Nashua reduces sheriff's hours in new deal

City, supervisors approve contract that calls for hours of patrol to be reduced from 2,080 to 1,750 hours in new fiscal year

By BOB FENSKE

The city of Nashua will continue to contract with the Chickasaw County Sheriff's Office for law enforcement services when the new fiscal year begins July 1, but deputies in all likelihood will be spending less time on the streets of Nashua.

The City Council on Monday voted 3-2 to scale back the number of hours in the contract from 2,080 to 1,750, and the following morning, the Board of Supervisors voted to OK the new contract.

Coupled with the fact that the city won't be faced with a "two-tier" payment plan, Nashua's law enforcement costs will drop by more than $33,000 in 2024-25.

But that has left Chickasaw County Sheriff Ryan Shawver facing the "$33,000 question."

Start with the City Council meeting Monday night, when at least one council member wondered aloud if the city should even sign a new contract with the Sheriff's Office; instead, Jake Johnson said he might support just paying what Shawver calls a "drive-through rate" that smaller cities in the county pay.

Currently, New Hampton is the lone city in the county with its one police department. Two cities — Nashua and Fredericksburg — contract with the Sheriff's Office to receive guaranteed hours

School district is facing budget challenge, must cut $500,000

Board members will hear public comment at Wednesday meeting

By BOB FENSKE
Of the Reporter

Nashua-Plainfield Superintendent Todd Liechty knows it's not going to be easy to find budget reductions totaling $500,000, but he is trying to stay as positive as he can.

"We're not cutting any programs, and no one is going to lose their job," he said. "It's obviously never a fun process to go through budget reductions, but our kids are going to have the same opportunities next year as they do this year."

The School Board is scheduled to meet this coming Wednesday at 5 p.m. to take public input on the reductions to the budget for the fiscal year that begins on July 1.

The meeting will be held in the Junior High Commons area, and residents will have an opportunity to share their thoughts with board members and Liechty although there will be a time limit set for those who want to speak.

Liechty said after the board hears comments from the public, he will present his recommendations before the board decides how to proceed.

"I have my suggestions, but it is their decision," he said. "There's no question it's challenging, but our goal, the board's goal, is to do what's best for our kids and our school district."

Liechty said earlier this week that there are a myriad of reasons Nashua-Plainfield is facing its first large-scale budget reduction since the spring of 2018, the year the district decided to close its middle school in Plainfield.

Like many rural school districts, Nashua-Plainfield's enrollment has dropped or, at the very best, remained stagnant. The district also has what its top administrator called a "higher-than-average" salary scale when compared to surrounding school districts. And State Supplemental Aid (SSA) — the amount of money

Budget riddle still eludes supervisors

After three-hour meeting, board members still have a number of questions to answer

By BOB FENSKE
Of the Reporter

For more than three hours on Thursday afternoon, the Chickasaw County Board of Supervisors gave those with number phobias a nightmare that will last for a long, long time.

Back and forth, the four supervisors — Jake Hackman was unable to attend the budget workshop — tried to solve the county's 2024-25 budget dilemma. And while they made some progress, they also set up a meeting in which there could be plenty of fireworks.

Board members cut their own budget by more than $16,500, banded about raising the General Supplemental (GS) levy by almost a dollar per $1,000 valuation, discussed the possibility of moving a sheriff's deputy's salary from General Basic (GB) to Rural Services Basic (RSB) and considered backtracking on an earlier decision to give Secondary Roads 95 percent of the base RSB rate of $3.00375 per $1,000 valuation.

Instead, supervisors considered giving Secondary Roads 85 percent of the base, which would drop that funding from $1.99 million to $1.78 million, but as board member Matt Kuhn pointed out, supervisors have already earmarked $600,000 of the county's American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) funds to the department.

And even with all that, board members still weren't sure if they had solved the issue of having enough money for GB and enough money in that account's reserve to get it through the first three months of the 2025-26 fiscal year. That's important because the county doesn't collect tax revenue until Oct. 1 in any fiscal year.

Last week, the board asked department heads to take

Council digs into budget, sets city's max tax levy rate

By KELLY TERPSTRA
Of the Reporter

Nashua City Clerk John Ott relayed to city officials some important financial numbers that are critical to the town of Nashua at last Monday's City Council meeting.

Council members approved a proposed maximum tax levy rate that will be submitted to the Iowa Department of Management as well as a pre-levy amount for the $3.75 million general obligation bond that will help with the city's dam repair.

Ott said the city is authorized to borrow up to $3.75 million and the numbers he proposed are discussion points and will still have to be finalized on a vote later this year.

"This is a new step that we have for the budget season for Fiscal Year 24-25. We have to submit a proposed tax levy rate to the state of Iowa. They then submit it to the county and then the county has to do a mailer," said Ott. "The nice thing about this is we can send a higher number and if the Council decides at a later time that they want to adjust that down...we can certainly do that, but we can't go up. They recommend setting a higher number and then amending it down if you want to later."

Ott said the proposed levy rate with new evaluations show that the city's taxable valuations for non-debt service is $48,308,778. That valuation went up $579,866.

The liability property and insurance cost also increased.

"We're estimated to have a 30 percent increase this year. It goes from $73,000 to $101,000 next year," said Ott.

The taxable rate without debt levy for FY '24 is $14.026, but when you throw in the debt levy, it's $16.47.

