Nashua to have a crowded ballot

Nine residents file nominating papers; library to hold 'Meet and Greet' on Oct. 18

By BOB FENSKE
Of the Reporter

You've heard of standing-room only crowds at sporting events, right? Well, the ballot for November's municipal and school elections, at least when it comes to the Nashua City Council, may qualfy as SRO, too. That's because nine city residents have tossed their proverbial hats into the ring, including seven who are seeking three full four-year terms on the council. It's one reason the Nashua Public Library is holding a "Meet and Greet" on Wednesday, Oct. 18. The event will run from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. and give city residents a chance to ask questions of the candidates. "With so many candidates, which is a really good thing, we just thought this was a way to get as many of the candidates who can make it together," Library Director Heather Hackman said. "It's hopefully a way that people can become informed about each candidate and their priorities." Seeking the three four-year terms are Brandon Christensen, Beth

Council takes action on pair of dogs in city

City Council votes to have one dog removed from city limits; gives warning to owner of another dog

By KELLY TERPSTRA
Of the Reporter

The Nashua City Council held a special meeting on Wednesday in the Council Chambers to address two separate dogs that have been reported by witnesses to have either bitten victims or acted aggressively within the city limits of Nashua.

The second dog that was discussed is a German Shepherd mix named "Huck," and owned by Nick and Beth Henningsen of Nashua. This animal was reported to have had bitten several people over the course of the last two years and the hearing on Wednesday was the third hearing regarding the incidents that have taken place because of the dog.

The first hearing took place on July 17 and it was determined by the Council that the owners, who live on Greeley Street, would be allowed to keep the dog. The dog needed to be in constant supervision, tied up and maintained to their yard or on a leash when the owners were not present at their residence.

Prior to the first meeting, the owner of the dog had stated that they were going to put the dog down after its quarantine period. The dog owner explained at that initial hearing that putting the

WEBSTER CROWNED QUEEN, BLANCHARD KING AS NASHUA-PLAINFIELD CELEBRATION KICKS INTO HIGH GEAR

Nashua-Plainfield is on to something when it comes to homecoming, trust us on this. "No Fuss, No Muss" easily could be the theme of the coronation ceremony the school holds every year.

The band plays, the cheerleaders cheer, the coaches and band director talk, the king and queen candidates are introduced, the previous year's king and queen are welcomed back and the new king and queen are crowned.

And it is all done quickly and efficiently. Take Thursday night, for example. The ceremony in which Myranda Webster and Dylan Blanchard received their crowns lasted all of 28 minutes.

Heck, the picture taking following the program might have lasted longer than the ceremony!

But in a week that has a "Survivor" theme, Thursday's celebration was almost perfect. Start with the fact that it was filled with school spirit. The band was rousing, as were the cheerleaders. Fall sports coaches Mindy Foelske (volleyball), Andrew Christensen (football) and Jenn Kalainoff (cross country) gave quick updates on their teams, but, more importantly, wished other teams the best of luck with the rest of the seasons.

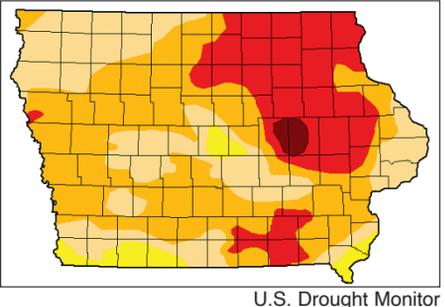

Ditto for Nashua-Plainfield Band Director Scott Stroud.

Although it's still not a pretty picture and the Nashua area is still experiencing "extreme drought," the latest report from the U.S. Drought Monitor actually showed improvement in Iowa.

The bad news is that, barring rain today or Saturday, the Nashua area is going to receive below-average rainfall for a seventh consecutive month.

But there's good news is this: For once, we're not going to miss by much.

Granted, those who attended last Friday's football game between Nashua-Plainfield and St. Ansgar endured a miserable, wet evening, but

County may be able to use wind farm TIF to pay for new holding facility'

Attorney says decision ultimately in the hands of the Board of Supervisors; county leaders want to know revenue numbers before proceeding

By BOB FENSKE
Of the Reporter

There is a possible path to a remodeled Chickasaw County Sheriff's Office and new 24-hour holding facility that would include the potential of not getting a bond referendum, but to hold there, a bond attorney told the Board of Supervisors Monday morning, county leaders will have to jump through a myriad of hoops.

