'Jail' vote looks doubtful this fall

Supervisors say they want to explore using wind turbine TIF funds for project

BY BOB FENSKE

After almost an hour of discussion about a remodeled Sheriff's Office and new 24-hour holding facility, the Chickasaw County Board of Supervisors were right where they were at when they started the discussion.

the discussion that included Sheriff Ryan Shawver, Chief Deputy Zach Nosbisch and three Nashua residents who have expressed grave concerns about a project that could cost around $7 million was that it seems highly unlikely that voters will get a chance to vote on the proposal this fall.

Several supervisors expressed concerns that there simply wasn't enough time between now and Nov. 7, when the general election for cities and schools is held, to educate the public on the proposal.

"Do we have enough time? Yeah, we probably do," Supervisor Jake Hackman said, "but do we have the time to sell it?"

And the answer appeared to be no. "I think we'd just be rushing it to try to get something this year," Board Chairman Matt Kuhn said. "I understand that it might be $500,000-plus more next year, but if it doesn't pass this year, we're going to be back to next year anyway potentially."

Hackman said "we can't do nothing," but he, like others on the board,

HOLY FAMILY PARISH GATHERS AS A COMMUNITY FOR FIRST IN-PERSON FALL FESTIVAL SINCE 2019

BY BOB FENSKE

Father Jim Goerend took in the scene from the parking lot at the Holy Family Parish Center late Sunday morning, and he liked what he saw.

Kids were playing on the inflatables, parish members were queued up in a long line for some delicious food, live music was playing around the corner and, best of all, Goerend's parish members were "breaking bread" together.

"The church is really a community," he said, "and I think, especially here in Iowa, we feel most together as a community when we sit down and enjoy a meal together."

Reunion means world to these Vietnam vets

With an 'assist' from his late wife, Waucoma man hosts annual gathering in his hometown

BY BOB FENSKE

It may not have been a five-star hotel in the middle of the big city, but New Hampton's Super 8 Motel was just fine last week for the men of the 35th Engineer Team and the 538th Engineer Company.

"All we really need is one of these conference rooms," Doug Ball said, "and we're good to go."

His buddy, a man he had never met before he started attending the annual reunion of the two companies that served during the Vietnam War, nodded his head in agreement.

"It's about the camaraderie, the stories, the shared experiences we all had," Ron Treblehorn said. "We may only see each other once a year and a lot of us didn't serve together over in South Vietnam, but it doesn't matter. We all know what everyone else went through, and once you come to one of these reunions, you meet people you know are going to be friends for life."

Treblehorn served with the 35th, the predecessor to the 538th, and was in Vietnam from July 1967 to July 1968.

Ball, meanwhile, was a 538th man and, like Treblehorn, he was in the Central Highlands, albeit in 1970 and 1971.

As they talked, other veterans conversed, as did a host of the wives who were part of a reunion that began more than 20 years ago and has taken them to pretty much every corner of the country.

Each year, during the reunion's "business meeting," one of the veterans steps up and offers to be the host of the event the following year, and that's how 14 veterans, many with their wives in tow, made the trek to New Hampton last week.

Ball grew up in New Hampton and was a 1969 graduate of New Hampton High School. After receiving his diploma, he enlisted in the Army, went to boot camp and was sent to Vietnam to help the 538th clear jungle.

"I'd do it again if I had to," he said, "and you know, it's what you make of it. We had a job to do and we did it. Unless you were over there, you just don't understand it. When I'm with these guys, you know what? I know they get what I went through."

Ball returned to Iowa, married his beloved Kathy in 1971, forged a career in manufacturing, and raised a family with Kathy in the Waucoma area. When they learned about the 35th-538th reunion, they decided to give it a try, and almost immediately, they were hooked.

"We loved going," Ball said, "and once we went to our first one, we knew we'd keep going back. It was really good for both of us. I got to see the guys and Kathy loved her new friends."

For years, Kathy pushed — maybe even "bugged" her husband — to host one of the reunions.

"Last year, she passed away [in January]," he said, "and I'll tell you, it was different going to the reunion without her but I'm glad I did. ... Anyway, when they asked who was going to host the next one, I think she reached down and raised my hand."

At first, he thought about holding the reunion in Dubuque, but the cost of hotels and the fact that a couple of them were, well, a "pain in the ass" to find, he made the decision to check out the Super 8 in his hometown.

"I came here, told them I needed this many rooms, asked them if they had a conference room, and when they showed me this room, I made the reservations," he said. "They've been wonderful and this has worked out perfectly."

For three days, the veterans and their wives from states like Kansas, New York, Tennessee, Rhode Island, Wisconsin, Arizona, Minnesota, Kentucky, Maine and Iowa gathered and swapped stories — some from Vietnam from long ago; others from life in the past year.

They are, as Sharon Dohe, the wife of Larry Dohe, put it, "family."