That debt levy is going to increase for FY '25 according to Ott — mainly because of the repair work that will be done on the dam. Nashua's debt service for FY '24 was $106,704 and next year it's projected to be another look at their budgets and cut what they could, and department heads did come up with a total of $173,123 in reductions. But Auditor Sheila Shekleton told the board that she was worried that with budgets being tight that the county wouldn't generate enough in unspent budgets to help keep enough of a reserve to get it through the "tax-less" months. That led to a lengthy and, at times, spirited discussion. "I know you have a tough job," Sheriff Ryan Shawver said, "but as department heads, we need your direction. We need you to tell us what you want. We need a number." Supervisors discussed raising the GS levy rate from $1.17233 per $1,000 valuation a full dollar but eventually settled on a rate around $2.23 per $1,000 valuation. "We're pretty low on GS compared to the majority of counties in Iowa," Supervisor

Steve Breitbach said. "I know no one likes tax increases but ... we may not have a lot of choice." Late in January, board members reached a consensus on a RSB rate of around $3.51 per $1,000 valuation, an increase of 20 cents from this year's rate, and Kuhn said that if a deputy was shifted into RSB, he would propose cutting the funds earmarked for Secondary Roads so the rate wouldn't increase even more. "Unless we want to raise RSB more and I don't think there's an appetite for that, I don't see how you can get around this," he said. "We're running out of options ... and time." That's because by early next month, the county needs to set a max levy so that it can adhere to a new state law that requires entities like counties, cities and schools to notify by letter all property owners of maximum levies. Board Chairman Scott Cerwinski said one of his goals is to reduce the amount of money the county transfers from GB to GS, but he also worried about the county's ability to make it through the beginning of the fiscal year until tax revenue begins flowing into the county. "We still have to find a way to pay the bills," he said, "so we have to come to some kind of agreement on a [GS] levy that makes everyone happy, or at least that they will support." Instead of making any final decisions, board members decided to wait until Monday's meeting to try to put the finishing touches on the budget and see if it indeed had enough of a fund balance in both GB and GS set aside at the end of the 2024-25 budget year to begin the following fiscal year. Kuhn, who will not be at Monday's meeting, said he was worried that what he called the progress made Thursday would dissipate next week. "We made progress today," he said, "and I hope it doesn't get undone on Monday."

City Council compromises, supervisors OK contract with fewer Sheriff's Office hours of service. Last week, the Board of Supervisors approved raising contract, drive-through and dispatching rates by 10 percent. That took the contracted rates from $65 to $71.50 per hour and the drive-through rate, which is tied to the cities' 2020 Census figures, from $15 to $16.50 per resident. "I'm leaning towards doing the drive-thru rate, honestly," Councilman Jake Johnson said. "I think you guys do a good job, I just don't know if we need the patrol."

Shawver's response? "Jake, I don't know if I'll agree to that. "Of the 8,168 calls we had for service ... Nashua had the highest percentage of calls." Johnson replied that he wasn't saying "you guys are doing a bad job. I'm just trying to look at what we are getting for 140 grand?" Shawver told the council that he was discontinuing the "prepaid overtime" that Nashua has paid for the last two years, meaning that if the city accepted the 2,080 hours of service, its bill for the next fiscal year would drop from $158,465 to $148,720. That wasn't enough for some members of the council, although one member said she was in the "opposite" category. "I'd rather have them patrolling the bigger stuff than somebody's got an unregistered car in their driveway," Samantha Johnson said. "The other thing to consider, too, is all of our events throughout next year — Water Over the Dam Days, Winterfest — do you want those to be drive-through or do you want to know that somebody's here dedicated to those times?" She also wanted her fellow council members to consider what Nashua would be doing if it still had its own police department? "If we have our own department with one guy, would you be asking him to cut his hours down to 30-35 a week?" Councilman Ernie Willsher first suggested a two-tier approach in which the city contracted for a 1,000 hours and also paid the drive-through rate, the cost to the city would be $97,091.50. "You guys would handle our calls anyway," said Willsher. "That'd be a helluva lot cheaper."

After the discussion, Willsher made a motion to reduce hours to 1,750 hours for a cost of $125,125, Peggy Hall seconded and the motion passed 3-2 with both Samantha Johnson and Jake Johnson casting the lone two nay votes. The concern last week was that Nashua and Fredericksburg would just reduce the number of hours in the contracts for the fiscal year to avoid increased law enforcement costs. First up was Nashua as Shawver met with its City Council on Monday night, and those fears proved to be founded. Shawver told the supervisors that he dropped the drive-through rate in an effort to be fair to Nashua. "Fredericksburg doesn't pay that," he said, "and I just think we need to be consistent with that." Shawver told supervisors he understood Nashua's vote the night before. "I get it, everyone's having to make choices," Shawver said, "and they also talked about just doing the drive-through rate and I would have been totally against that." Still, that means the revenue in his 2024-25 budget will drop by more than $33,000. If there was good news for the sheriff, it came on Wednesday night, when the Fredericksburg City Council agreed to contract with the Sheriff's Office for the same amount of hours at the higher rate. "They did talk a little about reducing the number of hours," Shawver said Thursday morning, "but in the end, they settled on 1,020, the same amount as this year." The Board of Supervisors Thursday afternoon OK'd the new contract with Fredericksburg, but Shawver's "33,000 question" remained. "The question I have is do I have to absorb all that," the sheriff said Tuesday morning, and for a long moment, his question was met with silence by the board members. "I can't answer that," Supervisor Jake Hackman said, "and I don't think any of us can until we get a better handle on the budget." Still, Hackman, like other supervisors, said the final agreement with Nashua was better than they expected, and on a unanimous vote, board members approved the new contract.