Jason Comisky of Ahlers and Cooney spoke with board members for more than an hour Monday about the potential of the county using tax-increment financing (TIF) funds from a wind turbine project in the county on a proposed project that could cost in the neighborhood of $7 million.

The county had originally thought it would use those TIF funds for road work, but supervisors had asked Comisky if the county could use at least some of that revenue for the project at the sheriff's office.

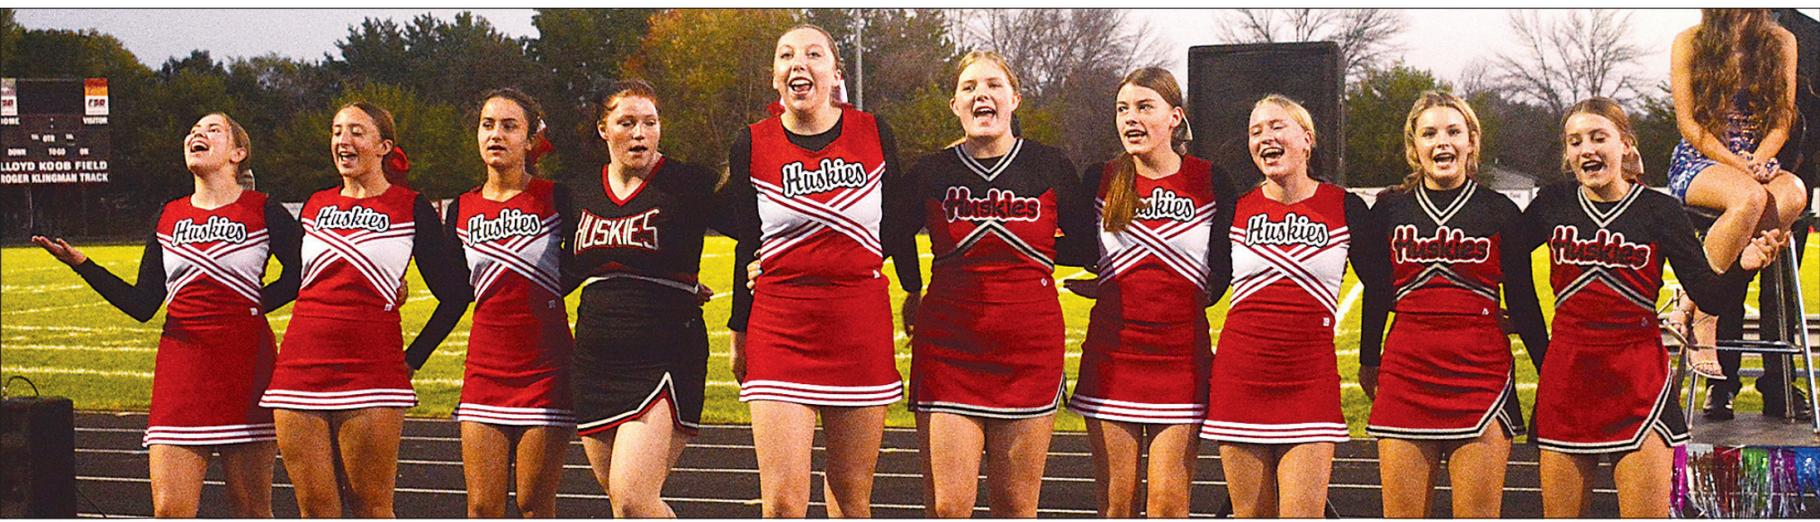

Comisky told board members they could potentially use the revenue for both roads and the holding facility.

Again you look back at what the code says, right? Slum, blight, economic development or a mixture of those. I think you would have to look at a mixture or a combination of the areas, and we would say that the wind turbines and probably some roads are economic development and potentially, the existing facility — the jail and county sheriff's offices — could be said or make an argument that's a blighted area."

He told board members that when it comes to urban renewal areas, blight can take on many meanings. "I think there were some people looking at that and there was discussion that it isn't an abandoned facility their crowns, we learned something: A 28-minute ceremony may be brief, but that doesn't mean it isn't special.