"We really are," she said. "We celebrate the milestones, we share the grief. I can't imagine not spending a weekend with these people."

There was, as their always is, some sadness as they remembered the veterans or wives who passed away in the past year; the fact is that most Vietnam vets are now in their 70s. As Ball joked, "I'm 72 and I'm one of the kids at this thing."

After the war, they went their own ways, but the war in Southeast Asia, even if they didn't know it when they were younger, bound them.

"We didn't hear about the reunion until 2009," said Treblehorn, who farms with his two sons near the small southern Minnesota town of Winthrop, "but now, this is our vacation. These guys, they're my people. These wives, they're my wife's people. We may not have been over there at the same time, but that doesn't matter. I know what Doug went through and Doug knows what I went through."

Soon Toby Keeler, from Brooklyn, Wisconsin, and Jim Golden, from South Wales, New York, drifted over to the table that included Ball and Treblehorn. Other veterans were looking through old photo albums, the wives were talking about this and that and the snapshot of the reunion on Friday morning was perfect.

"I think I'm like a lot of us in here," Keeler said, "in that I wasn't sure if I should go, but once you did, I was so glad I did. It's a good group — unfortunately, getting a little smaller every year — but a really good group of guys and wives."

Golden was asked where South Wales was in New York and he said just outside of Buffalo.

That's a haul, isn't it?

"It is, but there's no place I'd rather be this weekend than New Hampton, Iowa," he said.

He paused and laughed.

"We tell a lot of stories and some of them are actually true, but seriously, these guys mean a lot to me, and I know I'm not the only one who believes that."

He was right because as he talked, the three veterans sitting at his table were all nodding emphatically in agreement.

Plenty of offices are open for November election

Those who are interested in being mayor, on the city council or a school board member have until Sept. 21 to file nominating papers

BY BOB FENSKE
editor@nhtrib.com

The filing period for the 2023 general election, one in which a multitude of city offices and school board seats will be contested, is now underway and runs through Thursday, Sept. 21, at 5 p.m.

Chickasaw County Deputy Commissioner of Elections Laura Wickham said candidates can file election papers through that date to be on the ballot for the Nov. 7 election, and she also made a plea for anyone interested in serving as an election worker on that day to contact the Chickasaw County Auditor's Office at 641-394-2100.

"We are definitely short of workers," she said, "and we obviously need them to have the election."

The filing period for city and school board seats began on Aug. 28, and a day later, voters could begin requesting absentee ballots from the Auditor's Office. The first day voters can cast absentee ballots in the Auditor's Office is Wednesday, Oct. 18, which is also the date that office personnel can send out absentee ballots to residents who requested them to be mailed to their homes.

As for candidates who are filing nomination papers, all city candidates, save those from New Hampton, should drop off their completed papers at the Auditor's Office. New Hampton candidates should file their papers with the City Clerk's Office.

School board candidates, meanwhile, should hand in their nomination papers to their respective school board secretaries.

In the city of New Hampton, there are six seats — the mayor, three City Council seats and two Park Board seats — up for election this fall and all six seats are for four-year terms.

Mayor Bobby Schwickerath is completing his first term while the City Council seats up for election include Ward 1 Councilman Cory McDonald, Ward 3 Councilman Jason Speltz and At-Large Councilman Joe Denner. The two Park Board up for election are currently held by Perry Laures and Andrea Rochford.

New Hampton's two School Board seats that are open this fall are currently held by Board Chairman Jay Matthews and Nate Schwickerath.

Nashua residents say holding facility could be built outside of city didn't appear to be in favor of a 2023 vote. He said that the county is on somewhat of a timeline because the state jail inspector has repeatedly said that the county's current jail doesn't meet state standards.

"Something has to be done," he said. "My biggest worry is that when a state official changes, retirement, what is that newer person going to say?"

"I'm in the same boat," Supervisor Travis Suckow said, "but I just don't think this year is going to work."

The discussion about when to send a bond referendum came after Shawver told the board that he estimates the county would have about $453,000 in "upfront costs" if the state jail inspector decided the jail had to be closed. That cost would include hiring four extra deputies so that the county would be "covered" if a deputy had to take someone to jail in a neighboring county.

Shawver estimated that over a 20-year period — the expected length of a bond — the county would incur somewhere around $12.5 million in additional costs if it didn't have either a jail or a holding facility.

But much of Monday's discussion, for the lack of a better term, meandered.

Nashua residents Arnie Boge, Doug Strike and Tim Zoll brought up numerous ideas, some that seemed to be in opposition to statements they made earlier this year when the county was considering a joint project with the New Hampton Police Department that would include offices for both county and city law enforcement departments and a 24-hour holding facility that would be built on the south edge of New Hampton.

One idea, however, that intrigued almost everyone in the room was using the tax revenue from the Chickasaw Wind Farm that is being built north of New Hampton to pay for the project.

But the county's current bond attorney doesn't believe that's the proper course of action.