Board moves closer to giving final OK for ambulance station remodel

BY BOB FENSKE
Of the Reporter

The Chickasaw County Board of Supervisors took a step forward with the plans to remodel Chickasaw County EMS' ambulance station so that it will have living quarters. If supervisors do give the go-ahead for the project, it looks like the county is going to pass on using the company that designed the remodeling project as its construction manager. Instead, when Stanton Electric owner Chuck Stanton told board members Tuesday that he would be interested in serving as the "project manager, construction manager or whatever you want to call it," board members expressed enthusiastic interest. The four "winning" subcontractor bids were from Country Carpentry, Mic's Plumbing and Heating, Stanton Electric and Midwest Flooring. "Would you be interested," Stanton said, "in taking the construction management fee out and having a local person do it?" When asked by Supervisor Matt Kuhn if he was interested,

Stanton quickly responded. "I am," he said. "I wrote down before I got here that project manager would be 5 percent and the bonding fee of 3 percent. ... I'd make you a new, very simplified, spreadsheet, and say here we go. I can get simply get this down to seven lines in about three minutes." Board members agreed and reached a consensus to have Stanton return to the board on Monday to give the county a final number. The key issue for the county is that the estimate must be under $196,000 for the county to be able to continue with it. If it's higher than that number, then the county would have to follow more specific state laws for higher-cost building projects. "I know that between Mike Shekleton, me and Lester Glaser aren't going anywhere," Stanton said. "We'll get the job done and it'll be right." Stanton was asked if he could have that spreadsheet back to the board by Monday? "I can," he said. "I want to keep everything rolling, and so when I talk to people and saying we're doing this that everything's in line."

Nashua-Plainfield Elementary School students walk through the doors on the first day of classes this past August, and while the district is facing the challenge of coming up with $500,000 in budget reductions, school administrators and School Board members say no programs will be cut and no one will lose their jobs when the process is completed.

Superintendent to make budget reduction recommendations school districts receive per student — has not kept pace with inflation.

Liechty was quick to point out that the $3.279 million project to construct baseball and softball diamonds in Plainfield have nothing to do with the fact the district has to go through budget reductions for 2024-25.

"It's the question I know some people are going to ask. 'How can you afford a $3 million project for the diamonds and then have to cut the budget,'" Liechty said, "and the answer is simple but not so easy to understand: They come from two different funds."

The bonds for the diamond project will be paid back with funds from the district's SAVE fund, which is supported by the State Penny for Infrastructure, and SAVE funds can not be used to pay for things like staff salaries and benefits, curriculum and programming.

Instead, those items must come out of the general fund, which is where the budget reductions are being considered, and since 80 percent of the General Funds is made up of salaries and benefits, that, Liechty said, puts "salaries under a microscope."

Liechty's recommendations are a varied lot, topped off by moving the district's Teacher and Leadership Compensation (TLC) funds into the General Fund, which will account for $213,000 in savings. He also is recommending the district not replace two retiring teachers and to absorb another staff member's reduction from full-time to part-time status.

Nashua-Plainfield will also generate some savings with the fact that its new "superintendent partner" will pay more of the superintendent's salary and benefits than its old one did.

The district has shared a superintendent with Rockford since 2018, but beginning next year, the district will share its top administrator with Tripoli while Rockford has signed a superintendent sharing agreement with Garner-Hayfield-Ventura. Nashua-Plainfield has paid 70 percent of the superintendent's contract with its Rockford sharing agreement but that number will drop to 60 percent when it begins sharing agreement with Tripoli July 1.

Liechty is also recommending to the board that it save more than $80,000 by only paying for a teacher's health insurance premium and not paying teachers an additional stipend that covers the difference between its contract and the health insurance premium.

"None of this is easy, budget reductions never are," said Liechty, who is retiring at the end of this school year and will be replaced by current Tripoli Superintendent Jay Marley, "but it's important for our board to hear from residents so they can make the best decisions they can. All we're asking is that people be respectful and understand that we're here to find the best possible solution we can with the challenges we're facing."

Everybody Hurts to bring 'amazing' film, story to area residents

By BOB FENSKE
Of the Reporter

A local non-profit organization that focuses on mental health awareness and suicide prevention will hold a free screening next month of a documentary film that chronicles the life of a teenager who was paralyzed by a suicide attempt that propelled her on a mission to use her experience to help others.

Everybody Hurts will show the film "My Ascension" on Tuesday, March 5, in the New Hampton Middle School gym — i.e., the old competition gym — and the event begins at 5 p.m. with a free-will donation meal. At 6 p.m., the documentary will air, and following the showing, the subject of the film will hold a discussion on youth suicide prevention and mental health wellness.

"My Ascension" tells the story of Emma Benoit, a Louisiana 16-year-old who attempted suicide in June 2017. She survived the attempt but was paralyzed, which led her to bring Hope Squad, a school-based suicide prevention program, to her home state.

The film also shares the stories of two remarkable young people who tragically did not survive their attempts, and we learn first-hand from their families, friends, school officials and suicide prevention experts about the devastating effects of suicide and what can be done to prevent it.

Dawn Heying, whose daughter Brittney died from suicide in 2020, started Everybody Hurts and said that she heard Benoit speak last year during an appearance in Cedar Falls.

"Her story is just amazingly good," Heying said, "and I think it's important that we hear it. The film itself stands on its own, but to have Emma here I think will really make an impact on our people."

Everybody Hurts holds an annual 5K run/walk each April

— this year's is scheduled to take place on Friday, April 26 — and uses funds raised from the event to not only host events like Benoit's film and visit but also to help area families struggling with mental health issues and to provide scholarships to area residents studying to enter the mental health field.

"If I'm going to be representing you in the United States Senate," he said, "then I need to know what you're thinking and I need to hear it from you. That's why I come to places like this. Not everyone can get off work to come and see me so I appreciate Milkhouse letting me come here to talk to you."

During his hour-long visit, he touched on a number of issues — ranging from the economy to the need for a new Farm Bill to so-called climate change to immigration.

Asked by a factory worker where he thought the economy was heading, Grassley said he is more optimistic about it than he was a year ago.

