Andy Matthews.

His family — wife Sue and children Callie, Clint and Chloe — were all together. It was one of those beautiful September days where the sun shone brightly. And, oh yeah, he was awarded with a Quilt of Valor during the latest ceremony put on by the national organization's local chapter, the Freedom Strippers.

"It was a really nice ceremony, and it meant a lot to not just me but I think all the veterans that received quilts," Matthews said. "It's really a nice way to say thank you to us."

And for some of the older veterans, the ceremony in some ways represented a proper welcome home that they did not receive when their military service ended.

"I thought it was a nice ceremony," said New Hampton native Jason Huffman, who recently retired as a lieutenant colonel after spending

A Quilt of Valor (QOV) is a quality, hand-made quilt that is machine or hand quilted. It is awarded to a Service Member or Veteran who has been touched by war. The Quilt says unequivocally, "Thank you for your service and sacrifice in serving our nation."

Supervisors stock their ambulances

Board buys equipment, passes on hiring interim EMS director and nixes a hiring committee

By BOB FENSKE
Of the Reporter

Chickasaw County's new ambulance service inched forward again this week during a Board of Supervisors meeting, but as has happened often during the process, there were some testy exchanges during the meeting in which the board approved purchasing equipment but decided not to hire an interim EMS director and not to create a so-called interview committee to hire a permanent director.

And one Chickasaw County EMS Advisory Committee member said that a group of EMS providers would probably not take on membership from Chickasaw County because of its political climate.

"We've had a connection with them but at this time, until the culture here changes," Bridget Edson said, "we wouldn't probably be welcomed into membership but they are helping us at this time [with start-up procedures]."

Edson began her weekly report pointing out that "15 weeks from today," will be Jan. 2, 2023, and that the county-owned service that will also provide coverage to residents of six county cities will have completed its "first day in operation."

She quickly added, though, that Jan. 1 shouldn't be the date supervisors are focused upon.

"I'd encourage you guys to focus back on probably about Dec. 1," she said, "as we need to be operational and licensing and training in."

And board members did make progress on at least one front — purchasing almost $50,000 in equipment for the new service.

The board approved purchasing computer software, equipment and so-called consumables for the service. The board agreed to spend up to $6,000 for the software, $27,893 for ambulance reusable equipment and around $15,000 to purchase items like bandages, dressings and IV supplies from Chickasaw Ambulance Service owner Jeremy McGrath.

All three motions passed on 3-2 votes, with Board Chairman Matt Kuhn, Jason Byrne and Steve Breitbach supporting the motions, and Jake Hackman and Tim Zoll voting against the purchases.

Edson had pushed the board to purchase items Monday so that Chickasaw County EMS employees and volunteers would have time to train on the new devices.

...nice to see them get some recognition for their service. That was very cool.”

Matthews agreed.

“I don’t think people always realize what veterans give up,” he said. “You miss a lot of things, family gatherings, birthdays, holidays, all that stuff.”

Matthews received much of his education in Nashua but graduated from New Hampton High School in 1982. He said he had some friends who were heading into the service and thought the Navy would be a good choice for him.

He served his country for five years, spending much of this time attached to the USS Jason, a Vulcan class repair ship that was commissioned during the latter days of World War II.

Based at Pearl Harbor in Hawaii, the Jason traveled much of the Pacific during Matthews’ time on the ship. It made stops in places like the Philippines, Japan, Korea, Hong Kong and Midway while Matthews served as a machinist.

His wife, Sue, is also a veteran; she served in the Naval Reserves as a dental hygienist, and at one point, Andy Matthews thought about making the service a career. But in the late 1980s, the Navy was downsizing so he decided to take his honorable discharge and move back to Iowa, where he has worked in manufacturing for much of his life.

“Almost everything I’ve done, I can trace back to my Navy days,” he said, “and I’ve never

And on Sunday, he was thanked by a group of women and men who have distributed hundreds of quilts to veterans over the years.

Supervisors will hire EMS director by themselves

SUPERVISORS: FROM 1

"They're different things that change on things as models get newer," she said, "and we need to have those things ironed out before we're trying to take your grandma out of her second-floor bedroom."

BOARD MEMBERS, though, did not follow through on one recommendation made by the advisory committee that was appointed earlier this month when they decided against naming Chickasaw County Emergency Management Agency Director Jeff Bernatz as the interim EMS director.

Kuhn, who is a member of the advisory committee, said members felt that "for paperwork purposes," having an interim position was worth considering, especially since he felt it was not a compensated position.

Edson agreed. "Quite a bit of our paperwork requires an EMS director," she said, "for things to move forward — like specifically our licensing. ... We need someone before we can even submit our application."

County Attorney David Laudner, though, asked supervisors to put the brakes on hiring an interim director — pointing out that the board hasn't even approved the ordinance that will create the department a director will lead.

He pointed out that supervisors will consider the ordinance this coming Monday and may also waive the readings of the second and third readings, which would mean the ordinance would take effect late next week after a legal notice is published.

"I think it's more appropriate that you guys wait until — assuming it passes — next Thursday before you appoint an interim director," Laudner said, but Edson made one last pitch to the board.

"We're using Jeff's name kind of as a placeholder," she said, "like a key in the door, just to keep the application process moving for our license."

