Engineer makes pitch for roads

Lensing shares concerns with supervisors about proposed Secondary Roads budget

By BOB FENSKE
Of the Reporter

Chickasaw County's engineer pleaded the case for the Secondary Roads Department to the Board of Supervisors during its Monday meeting and warned that a variety of factors could lead to a cut in services to rural residents.

"Basically all across the board in our department, we've had significant price increases," Engineer Roman Lensing told board members. "Our diesel fuel alone, we're already at our line-item allocation for fiscal year 23 and we're not even two-thirds through winter. And probably the worst is to come. Typical years, February is our most snowfall and now the board wants to reduce funds from the current year to next year."

Board Chairman Matt Kuhn suggested that the board may have to look at a larger increase to the RSB levy and suggested $3.60 per $1,000 valuation.

"I understand that it's a double-edged sword," Kuhn said. "If we cut your budget, people will be mad; if we raise [the tax levy], people will be mad. The people I've talked to, though, want the ambulance. They know it's going to cost money."

Scratch that; supervisors want used rig

Board directs its EMS director to look for used 'backup' ambulance

By BOB FENSKE
Of the Reporter

The Chickasaw County Board of Supervisors has put the brakes on purchasing a third new ambulance for Chickasaw County EMS, although board members said Monday that doesn't necessarily mean they don't want to purchase a "backup" rig.

During a meeting last week, board members voted 3-2 to ask the service's director, Joel Knutson, to put together requests for proposals to purchase a third ambulance, but one of supervisor said Monday he had reconsidered his affirmative vote.

"I've been thinking about this all week," Travis Suckow said. "I'm not sure, in fact, I know I don't want to support a new ambulance at this time right now."

Knutson, as he did a week ago, pushed for the service to have a third ambulance as a backup to the two new rigs the service purchased before going into service on Jan. 1.

"[If] our ambulance hits a deer, we go down to one ambulance within the county," he said. "So then while that ambulance is in the shop for a week or whatever, we only have one ambulance. We can no longer take any transfers out of Mercy so there goes a huge loss in revenue. And what happens with our backup ambulance calls? The need is there for a third ambulance."

Knutson said the idea of using the ambulance owned by Nashua Area EMS simply doesn't work because the two services operate under different licenses, and he also took on the issue would a third ambulance be used to take transfers from outside the county.

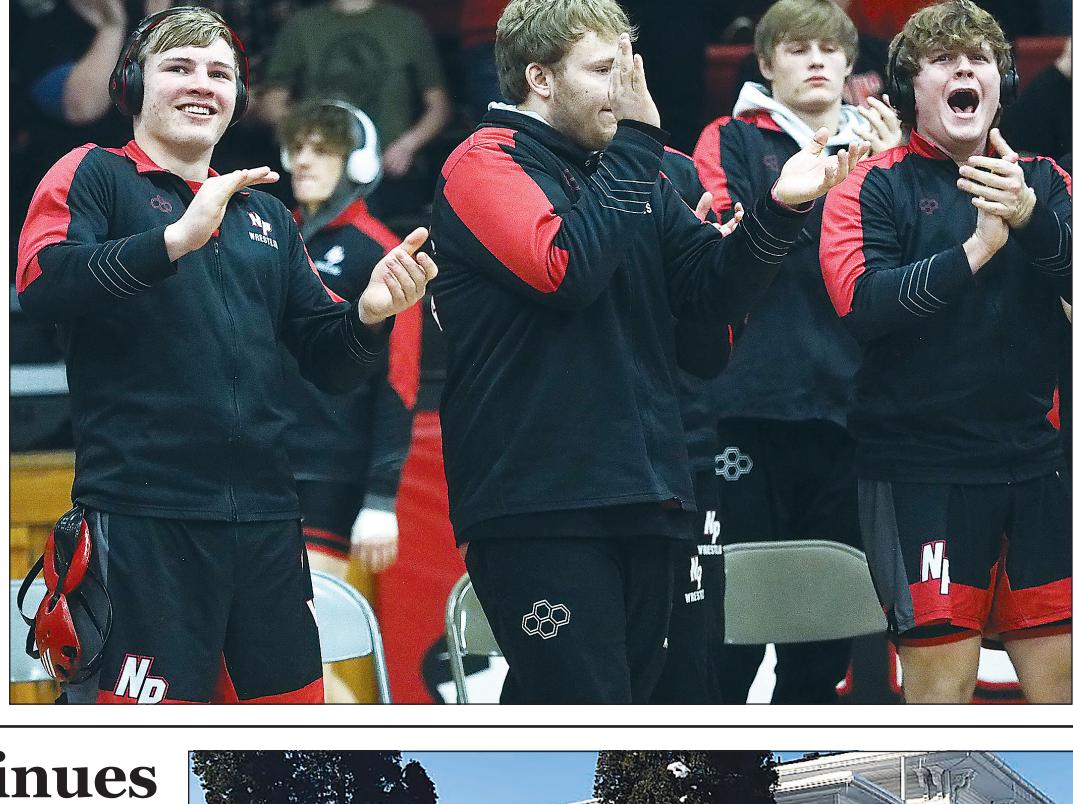

"I've heard people saying we'd buy a third ambulance for Cerro Gordo and Black Hawk counties," he said, "That literally could not be further from the truth. If we had that, yes it would be an option."

He reiterated that transfers are a key source of revenue for any ambulance service and pointed out that if the service averaged just one out-of-county transfer a month, its return on investment would be seven or eight years.