"I don't think we're headed for a recession, and even though I see some signs of a slowdown," he said, "I don't think it's going to be all that noticeable to most people."

Another factory worker pointed out the warm February and asked Grassley if he was worried about the climate. The senator's reply was careful and measured.

"I think, yes, it does make you wonder," he said of a February that has had more days in the 50s than it has had days with high temperatures below the freezing point. "I don't think we know the cause. Is it natural or is it man-made, maybe it's a little bit of both."

He also defended his and fellow Republicans' stand on illegal immigration, lashing out at President Joe Biden for "not protecting our border," but Grassley also said that by no means should his stance on illegal immigration be taken as he is against all immigration.

U.S. Sen. Charles Grassley listens as Milkhouse Candles Chief Operating Officer Nick Sparrow explains the process when it comes to manufacturing candles at the company's New Hampton factory.

THE 'SENIORS' IN THE UNITED STATES SENATE

Here are the 10 longest serving members of the United States Senate with their party, state and first date in the Senate:

- Charles E. Grassley, R-IowaJan. 3, 1981
- Mitch McConnell, R-KentuckyJan. 3, 1985
- Patty Murray, D-WashingtonJan. 3, 1993
- Ron Wyden, D-OregonFeb. 6, 1996
- Richard J. Durbin, D-IllinoisJan. 3, 1997
- Jack Reed, D-Rhode IslandJan. 3, 1997
- Susan Collins, R-MaineJan. 3, 1997
- Charles E. Schumer, D-New YorkJan. 3, 1999
- Michael D. Crapo, R-IdahoJan. 3, 1999
- Thomas R. Carper, D-DelawareJan. 3, 2001

"No one can say we're anti-immigration," he said, "because we are a nation of immigrants. ... We have a million legal immigrants come to our country each year, and for me, I have no problem with that. They're doing it the right way, the legal way."

During the tour of the factory that employs almost 100 workers, Grassley was told that Milkhouse, like a number of Chickasaw County manufacturers, employ high school seniors who are eligible for "work-release" programs.

He told those students during his impromptu "factory town-hall meeting" that he is pushing for all post-secondary students to be eligible for federal Pell Grants.

"If you need to go somewhere for a year or two to learn a trade," he said, "I don't understand why you shouldn't be eligible for a Pell Grant. That makes no sense to me, and we're working to get that changed."

He also took a few "soft-ball" questions from the factory workers, including one who asked him about his family and his route to becoming a U.S. senator.

That gave him a chance to remind workers that his wife of 69 years, Barbara, is a "New Hampton gal," but when it came to being a U.S. senator, he said it wasn't "my plan long ago."

Instead, he told the Milkhouse employees that he grew up in a home that, while not politically active, contained a lot of talk about history and government and that "things just worked out the way they did."

He said he ran for an eighth term in 2022 because he knew that he could help Iowa, especially with the fact that he tops the Senate's seniority list.

"I think I see being a U.S. senator as an opportunity to do good and improve society," he said.

"Iowa's needs are No. 1 on my agenda, and with my position, my seniority, I felt like I could do the most good for my state."

And before he departed, he told the candle factory workers that he was impressed with the work they do on a daily basis. He also pointed out that one of the things he most enjoys about his annual tour of the state he represents is learning about businesses like Milkhouse.

"A lot of times I go to places and I had no idea they did what they did," he said. "We have so many businesses like yours that need their stories told. And you know, I think some of that is we're in Iowa. We don't brag enough ... and you have every right to brag."

City Council

There were no council member comments.

Ryan Shawver presented the proposed FY'24/25 Chickasaw County Sheriff's contract. The contract had a proposed contract cost of $71.50/hour for 2080 hours for a total cost to the city of $148,720. This would be a flat fee and if the Sheriff's Department were in Nashua more than 2080 hours there would be no additional costs; however, the Sheriff's Department would no longer enforce snow parking or any other city ordinances either. They would still investigate complaints related to dogs and dangerous animals running at large that are related to Iowa Code Chapter 351 (Dogs and Other Animals). The city would have the final decision and be responsible for issuing any ordinance violations. The new contract price would be less than the current two-tiered system which is $158,465. Sheriff Shawver stated that he would like to make the contracts uniform between cities for simplicity. After discussion, Willsher/M to reduce the contract hours down to 1750/year for a cost of $125,125. Hall seconded/ motion carried. RC: 3 ayes and 2 nays (J. Johnson and S. Johnson). Motion passed on a 3-2 vote. Sheriff Shawver will take the city's proposal back to the Chickasaw County Board of Supervisors.

Zade McCall Street Supervisor presented his monthly report. He stated that he has ordered some cold patch for pothole repairs, and it should be here in March. He mentioned some storm drains that are washing out on Cedar St. and a repair that is needed to the jet truck and depending on how long it will be out of service we may have to contact a 3 rd party to jet the lines while the jet truck is out of service.

Park Board President Nate Sinnwell presented his monthly report to the council.

Heather Hackman Library Director presented her monthly report to the council.

Discussion/Action

The council discussed and/or acted on multiple items.

The council discussed the FY'24/25 proposed tax levy rate to submit to the Iowa Department of Management as well as pre-levy amount for the dam repair GO Bond.

J. Johnson/M, Willsher/S, M/C to approve the agreement for Calhoun Burns 2024 Bridge Inspections. RC: all ayes. The estimate for routine visual inspection and reporting on two bridges (Charles City Road and Old Hwy 218) was $1300 and the initial Emergency Vehicle (EV) and all system overweight permit analysis will be billed at an hourly rate.

Val Johnson Nashua Area Chamber President informed the council of the 5-2-1-0 Healthy Eating Active Lives initiative. She said there will be a survey available March 16 th to get input from different generations on what they would like to see for health and wellness. There is potentially $50,000 available over the next 3 years in grant funding. They are looking for people who would be interested in joining a steering committee.