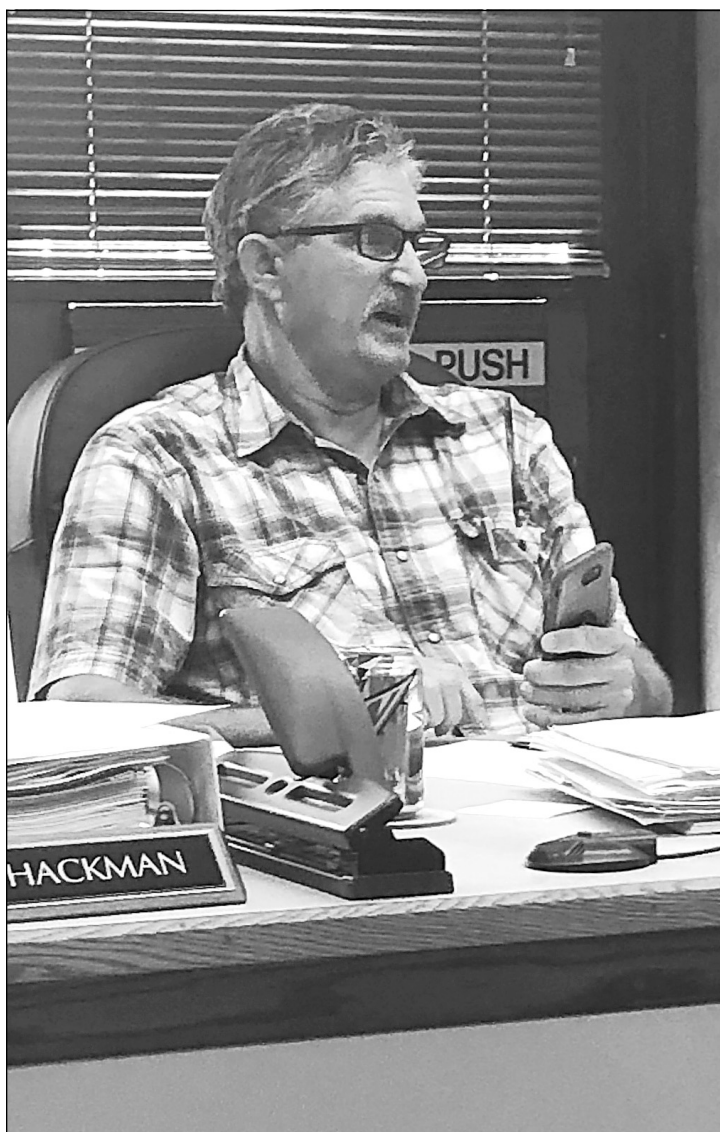

Laudner, though, did not budge from his stance.

"I don't mean to be the bad guy and derail things," he said, "but as I am sitting here as your attorney, I would say a 10-day delay is appropriate here for you to make sure that all the steps are being followed."

THE SUPERVISORS also put the kibosh on appointing a hiring committee — a recommendation the advisory committee made during last week's supervisors' meeting.

During that meeting on Sept. 12, Edson told the board that the idea behind a hiring committee was to have those with EMS experience conduct the interviews with the EMS director applicants and make a recommendation to the Board of Supervisors.

The EMS Advisory Committee suggested that Kuhn, Bernatz, Public Health Administrator Lisa Welter and Sheriff Marty Hemann make up

Chickasaw County to hold public hearing Oct. 3 on budget changes

The Chickasaw County Board of Supervisors will hold a public hearing early next month to consider a budget amendment that is needed for a variety of reasons — including the start up of a county-owned ambulance service.

The hearing will be held at 9:15 a.m. on Monday, Oct. 3, during a regularly scheduled board meeting.

The board finished hammering out the numbers during a meeting Tuesday morning and the budget amendment includes a spending increase of $1.45 million from the budget that was last certified. That budget called for the county to spend about $19.71 million.

A vast majority of the increased spending will come in the form of $1.31 million for public safety and legal services, i.e., the ambulance service.

The county plans on using federal ARPA dollars to buy equipment and for start-up costs for Chickasaw County EMS, which will go into business on Jan. 1.

the committee, with the possibility of an additional member being appointed.

Last week, though, Hackman suggested that there might be a conflict of interest because Kuhn is an EMT who could possibly work or volunteer for the new service and he offered to sit on the committee in place of the chairman.

On Monday, Edson said the advisory committee didn't feel that having either Kuhn or Bernatz, who is also an EMT, "being involved would be a conflict of interest."

She also said that committee members have received comments from community members who oppose having Hackman on the hiring committee.

"We've had some push back from community members feeling that he hasn't been in favor of EMS," she said, "and would conflict out a lot of applicants."

Hackman quickly responded.

"I've supported some stuff Bridget, not the financial policy and procedures," he said, "and I know you're not a big fan of mine on social media and thank you for that."

"I'm just telling you that this is the pushback I'm getting is that Matt and Jeff are very invested in this and want this to happen," Edson said, "and the community isn't certain that you're on board yet."

The hiring committee became a moot point, though, after Laudner pointed out that the Board of Supervisors will ultimately make the decision and wondered why a hiring committee would be needed.

"Just speaking out loud here," Laudner said, "If this committee is going to recommend and this board has been extraordinarily active in this entire process to the point of debating the cost of CPAP machines and today for an hour on those things, why you wouldn't you bring the three or four or seven or how many candidates are and you five interview them?"

"They're very involved, but if you're going to be that involved with it, why would you cede it to someone else? Why not just do it from the beginning?"

And board members agreed as the appointment of the hiring committee died for the lack of a motion.

EMS town-hall meeting set

CITY COUNCIL: FROM 1

"It has low miles on it compared to some of the newer ones we saw. They think it will be a good fit for us," said Dean, who is a part of an ad-hoc committee that meets with members of the Nashua Fire Department to help form an EMS.

As far as where the ambulance would be stored — that decision has not been made yet as the vehicle has not been purchased.

"They think it will fit in the garage. Splash Pad stuff is going to have to go somewhere else," said Dean.

"Although, the fire department maybe wants to house it at the fire department. It's all squished in there now, I don't know how we're going to throw in an ambulance."

Dean stated rural trustees of the Nashua Fire Department are interested in sharing some of the expenses for the ambulance, like pagers and radios that the volunteers are going to need.

Dean relayed perhaps even bigger news to the Council shortly after the announcement that the potential purchase of an ambulance for Nashua looks promising.