More importantly, though, Knutson said a third rig would serve as a backup if one of the Latest storm continues quite the snowy winter

Weekend storm drops 6.8 inches, city has already surpassed last year's total snowfall

No one needs to tell Chickasaw County Engineer Roman Lensing or the county's Secondary Roads Department that — so far, at least — it has been a snowy winter.

New Hampton pool needs you ... to be a lifeguard

Parks and Recreation Department pulling out all the stops in an effort to be open 'regularly' when summer rolls around

By BOB FENSKA
Of the Reporter

The New Hampton Municipal Pool may be blanketed with the latest snowfall, but the facility is near the top on "to-do list" for the Parks and Recreation Department that runs one of the city's favorite summer hangouts.

More to the point, the department and its director, Tara Hackman, are putting on a full-court press when it comes to the recruitment of lifeguards.

Basically, Hackman wants the pool to return to the "good ol' days" when the pool was open regularly. That hasn't happened the past two years because of a shortage of lifeguards, and Hackman and her assistant, Brodie Bohlen, say that the pool will have relatively few of its 2022 lifeguards returning this summer.

"We get how busy kids are," Hackman said, "but we're doing everything we can to get a full complement of lifeguards this year. With sports, camps, family vacations, we get that they may not be able to work full-time, but one of our pitches is that, hey if you're in a sport, get certified and come and work at the pool on Saturdays. Every little bit helps."

Hackman said that the Parks Board has approved wage increases in an attempt for the pool to be more competitive with other businesses. Lifeguards will start at $12 per hour while water-safety instructors will be start at $13 per hour. Other pool employees — like concession stand workers, swim lesson aides and "top-of-slide" workers — will start at $9 per hour.

Hackman added that the pool is seeking out those from other towns besides New Hampton, pointing out that a number of Nashua residents have been pool lifeguards.

The department will also offer a free lifeguard training course May 19-21 at the pool, and those that can attend the New Hampton program, can be reimbursed the costs of courses at the University of Northern Iowa and Wartburg College.

Those that apply for lifeguard and WSI positions by Feb. 27 will also receive a $25 gift card to a local business of their choice.

"We're going to go out and talk at the schools," Hackman said, "and we're flooding social media as much as we can. We've tried to make it as competitive as we can, and we're emphasizing it's a great summer job, one that looks really good on a resume."

Those who are interested in applying for pool positions should contact either Hackman or Bohlen at 641-394-5464.

Chickasaw County Engineer Roman Lensing said the proposed Secondary Roads budget for the 2023-24 fiscal year leaves little "wiggle room" for the county to handle natural disasters like the flooding that took place on county roads in August 2021.

Supervisors face budget challenge

said "either way, I think we need to keep our roads up," but conceded that he wasn't quite sure how the board was going to raise the funds that Secondary Roads needs.

The issue, Lensing said, is that the board's decision to reduce the requested allocation to secondary roads for 2024 fiscal year from 100% to 85% of the maximum allowable for that individual department ($3.00375 per $1,000 of taxable rural property) will not keep up with rising costs of services, equipment and materials. Not to mention the fact that in the current 2023 fiscal year, the board decided in 2022 to give secondary roads 95% of the maximum allowable allocation to help battle inflation.

This reduced allocation along with reducing the reimbursement for road clearing from $110,000 to $70,000 yields a reduction of $185,464 from fiscal year 2023 to 2024 and $355,106 less than what was requested for FY24 from revenue generated by rural property taxes.

Lensing said that with that kind of revenue drop, some services may have to be cut or reduced, although he added that one area that he would fight for would be the county's rock resurfacing program.

"We will not cut what we already have proposed for rock," he said. "I will find anything else to cut before I do that because that is probably our No. 1 complaint from the public."

He also indicated that a cut to the budget could hurt the county's proposed hard surface road maintenance plans for the coming construction season.

He pointed out that it's much more cost effective to "preserve 10 miles of road instead of paving 1 1/2 or two miles; we need to be more proactive than reactive in preserving the pavements that we have that remain in fair-good condition with county dollars and plan on reconstructing our poor pavements with federal/state dollars."

One suggestion that supervisors brought up was utilizing the county's Infrastructure Fund, which is a separate account dedicated to roads and bridges generated by Local Option Sales Tax to supplement Secondary Roads' budget in the 2024 fiscal year that begins on July 1, but Lensing saw pitfalls in going that route.

Lensing said that using the Infrastructure Fund to backfill the reduction in funds from property taxes will reduce the effort put into county funded maintenance/reconstruction projects of existing roads and structures and risk draining that account.

Lensing said he respected what county libraries did during a meeting on Jan. 23, when supporters turned out to protest the supervisors' decision to give the county's libraries only $100,000, more than $29,000 less than what they had requested.

"They showed up in full force. They fought for what they believed. I just wonder what the board would do if 12,000 Chickasaw County residents — or roughly 5,000 rural residents — show up with the same ferocity," he said. "If we start cutting, we're going to hear it. If I'm at the mercy of the budget, I'm going to forward the calls. If it's something our department is doing wrong, I will take responsibility for that."

Supervisor Jake Hackman pointed out that according to a worksheet he compiled recently, even if the county went with the maximum RSB levy allowed by law — $3.95 per $1,000 valuation — supervisors wouldn't be able to cover all the requests that had been made from the fund.