"He doesn't read the code as liberally as some others do," said County Attorney David Laudner, who said that there are two "main" firms in the state of Iowa that do bonding. "One of which has no problem letting you use TIF money off of windmills on any project you want because it generally affects the economy and affects blighted areas. They read the code very broadly, that's a better word than liberally."

That is not the bonding attorney Chickasaw County uses.

"They read it more narrowly than the other [firm]," Laudner said.

Laudner pointed out that Palo Alto County, where he worked before coming to

Bob Fenske/Tribune

Former Chickasaw County Board of Supervisor member Arnie Boge (center) makes a point as fellow Nashua residents Tim Zoll (left), also a former board member, and Doug Strike, listen during a discussion about the potential remodeling of the Sheriff's Office and the construction of a new 24-hour holding facility during Monday's meeting of the supervisors.

Chickasaw County, used funds generated from wind turbines to "pay for their new law enforcement center with zero cost to the taxpayer."

"That's the bonding attorney I'd want to have," Boge said, which drew a laugh from those in the boardroom. "The fact is 75 percent of the cost of the project is paid by the rural anyway. ... That would help both city and rural taxpayers if it wasn't a bonding issue, if it could be paid for revenues coming in. I don't think anyone here is arguing against law and order and that something needs to be done."

But the three Nashua residents also wondered if the county should look at building a new law enforcement center and holding facility either at the Heritage Center or near the county-owned building that is located just south of New Hampton.

When they first came to the board this past spring, they had expressed concerns about security if the Sheriff's Office was not across the street from the courthouse.

"I know that's what I said," Boge said, "but maybe it's something to consider."

Still, Shawver pointed out that even without the city involved, the project that was suggested this spring would cost the county close to $10.5 million.

"That cost, if I remember right, was deemed too high," he said. "So is it not now? I'm just asking the question."

Strike also wondered aloud if the county shouldn't be looking at building a jail instead of a holding facility, but there seemed little appetite for that because of the costs. With a 24-hour facility, any inmate who needs to stay in jail longer than a day would be transferred to an area county jail. But in recent weeks, Laudner and Shawver have said the vast majority of those arrested in Chickasaw County are released on bond.

"Our numbers don't support that," Shawver said of building a jail instead of a holding facility. "We don't want to build a huge jailhouse. ... Could that change in five, 10 years? It could. And that's one thing that if it does change, I don't know what the county is going to do when you landlock yourself over there [across the street]."

Still, Shawver said both he and Nosbisch believe that the proposal put together by the Samuels Group and presented to the county earlier this month is one that meets the needs of the county.

Supervisor Scott Cerwinski said he believes at the very least the county needs to explore if it can and should use other revenue sources, like TIF, to fund the project.

And he and his fellow supervisors also want to talk to the county's current bond attorney to see if he would be more inclined to have the county use TIF money if a new facility is located in the rural part of the county.

Services Building, where Public Health and Homecare Services is located.

"To me that would be more convenient — location wise and county software and wifi," he said, "and it might be cheaper. If [Public Health Administrator] Lisa [Welter] is OK with that, I don't want to encroach on her area."

Hackman pointed out that Knutson may need office space for only six months, and Knutson agreed.

"I'll discuss it again with her," Knutson said. "If we can approve a set of plans at next [week's] meeting, send them out for 30 days, you'd like to think we'd have a general [contractor] hired by Oct. 1 and start construction [on the living quarters]."

Earlier in Monday's meeting, Knutson said he has found a company that will draw up plans for the living quarters at the new station for $2,500, but he also told supervisors that the firm also provides construction management services for an additional fee.

"The way he basically said it is that if a plumber comes in at $1,000 and $10,000 and $5,000," Knutson said, "he makes sure there is a reason there is a spread there, and that cost would be more than another $2,500. I think there's some value in that."

The EMS director said he hoped to have "a set of plans for you guys to approve [at next Tuesday's meeting] and that we can start distributing them [to contractors]."

Thank You to all family, friends and neighbors for all the special 50th anniversary wishes we received.
Bless everyone,

Another heat wave to hit area during upcoming holiday weekend

Mother Nature looks like she is going to crank up her furnace again, and she's going to do it over a holiday weekend to boot.

After several days with high temperatures in the 70s and 80s, the National Weather Service Office in La Crosse, Wisconsin, says the area will bake in another heat wave over the Labor Day weekend, with highs climbing into the 90s by Saturday and remaining there at least through Tuesday. And forecasters also say the heat will be accompanied by higher humidity.

And once again, there's little — in fact, there's no — rain in the forecast, meaning the drought situation in and around Chickasaw County will worsen.

In last week's U.S. Drought Monitor Report, the southwestern corner of Chickasaw County — along with the western half of Bremer County — is now experiencing "extreme drought" conditions while the rest of Northeast Iowa is dealing with "severe drought."