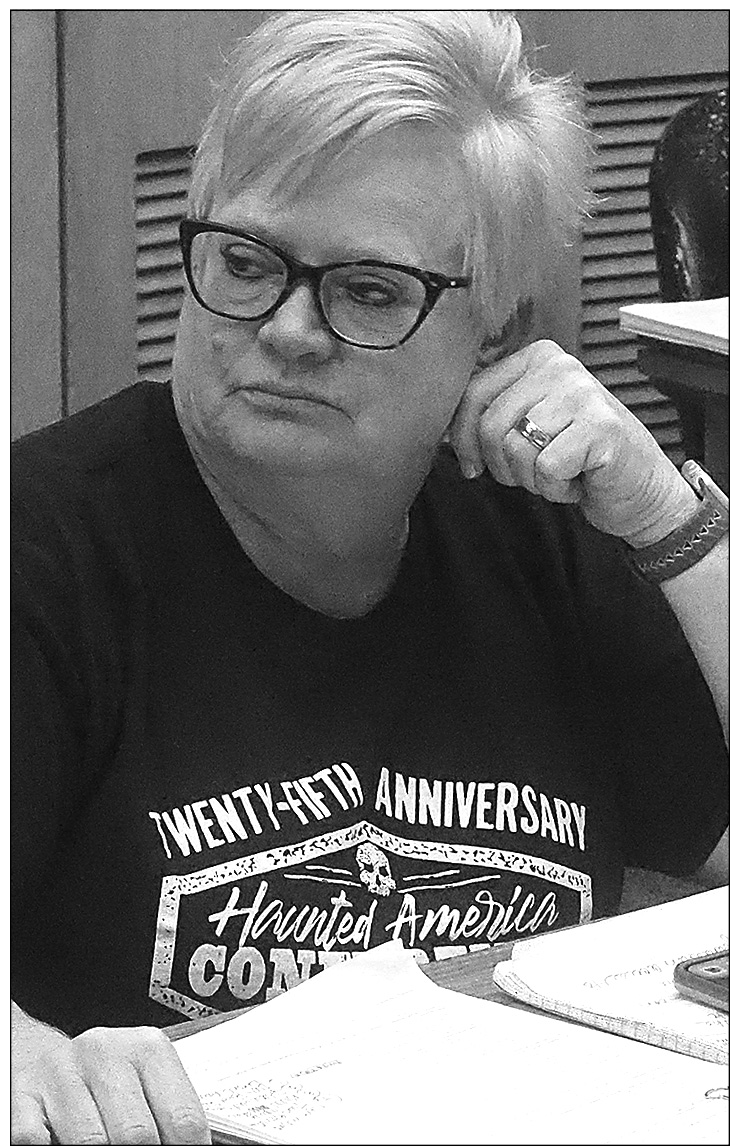

Dean announced that Zenda Viturek will be Nashua's new crew chief for the EMS — at least on an interim basis.

"I'm so excited about this because I didn't think we were gonna end up with one — but we got one," said Dean.

After Nashua works out all the kinks in getting its EMS up and running — Dean said the city will at some point look to replace Viturek with a more long-term hire.

"One thing that I really want to talk to her about is succession, because let's get somebody in there that will take over for you once we get going. Because I don't think she wants to do it for ever and I don't blame her," said Dean.

Dr. David Schrodt, with the Floyd County Medical Center, has verbally agreed to be Nashua's medical director on a volunteer basis. That was one of the first hurdles crossed in Nashua City Council member Rhonda Dean listens to a resident during a discussion about the city's EMS needs.

Kelly Terpstra/Reporter

Nashua's effort to provide EMS to its citizens.

Nashua City Clerk John Ott had been in talks with Charles City Administrator Steve Diers and Charles City councilman Keith Starr about a possible partnership with AMR Ambulance and the city of Nashua.

There was no word at Monday's meeting as to what the state of those negotiations currently are.

The ad-hoc committee was formed to explore options for the city and its potential EMS partner. The next ad-hoc committee meeting is slated for Tuesday, Sept. 27 at 6:30 p.m. at the fire station in Nashua.

Nashua plans on holding a town hall meeting to inform those interested about EMS on Wednesday, Oct. 26 at 7 p.m. in the fire station. The meeting will explain what EMS is, how it can be funded and potential future funding options.

Nashua Water/Wastewater Superintendent Nick Henningsen said the Splash Pad in Nashua will be taken down in the coming weeks and that cracks on the concrete base need to be fixed.

The Council also approved a motion to reduce the number of picnic tables purchased through the Chickasaw County Community Foundation Grant Project from 24 to 12.

New Hampton man is still recovering from '13 accident

Freak accident reminds us how dangerous farming can be

By DOROTHY HUBER
Of the Reporter

Gary King became a statistic on Jan. 10, 2013. He was one of 22 people injured in the state of Iowa in farm-related accidents that year, or at least of those accidents bad enough to be reported to the Center for Agricultural Safety and Health's website.

The really good news is that he didn't become one of the 28 people to die in the state for the same reason during the same period.

The website lists a few details of each of the farm accidents, which ranged from tractor-related injuries to roadway agricultural-related injuries to grain bin related injuries, but the first entry under the entanglement agriculture-related injuries reads: January 10, 2013 Lawler, 54-year old male entangled in auger and injured leg.

"Yup, that's me," said King.

"Injured leg" doesn't quite do the accident justice.

IT WAS BUSINESS as usual that day in January, with the exception of King's employer, Don Blazek, having to leave the farm north of Lawler for a dentist appointment. "It was one of those deals, you get one of those shivers but you don't know why," Blazek said of the morning.

King started a power sweep auger, which farmers use when the corn in a grain bin gets low — it's a horizontal auger that pushes the grain toward an opening, where it is augered into a wagon. The auger moves in a circle around the bin. The one in the bin King was emptying was about six inches in diameter.

"You're OK as long as you stay behind it," said King.

Farm accidents can happen when equipment is not maintained or guards are removed, but that didn't happen here. Nor did King lose his concentration, another recipe for disaster. Now — nine years later — King still doesn't know what he could have done differently.

"The motor was a little weak on the auger and it was starting to slow down," he recalled. "I grabbed a shovel and dug it into the corn to slow down the amount coming into the auger, then I crawled out and closed the slides down."

But when King came back in and grabbed the shovel that was still holding the corn back, he didn't realize the shovel had turned around so that rather than the flat side facing the auger, the scoop side, with its raised "wings" was about to catch in the rotating blades.

"I grabbed the shovel and all I remember is the auger tearing the hide off my leg," He had such a tight grip on the shovel, the force of it caught in the auger flipped him over, so instead of being in back of the auger, he was now in its path, and in its grip.

"My first thought was 'how am I going to shut this thing off?' Luckily the motor was weak enough that when my foot got tangled it put up enough drag on the engine to stop it."

He was able to dig out his flip phone and call for help. He didn't call 911 at first because he needed someone that could actually locate where he was at. "I called Jack Orvis, he's a first responder, works at CASH, him and Sherm Halverson came over. By the time I made that call, my hand was shaking so bad I had a hard time using the phone."

King also called Don's brother Gene, who was in the shop, Ron Leibold, better known as Gowdy, and Chris Reicks were also among the first to arrive.

"They shut down everything, Gowdy went to get a sawzall and they cut the auger to get my leg out of it. Gene said 'whatever you do, don't look at it,' and I didn't."

It took 40 minutes to cut him free. "Somebody thought they should get a blanket to cover me and keep me from going into shock but I said 'I'm so hot, I don't need a blanket, this cold corn feels good.'"

He still may have not realized how bad the injury was, for when the ambulance people said they were going to cut a hole in the bin to extract him, he had a reply.

"The hell you are, I'll crawl out that hole if I have to."

But by that time there were 25-30 bystanders who were there to help. They were able to maneuver the stretcher out the bin by turning it sideways.

Farmer endures 18 surgeries in nine years

ACCIDENT: FROM 7

Even after the 17-minute helicopter flight from the New Hampton hospital to Rochester, even when he woke up from surgery in Rochester — where his wife Melody and children Vanessa and Brady had rushed — King's first question to the doctor was 'when can I go back to work?'