"We can blame a whole list of people. We can blame inflation, we can blame COVID, unforeseen situations, put it that way," Hackman said. "But is it the time to max out the levy rate? Or is time to cut services? I don't know. That's the only way I see it working. Am I in support of it? No, but what else is the option? ...

"What are you guys going to do when you have like 4,200 people from the RSB funding mechanism come up and boycott, or protest, the 33.77 percent change [in the tax levy if the max levy is approved]."

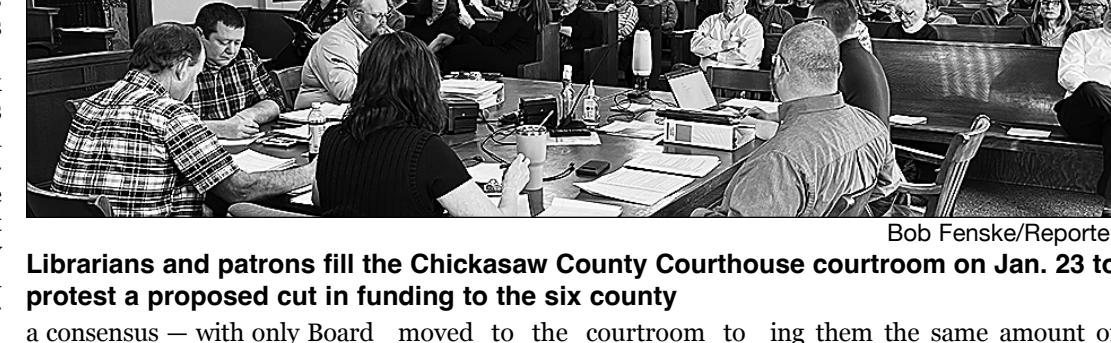

Board members eventually reached a consensus to set the RSB levy at $3.60 per $1,000 valuation, and Lensing will use 85% of the maximum allowable for secondary roads ($3.00375 per $1,000) to come up with a budget.

The engineer, though, said the county remains in a precarious position because of the variables that can affect Secondary Roads in any given year.

Earlier in the meeting, he had pointed out that the county had to spend well over $400,000 to repair roads and structures damaged during flooding that occurred in August of 2021.

"If you get one of those events and they don't declare FEMA or emergency relief, the county pays the bill," he said, "that's always the great unknown."

Supervisors back off on cutting county library funding

Bob Fenske/Reporter

Librarians and patrons fill the Chickasaw County Courthouse courtroom on Jan. 23 to protest a proposed cut in funding to the six county a consensus — with only Board Chair Matt Kuhn casting a nay vote — to give the libraries $100,000.

That led to the turnout for the Jan. 23 meeting that was moved to the courtroom to accommodate the crowd.

But libraries didn't get everything they wanted during the recent meeting as supervisors on a 4-1 vote approved giving them the same amount of money they will receive during this fiscal year.

The vote was 4-1, with Jake Hackman the one supervisor casting a no vote.

Roger Lee Klingman, 86

Roger Lee Klingman, age 86 of Nashua, died Friday, Jan. 27, 2023, at Waverly Health Center in Waverly.

Friends greeted the family from 4 to 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 2, 2022, at Hugeback-Johnson Funeral Home & Crematory/Olson Chapel in Nashua.

A Memorial Service was held at 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 2, 2022, at Hugeback-Johnson Funeral Home & Crematory/Olson Chapel in Nashua following the visitation.

Roger was born on Nov. 3, 1936, to Freddie and Ruby (Breitsprecher) Klingman on the family farm that was located in a rugged area of rural Clayton County called "Fritz Hollow" in rural Clayton County. He grew up on a farm a couple of miles north of Arlington, and he walked to and from school every day.

In high school, Roger was a standout three-sport athlete, playing on the line on both sides of the ball in football while also starring for the Indians in basketball and baseball before graduating with Arlington High School's Class of 1955.

He then attended Wartburg College in Waverly, where he played both football and basketball for the Knights and majored in physical education, and minored in history education.

Roger was extremely bashful so it's probably a good bet that Eileen Burrack introduced herself to him, and the two became high school sweethearts but also attended Wartburg together. The two married on June 9, 1957, at the St. John's Lutheran Church, beginning a marriage filled with plenty of love and education. Roger and "Eenie" had three children — Kathy, Kerry, who died in infancy, and Barry — who had parents who were life-long learners who taught their children right from wrong.

After graduating from Wartburg, Roger took a teaching job in the small southwest Iowa town of Orient, where he also began what would be a long and fruitful coaching career. He also attended what was then known as Northeast Missouri State and received his master's degree.

In 1963, he accepted a position with Nashua Community Schools, where he taught physical education and coached the Bulldogs — and for a few years at least — the Nashua-Plainfield Huskies. He coached a number of sports, but he is best known for his work on the football field and as the school's athletic director. Roger's team weren't especially fancy on offense or defense, but his team's lived by one of their coach's favorite sayings — "It's not the size of the dog in the fight but the size of the fight in the dog." They began virtually every game with a stretch sweep, and when his players asked why they didn't mix it up, Roger told them he wanted their opponent to "know what they were going to deal with the rest of the game."

County's first 'inclusive park' is set to become reality this summer

BY BOB FENSKE

Of the Reporter

New Hampton Parks and Recreation Director Tara Hackman always knew that when you put a bunch of moms together working for a common goal, big things will happen.