As of Tuesday, New Hampton has received just 1.37 inches of rain in August, barely a third of the normal 3.82 inches of precipitation that falls during the first 29 days of the month.

Even after finishing a delicious lunch, folks stick around to visit at the Holy Family Parish Fall Festival that was held Sunday afternoon inside and outside the Parish Center.

Committee spends months planning Fall Festival

FALL FESTIVAL: FROM 1

And for the first time since 2019, that's exactly what the members of Holy Family Parish were doing during the church's annual Fall Festival. Canceled in 2020 because of the COVID-19 pandemic and held as a "drive-through" event the past years, the Fall Festival returned to its roots this year.

"It was something we talked about as a committee and were pretty adamant about," said Andrew Zweibohmer. "We wanted a full-blown, everyone's-here kind of Fall Festival. It's just not the same when you're picking up a meal and going home to eat. We wanted people to be together."

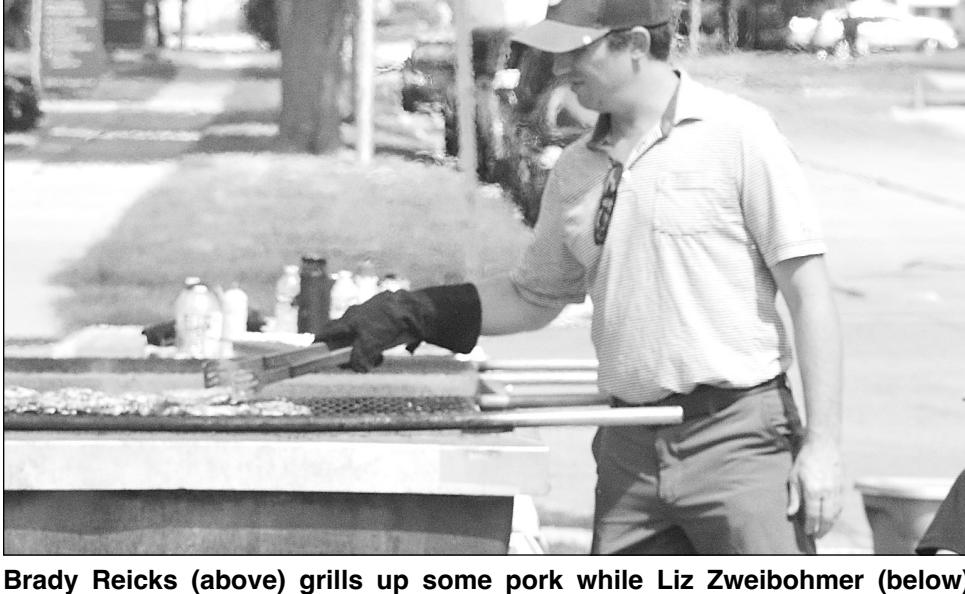

And that they were on Sunday, and God provided a gorgeous day for the event that included the choice of two meals, games for both the adults and the kids and much more.

Zweibohmer and his wife Liz were joined on the committee by Cassie and Phillip Eichenberger, Lacy and Jaydon Mitchell, Stephanie Mashak and Mark Kipp, and the group began meeting six months ago to plan the festival.

"Yeah, you don't meet last week and throw it together," Andrew Zweibohmer said with a laugh, "but we had a lot of fun putting it together. It's a lot of work, but it's worth it when you see all the people who are here today. We wanted to bring the church together and hopefully that's what's happening today."

The parish priest certainly thought the Fall Festival Committee had nailed it.