That wasn't going to happen soon. "It was a long 6 1/2 weeks in Rochester, I'll tell you that. First they had to debride the wound, the doctor said corn dust is the worst thing in the world to have in a wound. Full of bacteria."

Since the tissue was torn from mid-calf to the ankle, and to the bone, one of the surgeries involved taking a muscle from King's back and transplanting it to the leg. It didn't take. A tendon from one side of the foot was moved to the other side. His heel bone was sawed off and moved over and reattached.

Skin grafts were made. "Those skin grafts hurt worse than the injury. They would leave those unwrapped so they that's been done to his leg — 18 surgeries over the years — he can't lift his toes off the ground. And there's pain. "The tissue next to the bone is raw, that'll wake you up at night. There are bone chips, you never know when they are going to move around, you just about fall down, it's so painful. It screws up the hips, screws up the back."

With the help of $250 boots, that are sent to California for another $150 to get "rocker heels," King is able to walk, and he did go back to work, driving the combine, that same fall.

"The doctor told me to 'work as tolerated' and when he asked me how many hours I was putting in and I told him about 14-15 hours a day, he wasn't happy. He was thinking more like 4-5 hours a day... but that's not what he said. I sat on the combine all the time, when I got out they'd drive up to the combine and get me, not like I was walking anywhere."

Dorothy Huber/Reporter

King shows the way he landed after being flipped by the force of the shovel caught in the auger, and opens the small door he was carried out by the 25 to 30 bystanders that had heard about the accident north of Lawler.

$20 thousand dollars to fix his teeth; a side effect of pain meds are tooth decay. "Two teeth literally broke off." But he was bound and determined to get off the drugs as soon as possible.

And still, with all the work that's been done to his leg — 18 surgeries over the years — he can't lift his toes off the ground. And there's pain. "The tissue next to the bone is raw, that'll wake you up at night. There are bone chips, you never know when they are going to move around, you just about fall down, it's so painful. It screws up the hips, screws up the back."

With the help of $250 boots, that are sent to California for another $150 to get "rocker heels," King is able to walk, and he did go back to work, driving the combine, that same fall.

"The doctor told me to 'work as tolerated' and when he asked me how many hours I was putting in and I told him about 14-15 hours a day, he wasn't happy. He was thinking more like 4-5 hours a day... but that's not what he said. I sat on the combine all the time, when I got out they'd drive up to the combine and get me, not like I was walking anywhere."

King said his life was never in danger, but Blazek, his friend and employer for 18 years, had a different take on it.

"In the first place, his phone worked and he was able to call for help. He wasn't bleeding massive amounts of blood and he was able to stay conscience long enough to get help. Any of those factors changed... could have been a different outcome."

Grabbing a shovel at that inopportune time changed the life of the New Hampton man.

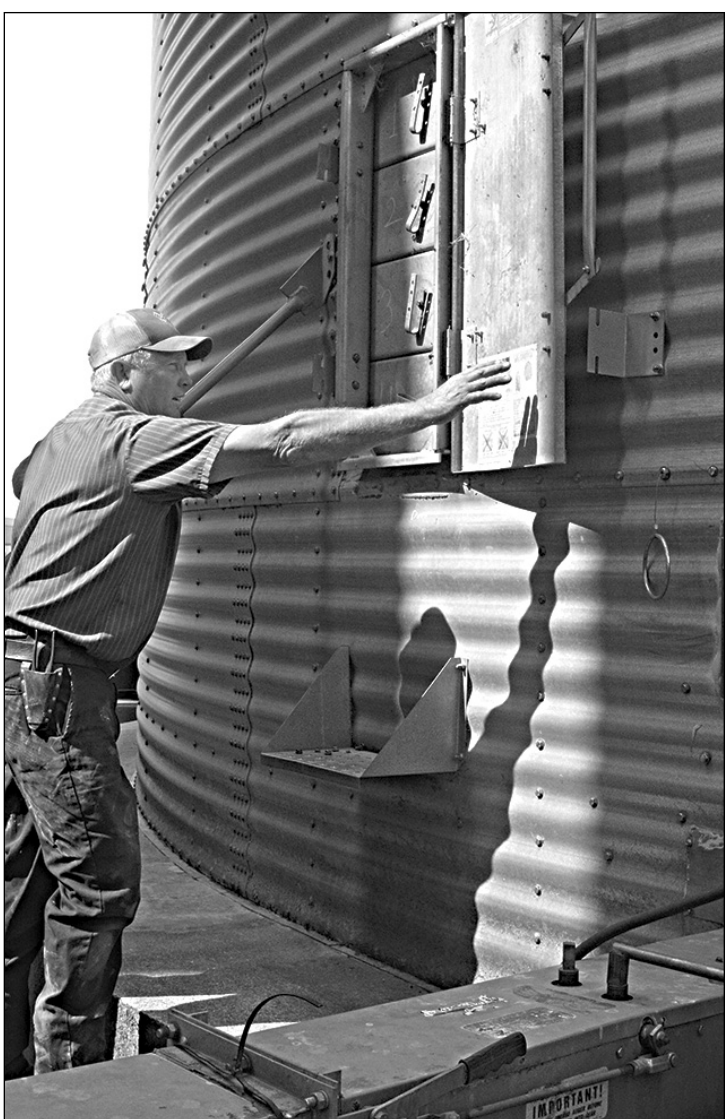

"It's something I've done a million times, I don't think anything of it."

How many farmers have done that? Blazek's estimate was, "all farmers, maybe?"

But a year later King was back to cleaning out the bins, and he wouldn't have it any other way.

"I like what I do," he said. "It's not really work when you like what you're doing."

With harvest season approaching, this story reminds us of how dangerous farming can be. Although what happened to Gary King was a freak accident, many farm-related injuries can be avoided by taking that extra minute and not cutting corners. Be safe.

NICC takes farm safety seriously

Community college's pilot program led to the founding of NECAS

For years, the National Safety Council (NSC) helped raise awareness of safety issues in rural communities.

In 1994, a pilot course was held at Northeast Iowa Community College's Peosta campus, and the partnership was so well received Iowa Governor Terry Branstad signed legislation providing $1 million to construct a farm safety training center.

In 1997, the National Education Center for Agricultural Safety (NECAS) opened its doors to the farming community with a facility on the NICC Peosta campus. NECAS is the only organization with a hands-on farm equipment safety training center. The facility also houses classrooms, a library and a resource center.