And after three days of dressing up in all kinds of clothing — the "dress-up" days included Hunter vs. Prey, Brains vs. Braun and Tribe Day, which had students wearing their class colors — Homecoming 2023 is far from over.
Today is Husky Spirit Day and will also include high school kids hanging out with elementary students, a 2 p.m. pep assembly, the big parade at 2:30 p.m. and, of course, the homecoming football game between the Huskies and South Winneshiek.
And a great week will come to an end on Saturday evening when the homecoming dance will be held at the high school gym from 8 to 10 p.m.

Board members want to know TIF revenues before making decision that is sort of falling down and nobody's been there for decades," he said. "That's clearly an example of a blighted building, but that's sort of end of the spectrum, right? ... For urban renewal purposes, blight's a bigger definition than that. ... The definition goes on to say unsafe conditions, insanitary conditions, conditions that endanger property and life."

During the discussion, Comisky said there is a possibility that the county could show that there are conditions in the current Sheriff's Office and jail that meet that broader definition of blight that is in the Iowa Code.

He said the county would need to be able to prove that blight through reports from experts, be it engineers, architects or possibly the state jail inspector reports that have led county leaders to look at replacing or at least remodeling a building that was constructed in the 1950s.

To do the project proposed and pay for it — or even some of it — with TIF revenue at the current site would also mean having buy-in for the city of New Hampton.

"Now remember, it gets a little more complicated because any time a county is going to create an urban renewal area inside of a city or within two miles of the boundaries of that city, the city has to agree to do that," Comisky said. "The county can't just create an urban renewal area inside of a city or within two miles of a city on its own action."

If the city said no, Comisky said "you're stopped right there."

Supervisors, though, are far from making a decision on how it will use those TIF revenues or even if they will "capture" those revenues. The TIF revenues are the taxes on the increased valuation on the property. The county could just allow that increased tax revenue go into its general basic and general services fund.

Board members also questioned County Assessor Ray Armel on how much TIF revenue will actually be in play, and Armel said that he will soon meet with Chickasaw Wind Farm officials to discuss valuations.

"We should have that information soon," Armel said, "but no, today, I can't give you that number."

Armel also told the board that the county probably wouldn't see additional revenue from the wind turbines until 2027.

Comisky said that the county could pay for all of the law enforcement center project with TIF funds, but supervisors could also divvy that revenue up for a variety of purposes.

"You could use some for roads, some for the Sheriff's Office," he said. "That is up to you, that's a decision you can make."

If the county decides to pay for the entire Sheriff's Office project with its TIF revenue, a bond referendum would not have to be sent to county voters, but Comisky also said that there is a chance that a "reverse referendum" could be held. That would require county residents submitting a petition for an election to decide if board members can sell general-obligation bonds and use the TIF revenue to pay them off.

Both Supervisor Jake Hackman and Board Chairman Matt Kuhn said the information Comisky provided was helpful but county leaders need more information before making a decision on how it will use the TIF revenue.

"I think we need to wait and see the numbers and then see if we're going to do both projects [roads and the Sheriff's Office], one or the other and then work on the consent from the cities," Hackman said.

"I, too, think we have to see the numbers and see what we're working with," Kuhn said. "Until then, this information is really helpful but we can't make a decision until we know what we're dealing with when it comes to the money."

County will stay with original plan on EMS building

By BOB FENSKE

The Chickasaw County Board of Supervisors will go with the original plan — building a second floor for its living quarters at the Chickasaw County EMS building — after briefly exploring keeping those quarters on one floor by using one of the four garage "bays" for a remodeling project that will bring the ambulance service under one roof.

Board members on Monday voted to approve the drawings that would provide for two floors of office space and living quarters at the building located near the intersection of North Water Avenue and East Prospect Street.

The action came a week after Supervisor Travis Suckow suggested that board members consider extending the office space and living quarters into one of the garage bays so that it would not have two floors.

During that Sept. 18 meeting, Suckow suggested that the county could save money on the remodeling costs by not having a second floor, but on Monday, Chickasaw County EMS Director Joel Knutson presented two arguments against Suckow's proposal.

First, he said it would limit the options of both his service and other county departments if the new office space and living quarters effectively removed one of the garage bays.

"I guess my thought on that is you guys found value in buying a station that had four bays over one that had three bays of that size for $100,000 more," Knutson said.