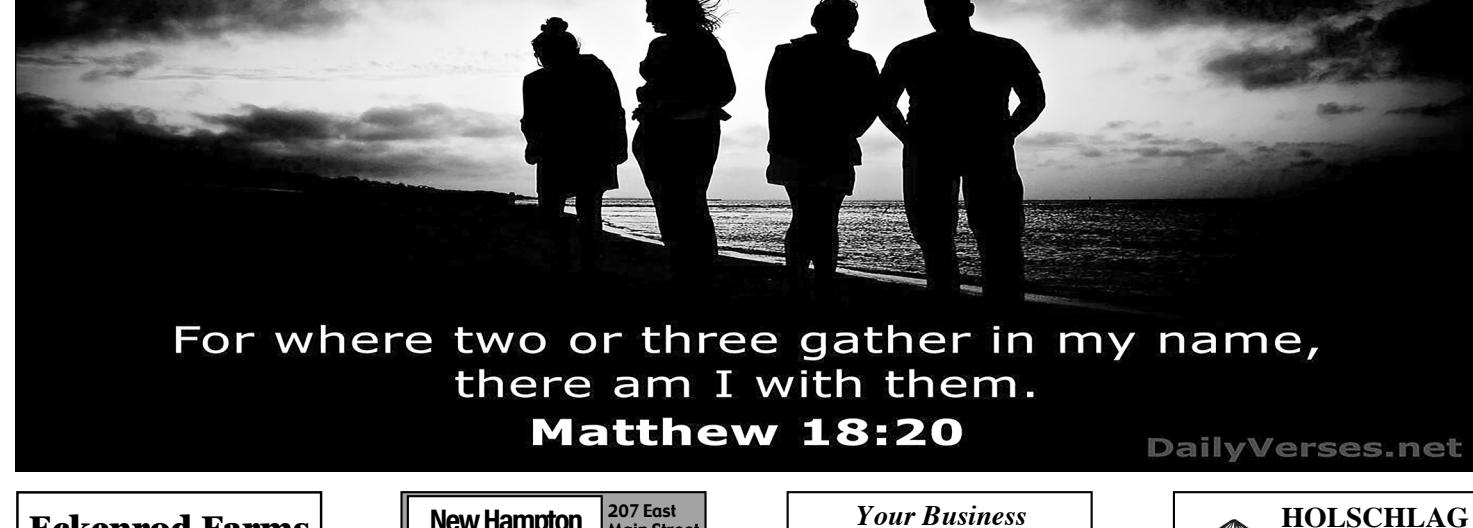

"This is perfect," Goerend said, "and I can't tell you how appreciative I am — and the whole church community is — that we have people like them willing to put all the time in to give the parish a day like today."

The annual celebration at Holy Family Parish included plenty of activities for the kids.

Should you invest ... or speculate?

MAKING SENSE OF INVESTING

tive investments.

A second key difference between traditional and speculative investments is the time horizon involved. When you invest in stocks and other traditional investments, you ideally should be in it for the long term — it's not a "get rich quick" strategy. But those who purchase speculative investments want, and expect, quick and sizable returns, despite the considerable risk involved.

A third difference between the two types of investments is the activity required by investors.

When you're a long-term investor in traditional investments, you may not have to do all that much, once you've built a portfolio that's appropriate for your risk tolerance, goals and time horizon. After that point, it's mostly just a matter of monitoring your portfolio and making occasional moves — you're not constantly buying and selling, or at least you shouldn't be. But when you speculate in crypto or other instruments, you are constantly watching prices move — and then making your own moves in response. It's an activity that requires considerable attention and effort.

One final thought: Not all speculative instruments are necessarily bad investments. Precious metals, for instance, are found in some traditional mutual funds, sometimes in the form of shares of mining companies. And even crypto may become more of a stable vehicle once additional regulation comes into play. But if you're investing for long-term goals, such as a comfortable retirement — rather than speculating for thrills and quick gains, which may disappear just as quickly — you may want to give careful thought to the types of investments you pursue.

This article was written by Edward Jones for use by your local Edward Jones Financial Advisor.

Edward Jones, Member SIPC

Now, consider these three components of investing and how they differ between traditional and speculative investments:

The first issue to consider is risk. When you own stocks or stock-based mutual funds, the value of your investments will fluctuate. And bond prices will also move up and down, largely in response to changing interest rates. However, owning an array of stocks — small-company, large-company, international, etc. — can help reduce the impact of volatility on your stock portfolio. And owning a mix of short- and long-term bonds can help you defend yourself somewhat against interest-rate movements. When interest rates fall, you'll still have your longer-term bonds, which generally — but not always — pay higher rates than short-term ones. And when interest rates rise, you can redeem your maturing short-term bonds at potentially higher rates.

With speculative investments, though, price movements can be extreme as well as rapid. During their short history, cryptocurrencies in particular have shown astonishingly fast moves up and down, resulting in huge gains followed by equally huge, or bigger, losses. The risk factor for crypto is exacerbated by its being largely unregulated, unlike with stocks and bonds, whose transactions are overseen by well-established regulatory agencies. There just isn't much that investors can do to modulate the risk presented by crypto and some other specula-

Cities return to supervisors to discuss ARPA funds

Lawler councilman says it's an 'equity issue,' especially since Nashua received county funds for work on dam

BY BOB FENSKE
editor@nhtrib.com

The Chickasaw County Board of Supervisors once again Monday heard from representatives of four cities — North Washington Mayor Dave Geerts, Lawler City Councilman Kurt Croell, Alta Vista Mayor Kevin Crooks and Ionia Mayor Randy Taylor — who are questioning why county ARPA funds were given to Nashua but not to their cities.

"We're back to request our $50,000 again," Geerts said. "We did not get a basic answer last time we were here on why our citizens are less qualified than those out of Nashua?"

Geerts was referring to the fact that in a budget amendment approved last month by the board, the supervisors earmarked $50,000 to the city of Nashua for engineering costs to fix issues with the dam located in the city.

"I thought the ARPA money was here to help the community after COVID," Crooks said, "and that money would definitely help us."

Croell agreed with the mayors.

"Lawler same," he said. "We'd like our 50 grand, we'd like our piece of the pie for Lawler ... But I think we're talking about an equity issue here. That's why we're here."