Yet, she'll be the first to admit that she's amazed at just what the Kindness Square Inclusive Park Committee has accomplished in a relatively short amount of time.

"I'm really blown away," Hackman said. "We knew we had a good project, a really worthwhile project, but to see what these moms have accomplished, honestly, I'm a little stunned."

The committee has raised $330,000 for the park that will be handicap accessible and located at Runion Park across the street from MercyOne New Hampton Medical Center.

It's also, according to Hackman, not "just a New Hampton playground."

"We see this as something that people from around the area will be able to use," she said. "Almost all of us know someone who is handicapped, and we want this to be a destination spot so that kids can play no matter what their needs are."

Hackman said the playground equipment has been purchased and that work on preparing the site will begin after the 2022-23 school year ends. She said she hopes the equipment will also be installed this summer — pointing to an

As both a teacher and a coach, he was one of those guys who demanded respect yet also knew that it was just as important for him to respect his students and his athletes. The all-weather track at Nashua-Plainfield is named after him for the hundreds — if not thousands — of lives he touched during his long career in education.

Outside of school and sports, Roger was a family man, who loved to fish and spend time at "the river." He and Eenie had their "Clayton Cottage" on the Mississippi and there was nothing better for them than spending a day on a boat.

Later in life, he shined as a grandfather. As one of his grandsons put it, Roger was "wise and dependable" and he rarely, if ever, missed their school programs and athletic events. Kory, Jordan, and Gavin have wonderful memories of going to the Klingman's farm outside of Nashua and kicking around a soccer ball, shooting hoops, and just hanging out with Grandpa and Grandma.

Roger Klingman was one of a kind. He taught not only his children and grandchildren but also generations of students the importance of giving back to their schools and communities. One of his former students wrote that "Coach" always offered encouragement and guided me and many others as we matured into adults" and that "I thank the Lord for letting him be a part of my life!"

He will be missed, especially by his family members and his students, but they are comforted by the fact that he is reunited with his Eenie in a far better place.

Roger is survived by his son, Barry (Valerie Roach) Klingman of Nashua; three grandchildren, Kory Klingman of Minneapolis, Jordan (Jamie) Klingman of Cedar Falls, and Gavin Klingman of New Hampton; Valerie's children, Dillon (Taylor) Roach, Noah Roach, Allison (Cole) Berger and their son Holden and Gunnar Roach; and numerous former students, Bulldogs, and Huskies.

He was preceded in death by his parents; wife, Eileen in 2016; two daughters, Kerry in infancy and Kathy in 2003; one brother, Loy (Janice) Klingman; and one sister, Janice (Dick) Krall.

Support for the new playground has come from a variety of sources. This past weekend, for example, the Lawler Lions Club's annual Cowboy Poetry event benefited Kindness Square.

The Kindness Square Inclusive Park Committee is also planning a Vision 2 Reality Benefit that will be held on Saturday, Feb. 25, at the Waucoma Event Center.

The event will include a free-will donation meal, beginning at 4 p.m. that will include hot pork-loin sandwiches and "warm sides" provided by Lynch BBQ. A silent auction will also start at 4 p.m. and a presentation and a live auction that includes everything from gift certificates to trips will begin at 6:30 p.m.

The committee will also have quilt raffles, 50/50 raffles and big-item raffles during the event.

"We have 21 sponsored tables so far," Hackman said, "and the interest in the event is really high. People are seeing how cool this project is and they want to be a part of helping make it a reality. It's exciting, especially because we're so close to having it."

Hackman said the playground equipment has been purchased and that work on preparing the site will begin after the 2022-23 school year ends. She said she hopes the equipment will also be installed this summer — pointing to an

Floyd County files suit to 'intervene' on pipeline

BY BO STEENSON

bsteenston@charlescitypress.com

Floyd County has filed petitions to intervene in two carbon dioxide pipeline permit applications with the Iowa Utilities Board.

Board of Supervisors Chair Mark Kuhn, at the Charles City Area Development Corp. meeting Wednesday morning, during a discussion on a pipeline project, announced that the petitions had been filed this week.

"Yesterday, the Floyd County Board of Supervisors, through our attorney, Mr. Tim Whipple, petitioned the Iowa Utilities Board for an order permitting Floyd County to intervene in Summit Carbon Solutions petition for a hazardous liquid pipeline permit," Kuhn said.

"Make no mistake, the Floyd County Board of Supervisors believes locating a hazardous carbon pipeline bisecting the Avenue of the Saints Development Park would obviate the marketability of the property, limit the ability to fully utilize the industrial park for needed economic development and future growth, and pose a significant public safety risk to residents of Charles City and numerous businesses located near the proposed pipeline route," he said.

Whipple is an attorney with Ahlers & Cooney law firm of Des Moines who the county has hired to help it write a zoning ordinance dealing with location rules for hazardous liquid pipelines, and to represent Floyd and other counties in pipeline application proceedings before the Iowa Utilities Board.

Whipple on Tuesday had filed petitions with the Iowa Utilities Board asking for Floyd County to be allowed to take part in the Summit Carbon Solutions pipeline permit process, as well as in the Navigator CO₂ Ventures project permit application.

The summit project would cross Floyd County from east to west in a line passing through the south part of Charles City and passing just north of Rockford. Navigator would connect the Valero Renewables ethanol plant near Floyd with the Navigator pipeline that would go from northwest Iowa to southeast Iowa, transporting carbon dioxide to Illinois for sequestering.