NECAS has been helping to keep farms safe since 1944 when the National Safety Council encouraged President Franklin D. Roosevelt to sign the first National Farm Safety Week proclamation, bringing attention to the hazards and risks of farm work. National Farm Safety and Health Week has been recognized by presidential proclamation from every president since then.

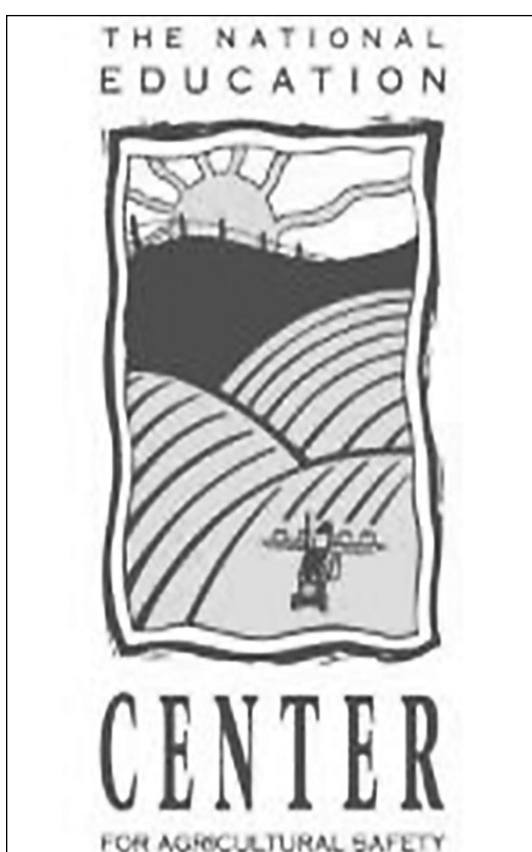

NECAS has expanded its reach by developing partnerships with colleges and other educational centers across the country. We work closely with agribusiness personnel and other organizations that share our goals. Our staff are exploring new routes to bring safety and health messages home to rural communities. We are working to partner and exchange ideas with our neighbors in Canada and other countries.

Services

Like any business, agriculture can be financially set back by safety violations, injuries, illnesses and deaths. NECAS offers safety education and proactive programs to help prevent incidents that affect your agribusiness safety and welfare.

Programs include:

- Hazardous materials training
- Respiratory protection programs

- CPR classes
- Tractor roll-over protection retrofit programs
- Tractor certification programs
- Combine safety
- Confined spaces
- Rescue procedures (tractor roll-over, grain entrapment, combine, auger extrication and manure pit rescues)
- Youth programs
- Training seminars tailored to specific needs

Agricultural workers have a fatal injury rate greater than any other sector in America.

Letter to the Editor

Let's stay safe during upcoming harvest

Harvest in Chickasaw County is right around the corner.

Machinery will be on the roads more often and Chickasaw County Farm Bureau wants to remind everyone to be safe and patient.

Be cautious on dusty gravel roads and at corners where corn blocks visibility. Be aware of blinkers and flashers on equipment.

Farmers keep an eye out for vehicles around you. Keep in mind the little bodies that may be around the yard when you pull in and out of the farm yard. Always be cautious.

Let's all watch out for each other and hope that the harvest season, that brings food to everyone's table, will be a safe and successful one.

Chickasaw County Farm Bureau would like to wish all area farmers and those involved with agriculture the best of luck on a safe and successful harvest.

Chickasaw County Farm Bureau

Tips to get home safely this harvest season

During harvest, there is a huge amount of work to be done within a very short period of time, especially this year with the delayed start due to wet conditions.

Because of this urgency, you may be tempted to take short cuts. However, a few extra minutes can make a big difference and help prevent unnecessary accidents. We've created a harvest safety checklist to help ensure the safety of yourself and others this season.

Equipment Safety

Whether on the field or off, equipment can present many hazards to farmers during harvest if proper precautions aren't taken.

- Turn equipment completely off before making repairs or adjustments.
- Don't wear baggy clothing or jewelry near moving equipment.
- Never leave running equipment unattended.
- Always use safety glasses and noise protection around equipment.
- Take the time to tie down your cargo loads to make sure nothing falls off.

• Clean dirty headlights and tail lights before taking equipment on the road at night. Make it easier for other drivers to see you by using equipment flashers at night.

• Drive at speeds that ensure you maintain control of the equipment at all times.

Refueling Safety

Refueling is a task that feels so routine, it's easy to forget about some of the dangers. Below are basic safety measures to take each time you're at the pump.

- Don't multitask — refueling is not the time to complete other chores or tasks.
- Stay close to the tank so you can react quickly if something goes awry.
- Avoid smoking and other open flames while refueling.
- Don't overfill the fuel tank — 95 percent full is a good rule of thumb for all vehicle and container types.

- Turn off the engine completely and, if there's a chance the equipment could roll, chock the wheels.
- Clean up any spills immediately.

Personal Safety

In addition to equipment and refueling safety, there are some steps you should take to ensure your own personal safety during the busy season.

- Take several breaks throughout the day to keep yourself alert.
- Get enough sleep — fatigue can easily lead to loss of focus.
- Avoid driving or operating complex machinery during the last couple hours of the work day, which is when you're most vulnerable.

Keep young people safe

According to Marshfield Research, a child dies in an ag-related incident about every three days, and every day, 33 children are injured in ag-related accidents.

"To me, that's very powerful," says Amy Rademaker, program coordinator for Rural Health and Farm Safety at Carle Health, Champaign, Illinois. "As a mother myself, I understand the importance of keeping our kids safe. We want our kids to love agriculture as we do, and we never think it can happen to our kids — but it can and it does."

Young people do not have the same farm experience as other individuals. Children completing farm work should be properly trained. Always supervise kids who are working or even playing on the farm, Rademaker says. Young minds can be curious and want to explore equipment on the farm. Consider covering grain bin ladders and other pieces of equipment to avoid incidents.

Remember, young people follow by example.

"Model proper behavior such as never stepping over an auger or PTO," she says. "Be mindful that children may be watching your every move."

On the roadways

Green combines. Red tractors. Blue grain carts. Although the equipment varies in size and color, the job is the same — help farmers get their crops out of the field. Because it's harvest season.

As farmers move from field to field, they have to drive their equipment on gravel roads, farm-to-market roads and major highways.

The big equipment moves slow.

And in our fast-paced world, it can seem like a major inconvenience to be stuck behind a combine, especially when you're in a hurry.

Farmers get it. They know 25 miles per hour isn't the fastest or most ideal speed. They understand you have places to be, deadlines to meet and families to see. They can relate.

Because they're just trying to do their job — to get to the next field, to meet the deadline of harvesting their crops before it rains, to get home safely to see their family at the end of a long work day.