"My thought process is that we don't know where we're going to end up. We don't know what else could need to be stored up there. At one point, a county building could come out of commission because of damage from a fire or a tornado or whatever. Are we going to need the additional storage space?"

Knutson also said that even though he doesn't have concrete numbers, "with the additional construction costs of having to break up the concrete to run the sewer in that fourth bay instead of having it above where we let gravity take it ... I think we're going to see increased costs with that, too."

Supervisor Jake Hackman conceded that "it might be more money," and fellow board member Scott Cerwinski agreed, especially after visiting the building last week.

"After going down there to see it," he said, "if we can make it work and keep that fourth bay, I think we should."

Board members agreed and voted unanimously to approve the drawings so that they can be sent to potential contractors for bids.

Before Knutson discussed the building issues, he expressed disappointment in the comments made by Bassett Mayor Jim Ashley during the Sept. 18 meeting.

"There was an elected mayor in this county that was at the meeting last week that made a comment publicly that I think we need to address," he said. "The comment made was that El Chapo lives in an 8-by-10 cell for 23 hours a day, and this was pertaining to the EMS building. I certainly hope the board doesn't share that opinion or that mindset, but I at least wanted it brought up again and to make certain that we are not attempting to compare a drug-smuggling warlord to our EMS department."

"To say it mildly, our crews were upset about that. ... I feel it needs to be brought up and if that's the road we're going to go down with this project, I think we're in for a long haul."

After a rainy week, we're in for a summer-like weekend

WEATHER: FROM 1

Monitor calls "exceptional drought."

by the time the rain ended early Saturday morning, Nashua had received almost three inches of precipitation.

Friday's rainfall of 2.82 inches was part of what could be considered, at least in 2023, a rainy seven-day period as the National Weather Service's official reporting station, which is located just outside the city, recorded 3.19 inches of rain between Sept. 21 and Wednesday.

That brought Nashua's September rainfall to 3.3 inches, or 90.7 percent, of the normal 3.64 inches that falls during the month.

And as ugly as the U.S. Drought Monitor maps remains for the area, that rainfall showed an improving drought picture in the area despite the fact that all of Chickasaw, Bremer and Floyd counties and almost all of Butler County remain in "extreme drought." But unlike a week ago, no area counties were dealing with what the Drought

The rainfall did slow some farmers who wanted to harvest crops over the weekend, but ISU Extension Agronomist Terry Basol said growers understand that while the rain won't help this year's corn and soybean crop, they realize that rain now will help replenish soil moisture profiles that have been depleted this year.

"We have a lot of catching up to do," he said in a recent interview, "and the guys, as much as they want to get to the harvest, are going to be OK with rain. They know it's critical for 2024."

But the area's "rainy season" apparently has come to an end. Save for a 20 percent chance of rain Saturday morning, the forecast is dry through Tuesday as summer-like temperatures are expected to return to the area — with a four-day stretch beginning on Saturday in which highs are expected to me in the mid- to upper-80s.

Huskies begin gearing up for volleyball postseason

VOLLEYBALL: FROM 8

Tuesday on the road – 25-16, 25-16, 25-13. The sweep sure felt good for Foelske's Huskies as it was long overdue for her TIC squad. A 3-0 victory hadn't happened to the Huskies since they downed Northwood-Kensett in straight sets clear back on Aug. 29.

"Our match against Clarksville was a great confidence booster for the girls. We have struggled with finishing sets and not letting the other team back into the set all season," said Foelske.

"We are seeing a lot of great things right now from the team as we finish out regular season play. It has taken us a while to get to this point, but we are in a good spot as we head into the postseason."

The win over N-K was the Huskies' first league win of the year and North Butler ended up being N-P's second conference triumph. The match also held a special place in the heart of anyone that is dealing with or knows somebody that is fighting cancer.

The night was dubbed "Dig Pink Night." The Bearcats and Huskies each honored former North Butler volleyball coach Jamie Osterbuhr, who is trying to win the war against cancer as she was recently diagnosed with the dreaded disease.

It was a special moment, indeed for the Huskies, not only because of the important victory over the Bearcats – but to be able to support an area coach that has helped make a difference in her community.

"Their gym is always loud and they always bring in a big crowd. We have been part of their Cancer Awareness Night for a long time and they always do a really nice job with it. The N-P volleyball team is rooting for Jamie Osterbuhr with her fight against breast cancer," said Foelske.