"The Floyd County Board of Supervisors have goals similar to other counties," Whipple said via videoconference at the CCADC meeting, "The goals aren't very much different from how the county would want to manage other large industrial developments or other uses of the land that can cause consternation by neighboring property owners, from confined animal feeding operations to large factory developments, gravel pits or solid waste developments. There's all kinds of reasons to take a look at how you use land in the county," he said.

"The supervisors want to develop an ordinance at the local level to express their goals about how land should be used in the unincorporated areas of the county, and they want to intervene in the two proceedings to make sure that the same goals and policy objectives are supported by the Iowa Utilities Board in the state permitting process," he said.

"The concern is about the future usability of the industrial park, the tax base, and the supervisors have a concern that the current easement offer is maybe short-term gain at the expense of longer term economic development prospects," Whipple said.

A county zoning ordinance would not affect the Avenue of the Saints Development Park, which is in Charles City city limits, but Kuhn said the reason to petition to intervene in the permitting process is to give the county the opportunity to be part of the decision-making process, presenting evidence such as testimony or briefs and requiring the Iowa Utilities Board to respond.

Floyd County is working with Shelby, Emmet, Montgomery, Palo Alto, Bremer, Butler and Harrison counties to hire Whipple to intervene in the pipeline permit process, sharing the potential $100,000 cost among them, Kuhn said.

The petitions filed with the Iowa Utilities Board on behalf of Floyd County this week are nearly identical for Summit Carbon Solutions and Navigator CO₂ Ventures, except for references to the specific companies and a section in the Summit petition referring to the Avenue of the Saints Development Park, which the Summit pipeline would pass through but which the Navigator pipeline doesn't come near.

The petition notes that under Iowa Code, "the county's board of supervisors may exercise any power and perform any function it deems appropriate to protect and preserve the rights, privileges, and property of the county or of its residents and to preserve and improve the peace, safety, health, welfare, comfort, and convenience of its residents."

Both petitions state that the pipeline proposals have not stated the relationship of the projects to the county's comprehensive plan or its zoning ordinance.

Huskies headed back to state duals

REGIONAL DUALS: FROM 8

end's festivities get under way is just the start to what could be an extraordinary finish to the season for the Huskies.

Top-ranked Husky 126-pound senior Garret Rinken (42-0) also achieved something only the elite out on the mat in the wrestling-crazed state of Iowa attain – and that's earn 200 career victories.

Only 26 wrestlers in the entire have accomplished that feat prior to this season.

"It's the first time in history that we had somebody make 200 wins," said Frost. "Well deserving – all the recognition he gets."

The all-time wins and pins leader in school history ratcheted up the vocal and loud crowd with a classic Rinken pin in 3:26 over Royce Peterson to give N-P a 13-0 lead early on.

The even-keeled Rinken is, of course, business as usual and as dialed in as they come.

"I've told a bunch of people this year and I'm just sticking to it – I gotta stay consistent. Whether that means consistent in the room or everyone I wrestle – just get ready for everyone the same," said Rinken. "I just take one match at a time."

Rinken (200-4) has just four losses in his career and will aim for his second individual state crown in a little over a week when district competition gets under way in Lake Mills at N-P's Class 1A site that will fill out the traditional state tournament field.

Rinken isn't focused on records, numerals or how big a count his win total has gotten – he just wants to win.

"To me right now, it's just another number – another banner," said Rinken. "I just win to win state at the end of the year. That's really the main goal. However many wins it takes throughout my four span, I guess, that's how many wins it takes. Right now I'm just focusing on getting another state title and hopefully getting a team state title, too."

After seventh-ranked Kendrick Huck's super-fast pin of Carter Christianson at 126 pounds – the cream started rising to the top for the Huskies.

That Huck (27-8) victory brought out loud roars from the partisan Husky crowd and set the stage for senior 138-pounder Kaden Wilken's rematch with eighth-rated Steve Bradenburg. Bradenburg majored Wilken in a 12-0 shutout at the start of the year.

Not this time around as Wilken (30-14) came close to sticking Bradenburg on two separate occasions at the end of the first two periods. He earned a major decision himself and the sweet taste of revenge with a 14-4 victory.

As you well could have expected, the thunderous applause – along with hoots and hollers from N-P's cheering section – was almost deafening during Wilken's match.

Earmuffs to block out the noise might have been a sensible choice for Lake Mills fans that made the trip to Nashua when it comes to winter apparel, attire or seasonal accessories.

That palpable energy created by five-straight wins had a way of cranking up the volume of N-P's jammed-packed home side of the gymnasium in a hurry.

"Momentum is everything. In year's past when we've made it to state duals and we've gotten in the finals – or we've even won it – it's momentum," Frost said.

Jackson Carey (152) came up big with a 5-3 decision over Garret Ham. Carey is 30-12 on the season.

Eli Kalainoff (33-11), the Huskies' talented freshman 160-pounder, was in an absolute dog fight with Beau Kaufman in their exciting match. Kaufman (26-14) scored a takedown underneath 10 seconds remaining in the match to propel himself to a 7-6 victory. Kaufman's stunner was the biggest win of the night for the Bulldogs.

Hope faded fast for Lake Mills as juniors Titus Evans (170), Tate White (182) and Aiden Sullivan (195) all came up with first-period pins in their matches. White, now 26-10, was the quickest win by fall of the evening at just 19 seconds.