But it's not just the large tractors and harvesting equipment. It's also ranchers pulling trailers of cattle, sheep, goats, pigs and sometimes horses. It's a trailer loaded down with hay or produce.

Those ranchers need space, too. They can drive faster than 25 miles per hour, but stopping quickly would put the lives of the ranchers and livestock at risk.

Accidents involving farm equipment and other vehicles happen every year, and families are forever changed.

Farmers and ranchers respect your right to the road, but they'd like that same courtesy extended to them.

It seems, however, that awareness is often the toughest thing to grow — awareness about what farmers and ranchers do, but also about farm safety on and off the road.

That's where we all come into play. Here are seven things you can do when you meet farm equipment on the road:

- Be alert and cautious. And give large farm equipment and other slow-moving vehicles space.
- Don't pass if you are in a space designated as a "No Passing Zone" or in any area that isn't safe to do so — intersections, bridges and railroad crossings, among others.
- Make sure the tractor isn't trying to make a left turn before you pass on the left.
- Expect farm equipment to take wider turns and have to use both lanes at times.
- Don't tailgate. Give yourself space between your vehicle and the slow-moving vehicle ahead of you.
- Don't assume the farmer knows you're there.
- Be careful when you do get the chance to pass. Farmers will often move their equipment over when it is safe to do so.

And be mindful of the areas around grain elevators, auction barns and farm entrances. Farm equipment and heavily loaded trucks will be turning in or pulling out onto the road.

As you drive behind or pass that farmer or rancher, think how you'd feel if that was your spouse, your child, your parent, your sibling, your friend. And treat the driver accordingly.

Please, slow down.

Let's all get home safely this harvest season.

Department Reports: City Clerk Ott presented August financial reports and informed the council that August bank reconciliation was complete and ready for review. He informed the council of the Catalyst Meeting on Tuesday if anyone was interested in attending. He reminded the council that he will be gone September 28th-30th for the Iowa League of Cities conference. He also informed the council that the Charles City Area Development Corp is hosting a member appreciation on October 11th and if interested, rsvp is due by October 4th. He also told the council that he will be holding a town hall meeting on October 26th at 7:00PM at the fire station. The town hall is to inform residents about EMS Service (what it is, how it can be funded currently and potential future funding options). He encourages all Nashua residents to attend. He presented the findings from IMWCA's (Iowa Municipal Worker's Comp Association) review as well as their recommendations. City Council: Dean explained that for residents who have a newer satellite style meter, they can get a free app (EyeOnWater) that can help them save a lot of money if they have a leak. She stated that she uses the app and left a hose on and was using 200 gallons/hour and she said it was just a trickle of continuous flow. The app notified her of the excess usage, and she was able to find the issue, turn off the hose, and save money because she was notified of the leak via the app. She encourages everyone who has the satellite meter to get the app. Johnson stated that there was a 911 meeting, but she was not able to attend. Nick Henningsen Water Waste/Water Superintendent presented his monthly report. He stated that the dig at the coop that they thought was a leak was not a leak. He informed the council that PeopleServices has developed a plan to add a discharge hydrant to well #3. He also let the council know that the Splash Pad will be taken down soon and they should figure out a plan to fix/stop the cracks in the cement as they are getting pretty bad. One audience member recom-	mended flowable caulk to keep the water from penetrating the cracks and causing further damage. Nick also informed the council that the gear and motor were installed and so both clarifiers are up and running. He also informed the council that the effluent meter went down and it is a required fix. The preliminary estimate for a new one is about $2,000. He let the council know that Westrum was here and did some leak detection, but he won't know anymore until he gets the report. Heather Hackman Library Director presented her monthly report to the council. Discussion/Action The City Council discussed several actionable topics. The council discussed the publicly owned ambulance service. The ad-hoc ambulance committee will be looking at an ambulance for the city to possibly purchase. They have talked with Rural who said they may be willing to help with some of the costs such as mobile radios, etc. They also were able to find a Crew Chief for the ambulance service as Zenda Vikturek has offered her services. Their next meeting is scheduled for Tuesday September 27th at 6:30PM. The council discussed a billing issue at 310 Wentling St, but after discussion; Dean motioned to table a decision until City Clerk Ott can gather more information from the software company. Nashua-Plainfield senior Bailey Fisher makes a play on the ball near the net against North Linn. The Huskies hosted their home invite on Saturday and won two games.

weekend went pretty well, I would say. I think we're slowing getting it figured out."

Fisher, N-P head coach Mindy Foelske's right side/middle hitter, was also named to the homecoming court and had this to say after playing well at the Husky's home invite on Saturday. N-P defeated Clayton Ridge (6-10) and West Fork (4-11), before losing to North Linn (13-6) in the last match of the afternoon. The Lynx went 3-0 over the weekend after topping Rockford, South Winneshiek and the Huskies. N-P placed second at the tournament.

"Our talking was really good then," said Fisher about the West Fork match.

What will one of Fisher's most memorable moments be when she looks back 20 years from now when thinking of her last Husky homecoming at her school?

"Me driving an electric car around the school," smiled Fisher. "That's what I'm going to remember."

N-P lost one of its talented middles in sophomore Josslynn Glaser in a loss to Osage on Tuesday, Sept. 13. Glaser went down in the second set with an ankle injury and is now wearing a walking boot.

"It's a sprain on top of a sprain," said Fisher.

There is no timetable for Glaser's return. She is one of N-P's top hitters outside of Fisher (74 kills), outside hitter Jalyann Pratt (85 kills), Myranda Webster (47 kills) and Paige Franzen (44 kills). Glaser has accumulated 40 kills through 11 matches played.

"Without her we have the lineup we have, with her we have some options," said Foelske. "Obviously she was one of our leading attackers – when she went down. We were just kind of starting to gel with her on the court, so taking her away, now you're throwing in a lot more inexperience."

With Glaser out of the lineup and Foelske not knowing whether or not she'll be back this season, freshman Lily Eiffler (outside hitter) and Kami Hannemann (libero) have stepped into much larger roles. Eiffler rocketed 12 kills down to the hardwood in the win over North Butler on Tuesday. That led the team. Hannemann was a perfect 13-13 serving against CR and netted one ace.

"I think we have some confidence now. We had some really good sets that we played today," said Foelske. "We added a couple freshmen to the lineup when Josslynn went down and they've stepped up."

N-P moved to 5-15 on the season and 2-3 in league play after storming back against the arch rival Bearcats on a late summer evening that saw temperatures reach into the low 90s during the afternoon. The action on the court heated up along with the mercury after N-P was faced with a 1-0 deficit.