N-P junior outside hitter Paige Franzen was tough to stop that evening in Greene against the Bearcats. Franzen generated 14 kills and sophomore hitter Lily Eiffler wasn't far behind her with 12 kills of her own.

N-P sophomore setter Kami Hannemann had a very impressive game with 40 assists, 17 digs and four aces. Hanneman was perfect in the serving department (27-27).

Husky sophomore Elayna O'Neill (nine kills) and junior Josslynn Glaser (eight kills) rounded out the top statistical leaders for the N-P offensive attack against NB.

North Butler (9-14, 2-5) was led in kills by junior Olivia Dralle, who came up with 15.

Nashua-Plainfield (4-13, 2-5) has a golden opportunity to once again finish the regular season slate of matches it has remaining on a positive note.

The Huskies went 7-4 in their last 11 matches in 2022 – including a close 3-1 loss to Riceville in the first round of Class 1A regional play that easily could have went five games.

The Huskies take on Belmont-Klemme (18-6) on Monday at home, followed by a TIC East matchup on Tuesday in Nashua versus a struggling West Fork (2-16, 0-6) squad on Senior Night.

N-P will also play its final three matches of the season in the friendly confines of the Husky gym on Tuesday, Oct. 10 in a quad versus Hampton-Dumont-CAL, Lake Mills and North Butler.

That means N-P has five regular season matches left – all at home.

While the Huskies gear up for postseason play – the Iowa

Girls High School Athletic Union should release regional pairings soon – N-P is working on improving in areas of concern that have plagued Nashua-Plainfield this fall.

"We do serve receive every single day. I have seen a lot more consistency with our passing and more confidence from the girls when it comes to serve receive, which is super important," said Foelske.

"One specific area we have been really focusing on is our aggressiveness up at the net with blocking and cleaning up some of our hitting errors."

Nashua City Council holds special meeting to discuss dog complaints

CITY COUNCIL: FROM 1

Skilton then went ahead and addressed a second dog owned by the Henningsens. The dog was described as a black lab. It was deemed the dog hadn't been aggressive and so there was no further discussion.

The first hearing on Wednesday dealt with another dangerous animal located at a property on Brasher Street and owned by Paul and Katherine Wagner. Paul Wagner stated the dog is his nephew's dog and that it's name is "Gunner" – a male dog that has been fixed.

"Gunner" was reported to have gotten underneath a gate at that property and was trying to go after a woodchuck. Paul Wagner stated he had never had that happen before where that particular dog got out. After the dog got outside its enclosure, it then attacked another dog owned by Matt Barnes and was also aggressive towards Council member Hal Kelleher, who was out by his mailbox at the time.

Kelleher made a motion to issue a warning to the Wagners and if something else happens with the dog being aggressive, that there would have to be another hearing scheduled to discuss that matter.

Huskies put loss in perspective

FOOTBALL: FROM 8

Some time, the Saints marched on with a 28-6 victory in the non-district battle.

N-P senior quarterback Tucker Franzen – who picked off the game’s only interception of the contest in the second quarter – talked about what went wrong on this wet and muddy Friday night underneath the lights that kept an expected big crowd home due to the less-than-ideal weather outside.

“It’s one play that can ruin a drive – a fumble. Then you get people that just aren’t working together – they’re arguing and bickering at a coach. We gotta get better at that. We gotta come together as a team like St. Ansgar did tonight and just rely on each other and pick each other up when they get down – just keep fighting,” said Franzen.

While Franzen’s sentiments hit the mark on a night that didn’t exactly go the way the Huskies wanted it to – there’s still plenty of season left to make amends and correct the problems that plagued N-P against the vaunted Saints’ rushing attack.

“We have to keep going, keep driving...sometimes we play a good team and bad habits show their face again,” said Christensen. “That might have been a little thing that happened, too. We can’t let this tear us down. We have to learn from this.”

Despite the loss, N-P showed flashes of just how talented of a squad it possesses. But key fumbles and the powerful Saints’ run game was tough to overcome on a night that saw it rain, rain some more and then really let loose late in the contest.

The slippery conditions caused many fumbles to hit the turf – but remarkably both teams combined to lose only two apiece.