White talked about last year's disappointing seventh-place state dual finish – which included a one-point loss to Logan-Magnolia in the opening round, a setback to Emmetsburg in the consolations and win over Wilton.

"I don't think we're satisfied with our performance last year. I think we want more," said White.

Evans is 23-5 and has looked sharp and explosive in the matches he's wrestled after sitting out what amounted to the first third of the year.

"Everybody wrestled good and we got some big wins. We ended up with a banner," said Evans. "Our goal is definitely the finals this year. One of the big goals is just to win the sucker – bring home another banner."

No. 1 ranked Jayden Rinken (38-2) did not wrestle on Tuesday at 106 pounds. Second-ranked Lucas Oldenkamp (42-1) received a forfeit at that weight.

N-P has a chance to reel in its third state dual crown this weekend as it takes on Wapsie Valley – a squad the Huskies took down in the opening match of the Battle of Waterloo in mid-December, 38-33.

N-P is the No. 4 seed and will likely face top-ranked Don Bosco in the semifinal round if Frost and his Huskies can work their magic one more time against the Warriors. The Dons – one of the favorites to potentially claim the dual crown alongside No. 2 Wilton – tangles with No. 8 seed Hinton on Saturday in the quarterfinal round.

N-P topped Lake Mills, 56-19, in the opening quad of the season on Dec. 1 in Garner.

N-P had not wrestled in the state dual tournament in decade prior to last year's seventh-place finish at Wells Fargo Arena in Des Moines. That winter 11 years ago the Huskies took home the top trophy in Class 1A over Underwood in 2012.

Frost has guided N-P to eight state dual meets. The Huskies have finished no lower than third in anyone of them – expect in last year's most recent trip down to Des Moines.

N-P won its other state dual crown in 2004 over Logan-Magnolia. The Huskies placed state runner-up in three consecutive seasons (2008-2010) to Don Bosco. Frost also guided N-P to a third-place dual finish at state in 2006.

We've got some good news and bad news for the owner of this van. The positive? Temperatures are expected to be above freezing this weekend. The negative? It might take a while for the snow to melt away and it's not going to be that warm this weekend.

Warm up on the way for our area northern Iowa, dealt with snow and ice.

The "weather stats" certainly back up Lensing.

Saturday's snowstorm that dropped 6.8 inches of snow brought Nashua's total snowfall for this winter to 31.6 inches – far above the 12.9 inches of snow Nashua received in the same time period last winter.

"Like I told the [Board of] Supervisors today," Lensing said Monday morning, "usually February and March are our snowiest months. For us, the weekend snows are the worst just because you're done with your week and you're talking about overtime. It does mess with the budget, but you've got to move it, too."

The winter of 2022-23 is already snowier than last winter, when just 18.6 inches of snow fell on Nashua throughout the season.

Saturday's snow was followed by some of the coldest temperatures recorded this winter, but the good news is that, after lows this morning were expected to drop near 20 below, a warm up is on the way as highs are expected to be in the 30s by the weekend.

And the best news of all for guys like Lensing and those plow and maintainer drivers? There's not even a hint of snow in the forecast this weekend.

EMS director: Third ambulance is needed

AMBULANCE: FROM 1

new rigs needs to undergo maintenance and it would also allow Chickasaw County EMS to have ambulances on standby at special events.

He pointed out that if, for example, events at the Big Four Fairgrounds wanted two ambulances on standby, Chickasaw County EMS would be able to provide one without cutting into the service.

"We have that third ambulance that we could send somewhere and still do business as usual with a 911 and a transfer rig in town," he said. "Before everyone makes a decision that we don't need that third ambulance, please look at it a little bit and talk to me about it a little bit."

Suckow said he wasn't against purchasing a third ambulance, just that he felt that rig should be a used vehicle.

He pointed out that a new ambulance would cost more than $200,000 while the used ambulance that Chickasaw Ambulance Service owner Jeremy McGrath is offering to sell the county is prices at $18,000.

"That's a big difference," Suckow said. "That money we could use somewhere else."

Knutson and Chickasaw County EMS Advisory Council member Bridget Edson stressed that the used market was essentially dry.

"What's happening in the industry is because of the chassis shortage that we saw through COVID, services had to keep their ambulances longer," Knutson said. "That made them that much less road worthy as a backup ambulance."

Board Chairman Matt Kuhn asked if the county would be willing to accept donations to help pay part of the cost for a backup ambulance.

"Does that change things or do we just not want a new one at all for the third one?"

But his question was met with silence by the rest of the board; instead, the board members asked Knutson to reach out to McGrath and negotiate with him on the 2003 ambulance he was, at least as of last week, willing to sell to the county.

Rebounding a factor in Huskies' two losses

Harrington comes close to two triple-doubles in back-to-back games

BY KELLY TERPSTRA
Of the Reporter

It's no surprise when Nashua-Plainfield's opponents stroll out onto the court and appear taller than the Huskies this season.

That's because they almost always are.

Without its senior center in 6-7 Aiden Lamborn – who has only played three games this winter because of injury – the Huskies and head coach Matt Mueller are undersized to say the least.

When the tallest player on your roster is 6-1 – you're not going to be looking down on opponents all that often this winter.

With that said, it's been a productive season so far this year as Mueller has his Huskies near the upper half of the league standings in the Top of Iowa Conference.

But last week that lack of height and not being able to control the glass proved pivotal as the Huskies dropped two contests to Osage and Waterloo Christian.