He asked the three supervisors who supported the money for Nashua to explain why one city got county ARPA funds and the others didn't.

"To me, it's more of an emergency situation with the dam. The county owns the majority of the ground around the lake.... I feel like it's important to save the property values."

Croell, though, responded with a question he answered himself, "Do the taxes matter for the rest of the cities guys? The answer is yes."

All four city representatives asked the supervisors to at least consider holding a public hearing on their requests — which Hackman said was part of the Nashua process but not mentioned in the four motions supporting funds for the other cities made by Supervisor Steve Breitbach and seconded by Kuhn. All four of those motions were defeated earlier this month on 3-2 votes.

Dog park supporters: So far, it's been so good

Freedom Run getting used, but board eyes future improvements

BY BOB FENSKE
editor@nhtrib.com

Max Jacoby and his family was heading home to Tennessee after visiting relatives near Rochester, Minnesota, when they decided to stop in New Hampton to fill up the gas tank.

"We came off the ramp, my daughter saw the 'dog park' sign, and knowing we were going to be in the car for another God knows how many hours, we thought Jake could use a little tiring, if you know what I mean," he said as his golden retriever ran from one end of Freedom Run Dog Park to the other. "He's gonna sleep really good tonight in the car, I'll tell you that."

Jacoby paused, took the tennis ball from Jake and flung it a mile. As Jake raced after the ball, Jacoby smiled.

"You got the makings of a really nice park here," he said. "It's huge, I mean back home, ours is tiny compared to this thing. Seriously, if they keep on keeping on, hell, it's going to be something special."

If only the board members of the Freedom Run Dog Park would have been there that night, but shoot, we're guessing they're smiling from ear to ear over the first several paragraphs of this story.

"I think it's proven itself, I think we realize this is something that was not only wanted but really needed," said Deb Larsen, one of the board members who worked diligently to get the park off the ground. "It's getting used, and I think that's one thing we all wanted to make sure of. We figured it would be, but to come out here and see that it's getting used, it's awesome."

Fellow board member Kathy Babcock agreed.

"It's something we've needed in New Hampton for a long time," she said, "and to see it being used the way it's being used, that's really been gratifying."

And those that have been dog park supporters for years say they're not done yet.

They're appreciative of a

Freedom Run Dog Park board members and supporters say they are looking forward to improving the park that is located near the New Hampton Municipal Airport, just off

Rules at park where dogs rule

- Dogs must be on leash outside the fence.
- Close and latch gates behind you.
- Owners must be within the dog park and supervising their dogs at all times with a leash readily available.

recent gift of six trees from the city of New Hampton, although Larsen's husband, Marty, couldn't help but laugh when he said "I can't wait for them to grow up because man, they like a lot of water. And if you haven't noticed, it hasn't rained much this summer."

The park is actually a two-in-one variety. On Freedom Run's northeast side is a fenced in area for smaller dogs while on the other side is one for the "big dogs."

The trees have been a nice addition, but there are bigger plans in the works. Freedom Run board members would love to add more agility courses to the park, but most importantly, they want to have a water line available at the park.

"That's probably the biggest thing for us right now," Deb Larsen said, "but now that we know it's being used, we know that's a must."

The park — like any — has rules. No food or alcohol, no glass containers, no puppies under 4 months of age, no aggressive dogs or dog owners, no dogs that are in heat or ill, no other animals except dogs and no smoking are among the prohibitions.

What the board members appreciate the most are the dogs that get to "stretch out" and run until they're content, but a close second are the dog owners who use the park.

"It's amazing how many people come out here and share their water, for example," Deb Larsen said. "We all love our dogs. We're dog people, right? And we look after each other ... and our dogs, of course."

And they're just getting started, too.

"We've got a group of people who are really dedicated," Deb Larsen said, "and as happy as we are that we have this park, all of us want to improve it and make it even better."

Sydney Lau, 22

Sydney Lau, age 22 of Iowa City and formerly New Hampton, died Sunday, Aug. 20, 2023, at the University of Iowa Hospital and Clinics in Iowa City.

A Mass of Christian Burial was held at 10:30 a.m. Monday, Aug. 28, 2023, at Holy Family Parish, New Hampton, with the Rev. James Goerend officiating the Mass. For those unable to attend the Mass in person, they could join the family via Livestream on Sydney's obituary page on the funeral home website at www.hugebackfuneralhome.com Friends greeted the family from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 27, 2023, at Hugeback-Johnson Funeral Home & Crematory in New Hampton. Visitation continued an hour prior to the Mass at the church on Monday.

Sydney Denyse Lau — a beloved daughter, sister, aunt, granddaughter and friend — passed away in Iowa City on Aug. 20, 2023.

Born on Jan. 9, 2001, in Oskaloosa, Sydney was the cherished (favorite, actually) daughter of Dennis and Michelle (McAloon) Lau. She was a loving, intelligent, creative and generous woman, whose life was characterized by her passion for music, her love for her family and friends, and her commitment to her community.