North Butler (3-16, 2-4) won game one 25-21, only to see N-P turn the tables and race away with a 3-1 victory – 25-22, 25-22 and 25-18. Foelske said communication was lacking in the first set against NB and the Huskies gave up too many points serving. Then N-P stopped big runs by North Butler and responded to the challenge set forth by its fellow league foe.

"I saw some leadership on the court and we are starting to develop some chemistry on the court," said Foelske, in her second season of guiding N-P.

Foelske said N-P's biggest challenge in 2022 is replacing three of the better players to come through the program in the school's history in graduates Breanna Hackman, Abbie Hyde and Mindy's daughter – Makenzie Foelske.

That means Foelske is looking for leaders – whether that's vocal or the lead-by-example type.

"Our hardest thing is we graduated our three leaders – by far," said Foelske. "Just finding someone to step up and to take that role and want that role. We have great leaders when we are leading and when we are ahead and everybody's up. They're vocal. When we're struggling and people get down, they all seem to crash. Nobody steps up to pick everybody up."

N-P stopped West Fork in Saturday's first match – 24-22, 21-19. Then the Huskies turned back Clayton Ridge, 21-13, 21-19. North Linn topped N-P, 21-12, 21-10.

"We had a lot of energy," said Ripley about the West Fork match. "We were moving – getting the ball there."

Ripley racked up 35 assists in the North Butler win and recently set her 1,000th career assist earlier this season.

Ripley said her teammates had plenty of pep left to celebrate the final event of almost any homecoming – Saturday night's dance.

"With that break in between, it kind of brought us down with our energy. Our energy will be built up for the dance now," laughed Ripley.

Ripley talked about battling back after facing adversity.

"We get into our heads sometimes. You make a mistake and then you dwell on it for too long," said Ripley. "If we keep the energy that we had in our second game, I feel like we could do really good things."

Foelske felt the loss to Osage – ranked ninth in Class 3A – proved N-P can play with almost any squad out there if it puts its mind to it and plays together as a team. That means giving it your all – no matter what the scoreboard says at that particular moment.

"I told them I wasn't as concerned about winning – I just want to compete. We can't go down not fighting and battling teams," said Foelske. "I think the girls are really hungry to win. We lost some early games to teams that weren't necessarily better than us but who responded to difficult runs better. They have started to trust each other and believe that they can win, which is huge for them."

Water helped to beat the heat at N-P Invite

CROSS COUNTRY: FROM 14

Invite earlier this week.

Throw 90-degree September weather into the equation in trying to tame the uphill climbs that make up the grueling jaunt around the nine-hole golf course is like throwing gasoline into the fire in Caleb Lentz's mind.

"It's like getting hit by a truck," said Lentz.

Sinnwell made due and wound up eighth in 22:26. Lentz gave it all he had and placed 10th in 22:54.

Obviously, there wasn't going to be many season-best times by any runners dealing with these uncharacteristic conditions at the meet – which was smaller than in year's past.

Osage won both the girls and boys meet, while Nashua-Plainfield finished second and crowned several medalists. The Green Devil girls – led by third-ranked Katelyn Johnston – took first place over N-P, 22-37. The Osage boys squad bested the Huskies in the final team standings, 17-42.

"Team-wise, we are still trying to put it together all on the same night, but we have improved so much and are continuing to improve," said N-P head coach Jenn Kalainoff.

N-P freshman Jase Hansen continues to shine this season as he placed fourth overall in 20:49. He led the race early on, but finished behind three Osage runners. Green Devil senior Keagan Hennessey won the meet in 19:39.

N-P sensational sophomore Kadence Huck finished runner-up to Johnston – who placed third in the Class 2A state meet at Fort Dodge last fall as a junior. Huck led early, but Johnston demonstrated her prowess over the punishing course by clipping out at 20:34. Huck finished a distant second in 21:33. Johnston won the Osage Invite on Tuesday, Sept. 13 in 19:30. Huck was second at that meet in 20:00.

Huck placed 48th at the 2021 Class 1A state meet as a freshman, but has made tremendous strides this season and is almost ready to break the 20-minute mark with several meets left to go before the state qualifying meet.

Ellie Eick, a junior that ran on Kalainoff's state-qualifying team as a freshman in 2020, placed seventh overall in 27:28. She talked about dealing with temperatures that are not conducive to fast times at the season opener at Charles City. That meet was also somewhat of a scorcher as temperatures hovered in the mid-80s with stifling humidity.

"She (Coach Kalainoff) says to just go out and make it your best – try hard and push through it," said Eick.

N-P freshman Jalissa White crossed the tape in ninth place (28:07). White dealt with some extreme heat issues during and after the race, but Kalainoff said she recovered shortly thereafter and is doing fine.

"She ended up very sick after.

I know she wanted to quit. When she ran by me at one point she told me she thought she was going to pass out and couldn't see very well. As a coach, it's tough to just say "stop" and you just rely on the kids knowing what's best for their bodies. She dug deep and finished the race. I thought that was a very gutsy performance," said Kalainoff.

Husky senior Lexi Weiss was 13th overall in 29:56.

Lentz's take on Nashua's cross country course was telling. He was still catching his breath after a strong finish up the final steep hill where the clock ticked down times near one of the course's manicured greens.

"Brutal," said Lentz. "You think other meets are bad and then you get here with this meet and it's just different."

Lentz, a junior, was the last runner to medal as he cracked the top 10. Lentz hit the home-stretch and passed two runners to claim his medal. The best should be yet to come for Lentz.

"This is usually what we call the worst meet of the year," said Lentz.

Lentz said cramping can be an issue when the elevation started to rise once runners began their ascent on to higher ground.

"You have to have water during this," said Lentz. "I felt like I was going to have a heat stroke until I got water."

Water was something Sinnwell missed out on.

"My water didn't work, so I didn't get any and that sucked," said Sinnwell. "The lady that handed Caleb water, handed me water – and I tipped it up and I got it everywhere but my mouth."

Kalainoff described what N-P's goal on Tuesday was. Here's a hint, it wasn't beating the clock.

"We don't ever focus on our times at this meet, and with the heat it was even less important. We were focused on getting stronger, breaking through the mental barrier and position of the race," said Kalainoff.

Medals went to the top 10 finishers at the N-P Invite. Amberley Gerholdt, a sophomore who cracked the state field last year, did not run on Tuesday. Kalainoff hopes to have her back at next week's meet on Thursday, Sept. 22 at Maynes Grove, a meet hosted by Hampton-Dumont. N-P ran on Thursday of this week in Manly.