The Green Devils (15-4, 12-2) defeated N-P, 67-45, last week Friday and outrebounded the Huskies, 29-22. Quinn Street, just a freshman, led Osage with 22 points. Waterloo Christian, 13-7 on the year, owned even a greater advantage in rebounding as they worked a 32-17 margin. That equated to a 76-66 loss as 6-4 junior forward Drew Wagner paced the Regents with 22 points on 10-13 shooting.

"We were out rebounded in both games and all of those second and third chances add up. It has been a priority all year and will continue to be our number-one goal the rest of the season," said Mueller. "We had trouble controlling Wagner even sometimes with two defenders and they really shot the ball well in the second half. Sometimes you have to give the other team credit. They played pretty well that night."

Still, N-P has found a way to win ball games as the Huskies take an 11-8 overall record and 7-5 conference mark into tonight's contest with West Fork. The Huskies close the regular season at North Butler on Monday.

Osage prevented one of the state's best scorers – N-P senior guard Bo Harrington – from piling on the points like he has all winter. The Green Devils paid extra attention to Harrington – still the sixth-best scorer in Class 1A (23.6 ppg) – and limited him to a season-low eight points on 4-16 shooting. Harrington did not make a 3-pointer in seven attempts.

Kelly Terpstra/Reporter

Husky senior Bo Harrington rises to the rim in a game versus Central Springs this season.

Harrington – who sports one of the better all-around games in the small-school class as well – came tantalizingly close to racking up two triple-doubles in back-to-back games. He fell short of double-digit scoring by two points in the Osage loss, but collected 10 rebounds and dished out eight assists against the Green Devils.

In the non-conference contest versus the Regents, Harrington was just a single rebound away from a triple double. His stat line read – 24 points, nine rebounds and 10 assists.

N-P forward Joel Winters – the tallest player on the squad at 6-1 – is playing the best basketball of his career at exactly the right moment. Winters all-conference caliber play included 15 points on 7-11 shooting versus Osage and 19 points against Waterloo Christian. He was a productive 9-16 from the floor in the road contest against the Regents.

N-P senior guard Devin Johnson hit for double-figures against Osage with 12 points and freshman Matthew Malven notched 11 points versus Waterloo Christian.

Osage turned the ball over just five times and shot 50 percent (27-54) from the floor.

Mueller had this to say about the two losses this past week.

"I thought offensively we had some good moments, but we would also have some unforced turnovers and breakdowns on defense," said Mueller.

West Fork (14-3, 13-1) currently leads the TIC league standings as of Thursday and Mason City Newman (15-2, 12-2) sits in a tie with Osage. That slots N-P in fourth place. The Huskies are ahead of three teams (North Butler, Northwood-Kensett, St. Ansgar) that are tied for fifth place with 5-9 marks in the conference.

Mueller broke down a conference that is as tough as they come in the state – from top to bottom.

"This year's teams in the Top of Iowa East division are the most balanced I have seen. You can win or lose any night and most of the games go right down to the end," said Mueller.

"We expect the same for our last two games. We should be tested by the time we get to the postseason."

Postseason pairings will be released next week by the Iowa High School Athletic Association (IHSAA).

Huskies play No. 7 Osage much better in rematch

BY KELLY TERPSTRA
Of the Reporter

The Nashua-Plainfield Huskies now know who their opponent is in the postseason.

Survive and advance.

The Huskies and head coach Josh Smith have just two final regular season games remaining (West Fork and North Butler).

But next week Thursday a whole new season begins as regional play gets underway and that means N-P (4-15) will travel to Dunkerton (9-10) in a Class 1A Region 6 opening-round matchup.

The Iowa Girls High School Athletic Union released those postseason pairings on Tuesday and that means the Huskies will have to win another game once the regular season is complete in order to keep their season alive.

The winner of the N-P-Dunkerton matchup has a tall order in the next round. The victor of that postseason pairing that pits the Top of Iowa Conference versus the Iowa Star North faces sixth-ranked and undefeated West Fork (19-0) on the Warhawks' home floor on Tuesday, Feb. 14. West Fork currently sits in first place in the TIC with a 14-0 league standing.

N-P plays West Fork tonight (Friday) and then finishes the regular season at North Butler on Monday.

The Huskies fell to 2-12 in the league after a 60-45 loss at home versus Osage on Friday. That performance was much better than the first go-round when the Green Devils routed N-P, 67-16.

Osage (18-1, 13-1) is the seventh ranked team in Class 3A and forced 29 Husky turnovers in the win. Four Green Devils tallied double-figure scoring (Claudia Aschenbrenner 17, Samantha Brandau 15, Rylie Tabbert 11, Jacey Johnston 10).

Brannon (13-21) won two matches – each by pin. She won by fall over Jessica Ausborn of the North Central Trailblazers in the second period and stuck Maddie Johnson of Denver in 3:28.

Reams' younger sister – Ryan Reams (18-11) – did not compete at the super regionals because of concussion symptoms. Reams was one of N-P's other top wrestlers as she proved her worth at the lower weights (115 pounds).

Sara Buba (12-13) also did not wrestle at Decorah. Lillie Caster (115), Elexa O'Neill (125) and Eden Lamborn (190) were the other Husky wrestlers that competed this winter.

"Hopefully this helps push us forward in the program," said Reece Reams. "This gives us a little more inspiration."

set up eight super regional qualifiers at four separate sites across Iowa.