“With the rain you have to have ball security. We gotta work on ball security. The rain was just a big factor, but we can’t have that be an excuse going forward,” said Franzen, who leads the team in interceptions (3) at his cornerback position and has completed almost 67 percent of his passes with four touchdowns and no inter-

AGWSR.

But these Saints were a far superior team than that Cougar squad that saw Evans blast his way for 260 yards rushing and three scores.

The Saints (5-0) have already knocked off then No. 1 – West Hancock – by a score of 24-15 and beat Class 2A’s Osage, 25-24.

“I think it definitely helped. Our toughest team was North Tama, who is a good team, but not to that level,” said Christensen. “The last three teams are pretty solid teams that we’ll have to be ready for, too.”

But still, N-P could have made this score a lot closer had it not been for penalties and not being able to secure the pigskin.

On the first drive of the game Husky junior Jackson Carey ripped off a 23-yard rush on the first play from scrimmage. The drive would be aided by a 19-yard screen pass to Evans and would eventually reach the Saint 31-yard line before St. Ansgar forced a turnover on downs.

N-P (4-1, 3-0) reached the Saint 38-yard line before a fumble thwarted that drive with 1:07 left in the first half.

The Huskies moved just past the 50-yard line into Saint territory on their first possession of the second half. An incomplete pass on fourth down ended that drive prematurely.

The Saints’ next possession after Evans’ score saw St. Ansgar head coach Drew Clevinger’s squad fumble. The Huskies recovered with just a little over one minute remaining in the third period and set up shop at the Saint 30-yard line.

There was still hope for an N-P win – albeit scant – at that point.

N-P had a 1st-and-10 at the Saint 19-yard line and Evans ripped through the second level of the St. Ansgar defense, but the ball somehow slipped out of his hands and the Saints recovered at their own five-yard line.

Evans finished with 90 yards on 16 carries. Aiden Gelner – N-P’s junior tailback – amassed 56 yards on 13 carries.

The Huskies were the second-best rushing team in Class A with 1,317 yards entering the showdown versus St. Ansgar. N-P finished with 181 yards on the ground on 35 carries.

Tate White – N-P’s all-state guard and leading tackler at linebacker – exited the game in the second quarter with an ankle injury and did not return. He still finished with eight tackles. Carey led the Huskies with nine stops at his linebacker slot.

N-P will celebrate homecoming next week with a game versus South Winneshiek (2-3, 1-3). The Warriors defeated AGWSR, 16-12, last Friday night.

Wapsie Valley, also undefeated in N-P’s Class A, District 3, shut out North Tama, 45-0. The Warriors are 4-1 overall and 3-0 in the district – tied with the Huskies for first place. North Butler (4-1, 2-1) topped BCLUW, 21-7, in its last game.

The Huskies are ranked ninth in Class A according to the first poll released by the Iowa High School Athletic Association. St. Ansgar remains the top team in that class, followed by second-rated Woodbury Central and No. 3 West Hancock.

Christensen summed up his team’s first loss of the 2023 campaign.

“It’s more of a measuring stick game more than anything,” said Christensen. “They’re very good. We knew they would be quite good. In the long term perspective, this is the type of team you want to be playing hopefully five, six weeks from now – but it’s also a non-district

CROSS COUNTRY: FROM 8

19 minutes. I think it will happen sooner, rather than later – especially with some competition. She was so close the other night,” said Kailainoff.

Huck’s current all-time fastest clip (19:09) in N-P school history is the sixth-best time so far in her class.

Placing third in the girls race was freshman North Butler runner Addison Voelker. She ran the course at Manly to a tune of 19:28.

The Huskies had top times almost across the board on the girls and boys side of competition.

Two career-bests were almost achieved as sophomore Jase Hansen finished in 22nd place in 18:48 and junior Caleb Sinnwell was just a single second off his PR. Sinnwell, like Hansen and big contingent of Huskies, continue to progress and impress as he placed 34th in 19:39.

Hansen was 12 seconds away from his career PR.

“They have to feel really great about that race. They have been very consistent this whole season,” said Kailainoff about Hansen and Sinnwell’s performance.

Luke Paplow cut a minute off his time from the last race he competed in at Willow Run Country Club in Denver. Paplow cut his time down to 19:52. That placed Paplow in the 40th position.