J. Johnson/M, S. Johnson/S, M/C to allow Allan Pederson to remove the stairs at the Chickadee building as long as he signed a hold harmless agreement waiving any liability to the city. RC: all ayes.

City Clerk Ott mentioned that the property owner of 311 Main St. seems to be willing to sign their property over to the city; however, the property at 313 Main St. is going to be a little more involved since the property owner lives out of state. City Clerk Ott informed the council that City Attorney Skilton has been working on the process to acquire 313 Main St.

City Clerk Ott mentioned that the city website is outdated and needs to be updated. This has been brought up by several individuals. He mentioned that one possible use for some ARPA funds could be to update the website. J. Johnson noted that if we did upgrade the website, he would like the minutes posted as a continuous document for easy search capabilities. City Clerk Ott will look for website designers and get some bids.

Zade McCall gave the council some information about a tree management inventory and maintenance plan that the city had received. He will get estimates for taking care of some of the trimming and removal that was recommended in the plan.

J. Johnson/M, Willsher/S, M/C to approve Mayor Kelleher and either Deputy Clerk Berends or City Clerk Ott to attend the Iowa Rural Summit conference April 10-12, 2024. RC: all ayes.

There was no other business: J. Johnson/M to adjourn. S. Johnson/S, M/C. RC: all ayes. The meeting adjourned at 8:28PM.

Council gets update on two 'nuisance' properties

almost $395,000.

"What we're proposing is $12.28 without the debt levy, but with the debt levy it's $20.34," said Ott. "That debt levy is kind of what's killing us. Our taxes actually look pretty good except for the dam repair."

Ott plans for a first-year payment of $300,000 to begin to pay off the geo bond.

"This is kind of what I went with. I went with a high of a $302,500 payment, which adds $6.06 to the levy. So on a house that's $100,000 valuation, it's $280.98," said Ott. "We can always change that. The interest rates are 5.06 percent. That's kind of what they're estimated now, but we don't know what's going to happen until we actually get the bond."

Nashua Mayor Hal Kelleher informed the Council that Zone 1 inspections for nuisance properties have been completed and that process went well. Council member Jake Johnson recommended that the mayor make a list of properties that have been notified and the city workers could follow up on those in a couple weeks.

Ott gave an update on two nuisance properties at 311 Main St. and 313 Main St. "Three-hundred-eleven is willing to give up the building to the city. That's kind of in the works now," said Ott. "Three-hundred-thirteen, I believe the petition now has been filed."

Ott said the 313 Main St. property owner lives in Arizona. "That process is probably going to take a bit longer, but things are in the works for both of those properties," said Ott.

Kelleher reminded that if one property has to be torn down, so does the other.

"Of course we can't do 313 without 311," said Kelleher.

Ott also brought up the idea of redesigning the city's website. "I was thinking that maybe one of the things that the Council may consider doing with the ARPA (American Rescue Plan Act) funds is redesigning the website or just using some of the budgeted money," said Ott. "I would guess the cost would be between $3,000 and $5,000, but I don't have any idea. I'll get bids."

Johnson made a request to have the minutes posted on the new website as a continuous document for easy search capabilities.

The next scheduled Nashua City Council meeting is slated for Monday, March 4.

Husky newcomers get a 'taste' of state in effort to get on medal stand though he was seeded second – didn't get a particularly favorable draw with Jacobsen on his side of the bracket. Jacobsen, who finished sixth at state this past week, almost defeated Rinken at the district meet before the Husky star rallied for an incredible, 7-6, decision.

STATE MEET: FROM 9

"They've wrestled each other since junior high – three to four to five times a year," said Frost.

It wasn't just Rinken that saw difficult matchups much earlier than N-P thought they would encounter – but that's the state tournament sometimes.

"The places we were sitting in the bracketing were tough," said Frost. "If we lost a match we ended up coming back in a situation with some of the other best kids in the bracket. They were circumstances beyond your control sometimes."

Frost had this to say about Rinken injury-defaulting out of the tournament on Day Two.

"Individually, I hated to see him not compete and at least try to get a medal, but as far as the team aspect goes – that wasn't a consideration at all because we were probably not going to be in a favorable position to be in the top three anyway," said Frost.

While it may have been next to impossible for the Huskies to claim another third-place trophy like they did last winter at the traditional state meet, what the Huskies dealt with this time around didn't seem fair on any number of levels.

Bottom line – seeds and placement in a bracket matter quite a bit more than people might realize.

Regardless, Don Bosco once again ruled the roost in Class 1A with 183.5 points – the sixth-consecutive state traditional title the Dons have won.

Clearly, the top three teams distinguished themselves in downtown Des Moines and it was basically a dogfight as to see who would finish fourth in 1A – which the Huskies did earlier in the month at state duals.

Don Bosco is now tied with Lisbon with 16 titles for second place all-time to Waterloo West's 17 championships. The top three in the small-school standings ended up being Alburnett (152) and Wilton (144). The three schools combined to reel in five individual state championships at those grappler's respective weight classes.

"We would have had to have many more wins and some higher places – that's just saying if Jayden would have won – to even make a top-three finish," said Frost.

Evans (30-2), seeded second in his 175-pound weight class, entered the tournament undefeated but lost in the semifinal round for the second consecutive year to No. 3 Jace Nelson-Brown (38-5), who prevented Evans from reaching the finals with a 10-1 major decision. Brown stopped Evans in sudden victory in the exact same scenario in 2023 by a score of 4-2. The two wrestled at regional duals this winter and Evans won by injury default after Nelson-Brown hurt his knee in the hyped showdown.

"That would have been nice if we could have had a full match and had a little bit more sense of what he did," said Frost about Nelson-Brown's injury default.