Vance said she was mentally focused this year to get back to state – albeit in a much different fashion as this year's state meet was by invitation only. Which meant each wrestler had to earn their spot onto the 32-girl state brackets that comprise each of the 14 different weight classes.

Vance trusted herself and the process to be able to experience a break-out season.

"During wrestling you just really have to have your eyes open, when you see something – take advantage to do it. Work your moves that you know to the super regional in Winnebago County. Those Huskies were sophomore Amberly Gerholdt (120), senior Makinsey Brannon (125), junior Amy Goerke (145) and freshman Navaeh Bloker (155).

Although neither of those four aforementioned Huskies placed, Reams said it was a great experience for his bunch to get a taste of what it's like to compete against the state's best.

"Other girls – we came out swinging. We actually looked pretty good. We just went up against tough competition," said Reams. "We have the best girls out here trying to get to state. I still think it's a victory. Just experience-wise – they just look more how to do – don't do anything that you obviously don't know how to do," said Vance.

Vance said she didn't think she'd be wrestling at state in her first year of competition for the Huskies. But she's clearly having a good time out on the mat and it shows with the positive results she's been able to produce this winter.

Husky makes history on mat

Nashua-Plainfield's Vance becomes first to qualify for sanctioned girls state meet

BY KELLY TERPSTRA

Of the Reporter

Kylie Vance danced off the mat last week Friday afternoon in Decorah with a smile that could light up any room.

Then the tears flowed.

This is what wrestling in the state of Iowa is all about.

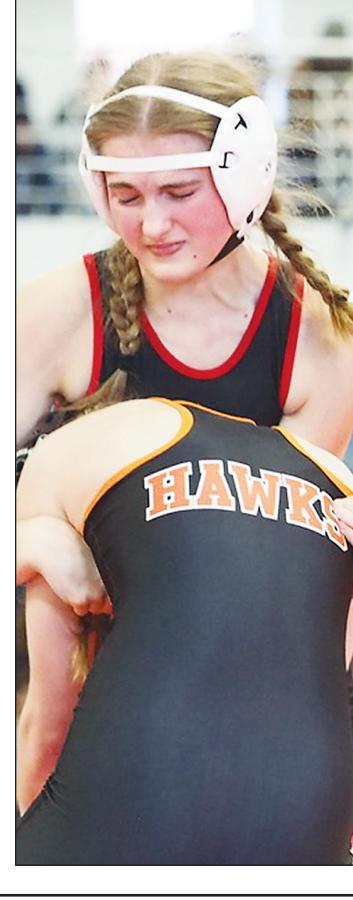

The first ever super regionals on the campus of Luther College saw the sophomore 190-pounder from Nashua-Plainfield become the first sanctioned girls wrestling state qualifier in her school's history.

"I just went in there thinking I was going to win and it made me succeed. You can't go into a match with a bad mindset or you're never going to win," said Vance.

Vance (16-9), a sophomore, clinched her state berth with a 13-second pin over Harmony Fessler of West Fork in the consolation semis.

"Being the first girl ever for Nashua to qualify for state is

Vance bows out at state

Nashua-Plainfield sophomore Kylie Vance's state tournament was short, but then again, Coralville was a pretty nice place to end a season.

Vance opened the tournament Thursday with a match against Spencer's eighth-seeded Kaylee Nachtigal, who came up with a first-period pin.

That dropped Vance into the consolation bracket, where she was pinned in the second period by Boyden Hull/Rock Valley's Kaylee De Jong.

Vance finished the season with a 16-11 record.

RINKEN GETS 200TH WIN; HUSKIES TROUNCE BULLDOGS

BY KELLY TERPSTRA

Of the Reporter

The rafters rattled and the beams shook on Tuesday night at the "Dawg Pound."

The home of the fourth-ranked Nashua-Plainfield Husky wrestling squad was rockin' and rollin' during Class 1A's regional dual versus Lake Mills.

These Huskies definitely know how to energize their hometown fans and the decibel level reached substantial proportions after N-P once again advanced to the state duals this Saturday after a dominating 50-15 win over the Bulldogs.

And believe me, the noise reached a crescendo on several occasions as Al Frost's grapplers seemed pumped up from the start and will gun for its third state dual crown in school history when the Huskies lock horns with a familiar foe in Wapsie Valley at 9 a.m. on Saturday at the Xtream Arena in Coralville.

"Tonight – boys were on fire. The boys are on a mission, right from the get-go. You could just see it," said Frost, in his 33rd year of guiding his Huskies.

The heavily favored Huskies (26-3) wrestled well and with a purpose in disposing of Lake Mills (22-6), which advanced to the regional final after disposing of Pocahontas Area (13-4) in the opening round by a score of 44-24.

The winner got a Husky unit that was hungry and didn't mess around.

"These guys got it done," said Frost, who earlier this winter became one of only a handful of coaches that have reached milestone dual win No. 500 in their legendary careers. "We jumped this hurdle, now we just gotta move on to the next hurdle."

It was clear early on who would be advancing to Johnson County and competing in the state dual meet.

This year's state duals will be held in the Iowa City suburb for the first time and just a day after crowning Iowa's first ever sanctioned state girls newly-christened champions.

N-P raced out to a 23-0 lead – highlighted by Hayden Munn's 3-2 win over third-rated Hayden Helgeson at 120 pounds. Munn is rated No. 9 by IAwrestle and is now 33-11 on the year.