Caleb Lentz, a senior, lowered his time by over 30 seconds from the week prior to a clip of 20:11, good for 45th place.

N-P soph Avery Mueller ran to a clip of 19:57, which placed him in the 42nd position.

In the girls meet, senior Ellie Eick cut off almost 32 seconds from her last meet at Denver. She placed 31st overall in a time of 23:31. Husky sophomore Jalissa White was 45th overall in 24:19 – a near 13-second improvement from Denver.

The biggest mover and shaker for the N-P girls was junior Amberley Gerholdt. Like Paplow, she shaved off over a minute from her outing at Denver. Gerholdt placed 69th overall in 25:57.

“The girls are peaking at the right time. Ellie and Jalissa always seem to come on at the end. Jalissa has improved every race she has run. Ellie is peaking at the right time, as well as Amberley. They all needed that race to continue to build that confidence,” said Kailainoff.

The Huskies have a good shot to be back on that same course in Manly when the state qualifier rolls around on Thursday, October 19. That’s where N-P ran at for the 2022 qualifier.

“I would assume this is where we will end up for the state qualifying meet. The kids love the course and it always seems to be a meet that a lot of our runners have “breakthroughs” as far as times go. The course is flat, so we always run great times here,” said the N-P head coach.

N-P competed at the Bulldog Invitational at Mayne’s Grove Park on Thursday.

Huck breaks record; Nashua-Plainfield runners make strides

By KELLY TERPSTRA
Of the Reporter

Kadence Huck waited and then made her move Thursday night in Manly.

That strategic and well-planned maneuver by the Husky junior enabled Huck to claim her fourth individual meet title in just five tries at the Panther Invite, which was held at Pioneer Town & Country Club.

Huck – a 10th-place finisher at state a year ago in Fort Dodge – saw West Bend-Mallard sophomore Tyra Schupbach take the lead, but that advantage didn't last long.

"Kadence ran a very smart race. Kadence let her set the pace. She is such a strong runner and was able to pass her at the end to take the lead in the last half mile. It was a great tactic," said N-P head coach Jenn Kalainoff.

Huck finished with a first-place time of 19:09.09, compared to Schupbach's runner-up jaunt around the 5K course of 19:17.43.

Huck also broke her own school record time (19:09) in the process, but she still wants more and something that Schupbach has already done.

Schupbach – an 18th-place finisher at state in Class 1A in 2022 – has already broken the 19-minute barrier. The stand-out Wolverine runner sports the fifth-fastest time in Class 1A with a clip of 18:58.95.

Blue-ribbon finishes are great – but Huck seems to have loftier goals at play than just taking home another first-place medal. Which if she does achieve her main priority of dipping underneath 19 minutes – winning will come with the territory.

"Kadence's goal is to break

The top of the mountain is a steep hill to climb when everyone isn't on the same page.

The Nashua-Plainfield Huskies found this out the hard way in its ranked clash with top-rated St. Ansgar last Friday night.

Throw in some rain from good, old Mother Nature and it made the terrain very difficult to navigate for the Huskies and head coach Andrew Christensen.

The water that fell from the sky came down and washed away N-P's perfect season.

The No. 1 Saints had a lot more to do with N-P suffering its first loss of the season than the precipitation that saturated the playing field at Lloyd Koob Field – the home of the Huskies.

In what was one of the biggest games for the N-P football program in quite

Huskies make it two in a row with road win over Clarksville

And no, it's not the drink that's frozen and shipped from Florida.

That word by definition – and a slang term to some – has numerous meanings.

The Nashua-Plainfield volleyball team is hoping to use that word to close out the regular season strong in 2023.

N-P got plenty of "juice" from a five-set, see-saw marathon battle at rival North Butler last week Tuesday, Sept. 19.

The Huskies faced match point – down 14-13 in the final set – only to storm back and rip off three-straight points for the thrilling victory over the Bearcats. The final scoresheet read N-P was the victor – 25-23, 25-22, 24-26, 22-25 and 16-14.

"Getting big wins is always great, especially against a long-time "rival." It builds confidence and cohesiveness on the team. As a team, we really needed a big win to show the girls that they can do it. It was a great night for us and a huge win," said N-P head coach Mindy Foelske.

The momentum gained by that key conference win by the Huskies parlayed itself into a three-game sweep over winless Clarksville (0-14) this past