Evans defeated Gatlin Rogers (43-10) of Wilton two times at state, the last being a pin in just 37 seconds in the medal match. Evans pinned Rogers in 2:35 in the quarters.

Evans was upset by West Hancock's Creighton Kelly (34-5) with a chance to wrestle for third place on the line in the consolation semis on Saturday. Kelly shocked Evans with a first-period pin in just 1:43. Evans had defeated Kelly three times in the regular season – 11-7, 8-4 and 11-9 in their last meeting prior to state at the Doug Trees Bearcat Invitational.

"Losing to that Kelly – I'm not saying it wasn't legit – but that was kind of fluke. He got in a pickle," said Frost.

White, seeded fifth in his 190-pound bracket, finished a remarkable senior season with a record of 46-6. His chance at wrestling alongside Evans on Friday in the semifinals was dashed in a wild 9-7 loss to No. 4 seed Landon Fernandez (30-4) of Don Bosco in the quarters.

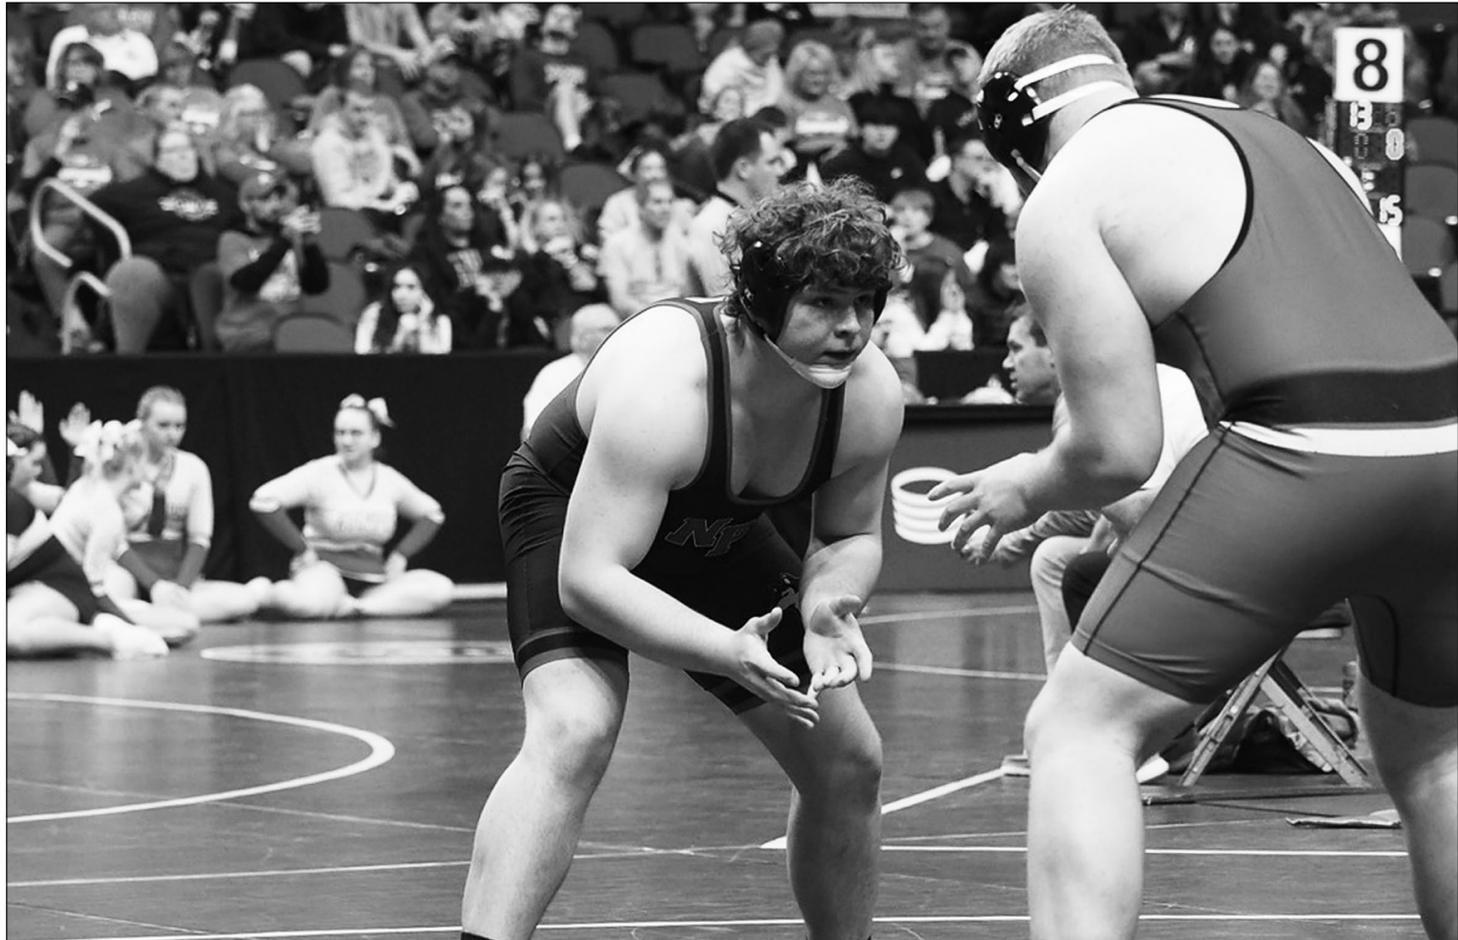

"We definitely out-wrestled the guy in that match – two to one. Unfortunately, the better guy didn't win," said Frost.