Sydney's early years were spent in Winner, South Dakota, before the family moved to New Hampton in 2007.

She attended St. Joseph Catholic School through the eighth grade and graduated from New Hampton High School in 2019. Sydney was a vibrant presence in her school community. She was a cheerleader for football and wrestling. She was active in musical theater. She was innately chic, and refused to compromise in her commitment to looking fabulous; she was appropriately voted Best Dressed of her class. She gained valuable life experience working at Poor Richards and as a barista for the Gathering Place coffee shop.

After high school, Sydney attended the University of Iowa in Iowa City. Her ultimate goal was to have a career in healthcare, and she completed coursework toward that end. She also worked as a security guard for U of I Hospitals and Clinics.

Her studies were interrupted by the COVID-19 pandemic, and she moved back to New Hampton, where she worked at MercyOne New Hampton Medical Center. While in New Hampton, she was a regular cantor at St. Joe's Catholic Church. In the fall of 2022, Sydney returned to Iowa City and started a new position as a registration clerk at a U of I OB-GYN Clinic. This was a good fit for Sydney (although she was probably a very intimidating security guard). She enjoyed her work, and was a much-appreciated employee.

She settled into Iowa City, a place she loved to live. She had a beautiful apartment and took much joy in making it her home. She had a rich social life and great friends.

Sydney loved animals, especially her dogs Caesar and Baxter, and her cats Bosco and Wylon. She wore this love proudly, literally, and was the owner of many, many (many) shirts with cats on them.

It would be inaccurate to say Sydney "enjoyed" playing cards. She made cards her war. For all she loved people, you really didn't want to be on her team if you couldn't pull your weight. She had high standards. Which is fair.

Although she described herself as a horrible cook, she loved food, and she loved sharing good food with the people around her. She could pick the perfect place to eat, and would do so on family trips. But her hometown favorite was always the Pub at the Pinicon.

In her own words, Sydney recently wrote (in a profile for her place of work) that "kindness from strangers" and "laughter with people I love" were two of her favorite things (in addition to parking spaces she didn't have to parallel park in). She lived that way.

Much longer ago, when she

was a little girl, Sydney also wrote the following about herself:

"Sydney Denyse Lau. Who loves cats, likes green, and is tall. Sister of Shannon, September, Summer, Dustin, Dane, Derek, David, Devin, Samantha, Stephanie, Shawnessy, and Shelby. Who loves family, friends, and cats. Who feels lucky to have a dog. Who needs food, shelter, and air. Who gives respect, caring, and fairness. Who fears spiders, ghosts, and heights. Who would like to see Ireland. Who dreams of having a big house with lots of cats. Who is a student of Mrs. Heying, Syd." The girl who wrote that certainly lived in the woman she became.

Second only to family and friends, Sydney's passion was music. Sydney was music personified. She had the most beautiful voice, and shared it often. She loved singing for people, at wedding celebrations, funeral masses, and sharing her rendition of the National Anthem at sporting events. She loved singing with people, in intimate gatherings with family and friends.

The songs the family has chosen for Sydney's Celebration of Life are hymns she loved to sing.

Sydney was also a prolific composer of original music, and played a variety of instruments. She had a music studio set up in her bedroom at her home in New Hampton (although she could sometimes be found in her closet laying down tracks because "the house is too noisy!"). Her style ranged from wickedly satirical to gut-wrenchingly sublime. She revealed herself through the songs she wrote: her music is joyful and playful, gorgeous and heartfelt, often hilarious, never taking itself too seriously.

One of her creations, "In Between," written and performed by Sydney, was chosen by her family to accompany her on her Honor Walk at the University of Iowa Hospital, just prior to the organ recovery surgery that ultimately saved three lives. This song will also accompany Sydney's family as they walk with her one last time during her Celebration of Life. GODSPEED, SYD-SYD!!!!!! WE LOVE YOU!!!!!!

Sydney Denyse Lau was brilliant, in all senses of the word. We would say she sparkled, but she would make fun of us for that. She exuded grace and love. She was so vivacious, just brimming with life and creativity.

She is survived by her loving parents, Dennis and Michelle Lau of New Hampton; 12 siblings and their spouses and children, Shannon Lau and Greg Allen (Forest and Meadow Allen) of Northfield, Minnesota, Ember Lau and Adam Bell (Magdalene Bell) of Des Moines, Summer and Jeff Swenson (Isaac, Lila, and Ruby Swenson) of Belmond, Dustin and Amanda Lau (Cecilia and Emma Lau) of Cedar Falls, Dane Lau and Rocio Romero Ramirez (Melissa Marron Romero) of Iowa City, Derek Lau and Erin Bernardy of St. Paul, Minnesota, David and Meg McAloon of Atlanta, Devin Lau and Eileen Tucker of Cedar Rapids, Samantha Lau and Kelly Larkin (Baby Larkin) of Fernley, Nevada, Stephanie Lau and Sean Corpstein of Ankeny, Shawnessy Lau and Gunnar Mills of Salt Lake City, Shelby Lau and Matthew Gleason of New Hampton; and grandmother, Phyllis Lau of Mason City.