Huskies hit road this week for game at BCLUW

Kelly Terpstra/Reporter

FOOTBALL: FROM 14

Nick Henningsen addressed this Huskies after they once again came up with big plays on defense to hold North Tama to just 34 rushing yards. The Huskies picked off three passes, but saw three N-P offensive series stall inside the 10-yard line with zero points scored.

"You guys had guts," Henningsen told the team in the postgame huddle after the victory. "You guys came back and punished them. That is what champions do."

N-P raced out to a 26-0 lead at half – then seemed to coast – but finished strong in a play-off-hopeful season that clearly saw the Huskies storm past the moat and ready to storm the castle to conquer all.

"I like what this team could become," said N-P head coach Andrew Christensen, in his third year of rebuilding the Husky program into a contender with plenty of promise – but still rough around the edges.

"The first quarter we were definitely focused and ready to go," said N-P junior linebacker Titus Evans. "When we were in the shed everybody started laughing and making jokes. We were way too loose."

Evans, talking about how this team underperformed for stretches during the second half, picked off a pass and came the Huskies storm past the moat and ready to storm the castle to conquer all.

"We shut down the run game," said Evans. "The second half is where we need to keep our focus."

But the star of the game was Lamborn as he was in North Tama's backfield all night. Lamborn – who was fighting shoulder soreness and cramps throughout his career night on defense – amassed a stunning 4.5 sacks a day after he became N-P royalty during Thursday night's coronation. Lamborn tallied 8.5 tackles for loss. His final sack came on the last play of the game.

Lamborn's swim move past less-agile offensive linemen was obviously working on this evening. A bull rush sure doesn't hurt now and again, either.

"He's a lot stronger than you would think. He's actually one of our stronger kids," said Christensen. "Usually when you're 6-6, 6-7 – however tall he is – you're not that strong."

Husky junior safety Trae Geise returns an interception versus North Tama on Friday night.

Lamborn blocked a punt, another special teams marquee moment for the Huskies in a season that has seen several of them so far. The problem was the game's referee blew an inadvertent whistle that prevented star freshman defensive end Eli Kalainoff from taking the pigskin he recovered after Lamborn's block all the way to the house for six points.

Titus Evans also had a 51-yard touchdown rush in the fourth quarter called back after a suspect-at-best holding call negated the powerful burst to paydirt after yellow laundry was tossed on to the field.

The referees also seemed to stop a play prematurely after North Tama recovered a Husky fumble on a 4th-and-1 at the 7-yard line with 2:12 left in the third quarter. The Redhawks would have scored on that play, but it may have appeared that the NT fumble recoverer may have been down.

Evans, one of the most athletically gifted and physical players on the field, picked off a pass on the ensuing Redhawk possession after he went stride for stride downfield with a smaller receiver to pick the pass off some 30 yards from the line of scrimmage.

"We expect that out of him. He's one of our top four or five athletes," said Christensen.

Schrier would score NT's first TD of the game on a 25-yard screen pass.

Harrington also came up a yard short on the goal line on a 4th-and-2 keeper with 6:09 remaining in the final period.

"I think I'm more frustrated we got the ball inside the 5 at least three times and we didn't punch it in," said Christensen. "That's what we have to get better at."

Harrington also threw several nice balls as he hooked up with senior Joel Winters on a 22-yard scoring strike for N-P's third score. The Huskies would score all 26 of their first-half points in the second quarter.

Redhawk sophomore quarter Kolt Knack is definitely a gun-slinger as she threw a whopping 37 times, but only completed 27 percent (10-37) of his passes. The Huskies – like they have done a lot under the direction of Christensen in the three years he's been at the helm – forced turnovers. N-P picked off three passes – one each by Kendrick Huck, Trae Geise and Evans – to corral Knack for the most part. The mobile quarterback was limited to -8 rushing yards and was sacked six times.

Geise's interception was returned for a touchdown as he made a beeline toward the orange pylon in the right corner of the end zone, but the electrifying return was called back because of holding.

N-P was able to turn the tide on this night when energy and focus seemed to disappear at times.

"We started to get it back and that's when you started seeing these turnovers," said Lamborn. "It really was just a team effort. If one person just doesn't do their role, a whole play can go wrong."

North Tama – an 8-3 squad last year – fell to 1-3 overall and 0-3 in the district.

N-P (3-1, 1-1) travels to BCLUW (3-1, 2-1) for its homecoming game on Friday night in Conrad. The Comets defeated North Butler, 23-12, in their last game.

HUSKIES IMPROVE TO 3-1 WITH 32-12 WIN OVER NORTH TAMA

Leave it to the “king” to put an end to this marathon madness.

With one final sack of the quarterback on the last play of the game – the newly-crowned king of Nashua-Plainfield High School was truly “ruler” of all the land on Friday night underneath the big, bright lights of Lloyd Koob Field.

Aiden Lamborn – all 6-7 of him – had a career night to help put an exclamation point on one of the most important events of any homecoming week – the football game.

The gridiron grudge match took over three hours to crown a victor, but was certainly not void of intrigue and excitement.

Lamborn – Nashua-Plainfield’s newly-christened homecoming king – put a bow on this odd and strange Class A, District 3 battle that saw some weird, wild and definitely wacky plays that determined who would be the last team standing.

In a Husky homecoming contest that was rife with what looked like blatant officiating miscues, Nashua-Plainfield demonstrated it’s got plenty of grit to back up its glitz in a topsy-turvy 32-12 homecoming triumph over the Redhawks.

Caleb Sinnwell didn’t mince words on a sweltering Tuesday afternoon when talking about his home cross country course – the beautiful, lush, and sprawling Nashua Town & Country Club.

“It is the worst course in this district and possibly all districts,” said the no-punches-pulled Sinnwell about how hard it is to navigate around the Huskies’ home invite.

Golfers may have covered their ears when the studious and matter-of-fact Sinnwell described the challenges brought forth by the endless hills that comprise the green-sloped, yet steep course that hosted the Nashua-Plainfield

Huskies follow up solid invite with four-set win over North Butler

The Huskies found a spark, now they’re looking to roll with a new-found energy and finish this season on a winning note.

Homecoming week was a success for key components of the Nashua-Plainfield volleyball squad – seniors Paige Ripley and Bailey Fisher.

Ripley – who was crowned N-P’s Homecoming Queen last week – helped the Huskies rally past rival North Butler in four sets after a game one setback on Tuesday at home in a key Top of Iowa Conference battle.

“It has been kind of crazy with all the assemblies and the school activities and stuff – but I feel like we’ve made it work,” said Ripley, one of the top setters in the TIC. “Obviously this