Fernandez came out the victor in a very controversial match that saw Frost get heated after a White takedown near the edge of the mat was taken off the board and reversed that would have made the score 5-5 headed into the final period. Fernandez earned a takedown with five seconds remaining to survive in a match that could have gone either way, it was that close.

"He was right in there with several matches, especially the Don Bosco match," said Frost about White. "That was another one of those controversial situations where every point mattered and the kid stalled and played the edge of the mat. We get a couple points that get taken back away. It was just a combination of a lot of tough things."

White, like Evans, lost in the consolation semis to No. 3 Nathan Beitz (46-3) of Maquoketa Valley, 2-1.

"We just couldn't quite get things together," said Frost. "We had every opportunity to get an escape point right at the end of the match with like five seconds to go to at least tie it up. We just didn't convince the referee that it was an escape. That was just another close call within seconds of at least getting it to overtime."

White bounced back with an 8-3 decision over Drew Lansing of Wapsie Valley in his placing bout. White wrestled in six matches and won four of them (two against Hinton's Jacob Bishop).

"He's a top-three caliber wrestler. You gotta prove it in every match," said Frost about White.

No. 3 Nic Brase, a junior, was wrestling with a heavy heart as he lost his grandfather on Sunday, right before the start of the tournament. Brase (44-5) placed seventh and is now a two-time state placewinner after he earned a fifth-place finish last year at the same weight (113 pounds).

"He had a lot of stuff going on," said Frost. "It's been a tough week. His grandfather died that Sunday before the tournament. The whole family's pretty tight and that weighed a little bit on his mind."

It was another what-if scenario for the Huskies and Brase as well as he was amazingly paired up with the No. 1 ranked wrestler according to IAWrestle – Denver's Gavin Landers (46-0) – in the quarters. Somehow, Landers was only seeded No. 11 at 113 and he would go on to claim his first state title at that weight class, which included an 8-1 win over Brase on Thursday evening. Brase had lost to Landers, 8-0, at the Tripoli Invite earlier in the year.

Gage Samo (34-10) of WACO knocked off Brase in the fifth round of consolations on Friday night in sudden victory – 2-0.

As it seemed par for the course for a handful of Huskies all throughout the tournament – Brase encountered controversy as well as Samo was awarded two points in the first overtime session (sudden victory) after referees convened to determine whether or not the WACO wrestler's takedown was a legitimate scoring maneuver.

"He didn't help himself, either, by just not being aggressive enough," said Frost about Brase. "When you're in that situation, you've been down there before – you're a placewinner, you know what it's going to take and if you're not going to go out offensively and battle, you gotta just accept your fate."

Brase won his medal match over Tommy Booth of Pleasantville by a score of 5-1.

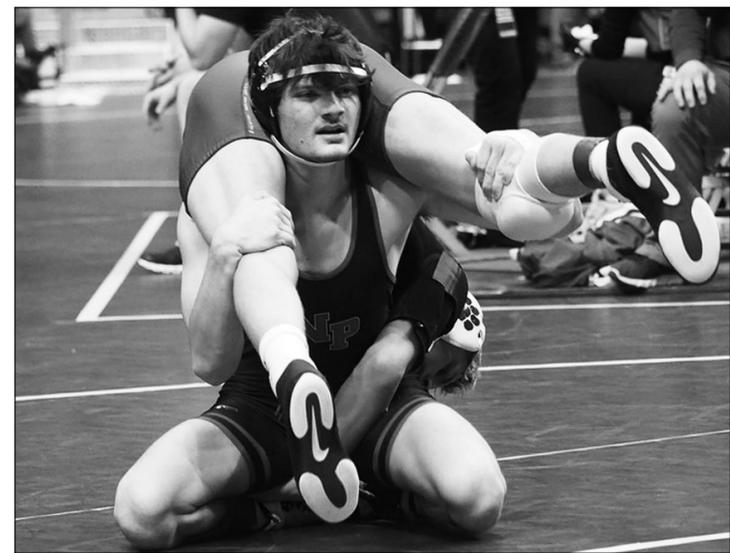

Jackson Carey – a junior who competed in his second-consecutive state meet – placed eighth at 157 pounds.

Jackson Carey (30-13) beat Shayden Washburn (45-15) of Alburnett in the Round of 16 on Wednesday by major decision (11-3). He ended up losing in his consolation match to Washburn by a 5-2 decision right before his medal match.

"The kid's a tough kid," said Frost. "We didn't have quite the match we did the first time down there to get the points that we needed."

Carey lost to Wyatt Vanderwerff of Jesup in his medal match by fall in 3:18. He earned his first state medal as a Husky as he pinned Gage Holub of Lisbon in the second period (4:42) in his first match in the blood round on Friday.

Husky senior Aiden Sullivan (35-10) lost another heartbreaker to Wyatt Hanna of Lake Mills – 4-3 – on Thursday in the consolation third round at 215 pounds. That loss prevented Sullivan from wrestling in the blood round on Friday and getting a chance to earn the first individual state medal of his career.

Hanna (49-7) would go on to place fourth and defeated Sullivan, 6-4, in sudden victory at districts a week prior. The two wrestled in several close matches head-to-head this winter. Sullivan lost his first match to Hanna in the season-opener at Mason City Newman by fall. Hanna defeated Sullivan 8-4 at the Doug Trees Invite as well.

Sullivan won by major decision (12-4) over Luke Moore of English Valleys/Tri-County in his first match on Wednesday. He followed up that win with another major decision triumph – 12-3 – over Marcus Silva of Lawton-Bronson on Thursday.

"Again bracketing – if we're higher than a 14th seed or if we're somewhere else, we definitely get on to a path where we're a placewinner," said Frost. "Aiden Sullivan is definitely a top-six wrestler – probably a five wrestler in my mind. It's too bad being a senior he couldn't have that medal to prove it. All of us that know wrestling know that he was a very capable guy."

Sullivan, White and Evans capped their careers on the best stage possible – under the bright lights and in front of the big crowd at the "Well."

"It's tough for these seniors to go out with maybe not quite accomplishing every bit of their goals, but they seemed satisfied. It was emotional when they were done," said Frost. "Getting a medal again was rewarding for those guys."

For the Husky first-timers that competed at state – Connor Sullivan (106 pounds, 27-27), Tyler Zimmer (138 pounds, 28-22), Devon Blanchard (144 pounds, 37-16) and Isaac Jones (285 pounds, 27-22) – it's a chance for all of them to return to Des Moines next year with a year of state experience under their belt. They'll be the next wave of wrestlers to continue the Huskies' legacy of top-notch wrestling in the super-competitive state of Iowa.

"They got a taste of it. They gotta set their mind now where their goals for the future are to get on the stand," said Frost. "They figure out – hmmm – maybe I need to do more work now in the offseason. Maybe I need to get more prepared if I actually want to get a medal down there rather than being 0-2 and barbecue."

N-P assistant coach Shane Huck – who has been on Frost's coaching staff for well over 15 years – was awarded the Junior High Coach of the Year in Class 1A by the IWOA (Iowa Wrestling Coaches & Officials Association) prior to the start of the finals on Saturday night.

Kelly Terpstra/Reporter

"It's well-deserved. He's been a big part of our program – both junior high and high school," said Frost. "He's put in a lot of hours being a positive influence. It's good to get him honored and rewarded in that way."

Huskies take 10th at state

Evans, White, Brase and Carey bring home medals after up-and-down week

BY KELLY TERPSTRA
Of the Reporter

Tough luck, questionable calls and a field that was absolutely loaded in Class 1A.

That's an almost insurmountable hurdle to cross – even for the Nashua-Plainfield Huskies.

The traditional state wrestling tournament down in Des Moines isn't for the faint of heart.

Only the strong survive in an attempt to climb atop the podium stand or help their squad snare a team trophy – of which only a trio of teams could do in each of the three classes that competed at Wells Fargo Arena in the grueling, four-day state meet last week.

So to hear Husky head coach Al Frost speak – you'll understand his frustration.

"The thing about the whole tournament – we did not get very many breaks," said Frost.

"We didn't get very many breaks on some scoring. In a couple situations we scored once and they took points back away. Those are tough situations to overcome."

You won't hear Frost – who is ranked in the top five all-time in career dual wins as an active prep coach in the state of Iowa – grumble all that often after the fact. But he did take exception to what he thought were circumstances and situations that prevented his wrestlers from achieving their maximum capability.

"I get it – it's the state tournament and I know you're not going to get every call your way," said Frost. "It just seemed like we had more than our fair share of things not being quite in our favor."

Frost – who began his legendary coaching career clear back in 1989 at Plainfield – helped guide his Huskies to a 10th-place finish (56.5 points). The Huskies reeled in four medals – highlighted by seniors Titus Evans (175) and Tate White's (190) fifth-place finishes.

The Huskies achieved all that despite their highly-ranked and defending state champ – junior Jayden Rinken – essentially wrestling with one arm after experiencing a debilitating shoulder injury two weeks prior at state duals. Rinken wrestled one match on Wednesday – which he lost – and medical forfeited his next match on Thursday. The second-ranked wrestler at 120 pounds was aiming to become just the second Husky wrestler in the history of the school to claim two state titles alongside his older brother, Garret Rinken.

That quest and road to title No. 2 for Jayden will have to wait until next year after he was upset, 3-2, by No. 15 seed Dawson Jacobsen (51-9) of Central Springs in his Round of 16 match. The two have wrestled since they were much younger and Rinken, even

The Huskies' Nic Brase (above) works to get back points in his round-of-16 match Wednesday while teammate Aiden Sullivan (below) talks to the referee after winning a consolation round match on Thursday.

He showed plenty of courage and grit, but defending state champion Jayden Rinken's state tournament lasted just one match as the Nashua-Plainfield junior suffered a shoulder injury during the state duals and defaulted after losing his first-round match.

Devon Blanchard's head gear covers his eyes but he wrestles on during the state meet.

New Hampton pastor wins $500,000 Lottery prize

Special to the Reporter

A New Hampton man said he felt calm Tuesday as he claimed a $500,000 lottery prize. But he admits that was definitely not the case when he first realized he'd won big. "I was shaking pretty good then, I think," Kevin Frey said as he claimed the eighth of 14 top prizes in the "$500,000 Ca$h" scratch game.

Frey in fact was so thrown off by winning big that he left behind his winning ticket.

"I was so excited and flustered that I left the ticket inside of the Casey's store and went out to the car and started calling everybody, calling my wife at first and everybody else," he said.

When one of his adult children asked Frey to send a text of the winning ticket, the situation hit him.

"And then I realized, 'I don't have it! It's in the store!'" Frey said. "Fortunately, I was still in the parking lot of the Casey's store and I ran back inside and asked the employee for the ticket. She was so flustered, she forgot to give it to me the first time. So, we finally got it on the right page."

The 64-year-old Frey, is the longtime pastor at Trinity Lutheran Church, and he purchased his ticket at the Casey's store in New Hampton.

So why did his son want to see a picture of the winning ticket?

"My kids know that I tell some pretty good tales sometimes," Frey said with a laugh. "So the oldest son who lives down in Des Moines here said that it's not true until he sees a picture of the ticket. And so we took care of that and he was pretty excited, too."

The $500,000 Ca$h game is a $50 scratch game that features prizes ranging from $50 up to $500,000. Players try to match numbers in the play area on tickets in the game to win a prize. The game has overall odds of winning of 1 in 3.09.