She was preceded in death by her maternal grandparents, Harry and Tres McAloon, and paternal grandparents, Paul and Velma Lau.

Patricia 'Patti' (Rochford) Knowlton, 66

Patricia "Patti" (Rochford) Knowlton, age 66 of Ionia, passed away Wednesday, Aug. 23, 2023, at her home.

A funeral Mass for Patti Knowlton was held at 11 a.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 29, 2023, at Immaculate Conception Catholic Church in Charles City with the Rev. Tom Heathershaw officiating. Visitation was held at Hauser Weishaar Funeral Home in Charles City from 4 to 7 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 28, 2023, and continued one hour before the service at the church on Tuesday.

A luncheon was held at the KC Hall in Charles City following the funeral service at noon.

Burial was held at Calvary Cemetery in New Hampton following the luncheon at 2 p.m.

Patti was born in New Hampton, on Feb. 12, 1957. Patti was one of seven children born to Merle and Bernice (Finnegan) Rochford.

Patti graduated from New Hampton High School in 1975. In high school, she was active in all athletics and excelled in academics. She found true enjoyment in softball, and she later continued playing slow pitch softball after graduation.

After high school, Patti entered the workforce while continuing to pursue her education at North Iowa Area Community College. Patti received her associates degree in business from NIACC. She maintained a 4.0 G.P.A. while continuing to work multiple jobs.

Patti's employment started the following Monday after she completed high school and ended with TriMark Corporation in New Hampton. Patti was employed with TriMark from May 20, 1975, until she retired on Dec. 5, 2011. During her 36 years with the company, she began as an office assistant in 1975 and served all departments in the office. In 1980, during the ownership of Owatonna Tool and SPX, Patti was in charge of HR and payroll. In 1989, TriMark became employee owned. Patti was instrumental in this process. At that time she became the president of human resources and a trustee of the ESOP.

In 1996, Patti was named the general manager by Duane Nelson. In 1999, Patti became the senior vice-president general manager until her time of retirement in 2011. One of Patti's true passions in life was the people TriMark employed, all of whom she considered family.

In Patti's younger years she was no stranger to mischief. Whether she was an accomplice or the mastermind behind the shenanigans with her siblings, or being caught smoking on the playground by the school nuns, Patti was always up to or in to something if it sounded like a fun time.

Some of the fondest memories include doing chores outside on the family farm, breaking her dad's cattle to ride, riding her palomino paints Lady and Colonel, being caught sneaking into the house way too late and having to shovel corn at the brink of dawn, driving her burgundy "T-Bird" and dropping the clutch in her black Camaro. Patti took one big trip while she was a child and that was when she first found her love of traveling by going on her first train and airplane ride.

Patti was a very loyal and loving family woman. She had four children — Justin Jay Elliott, Renee Michael (Knowlton) Knapp, Abbey Lee (Knowlton) Ferch, and Cari Lynn (Knowlton) Laube. Her children were her pride and joy. She was so proud of everything they accomplished. Patti was always on the sidelines of the court or in the stands at the arena.

John M. Kout, age 67 of Independence, died suddenly of an apparent heart attack on Thursday, Aug. 24, 2023.

Visitation was from 3 to 6 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 29, 2023, at White Funeral Home, Independence, where there was a Celebration of Life funeral service at 6:00 p.m. with Pastor Erica MacCraigh officiating.

Burial will take place at a later date.

John Mathias Kout was born March 20, 1956, in New Hampton, the son of John Peter Kout and Helen Theresa (Balik) Kout.

He was raised in Lawler and graduated from Turkey Valley High School with the Class of 1975.

At a young age, John began working with his mother and father in their family business, Kout Construction. He learned all that it took to build houses – from the planning and drawing stage, all the way to the final nail to be hammered.

On April 28, 1979, John was united in marriage to Carol Ann Polansky, at St. Wenceslaus Catholic Church in Spillville. The couple made their home in the Lawler area where John continued to build houses with his dad.

John eventually bought the family business and ran it for about 10 years before he began working for Calmar Manufacturing in Calmar.

John was a tinkerer. He loved taking things apart and putting them back together. He enjoyed paintball too, and for several years played in tournaments and was hired to travel to tournaments and fix guns and equipment from some of the top manufacturers.

To be closer to their daughter and grandchildren, John and

John Kout

Carol moved to Independence, and he enjoyed working at the Cabinet Shop for Dave Harms.

John loved being around his grandchildren, spending time riding the ATV, cheering on the Iowa Hawkeyes, and simply just being together with his friends and family. He will be missed.

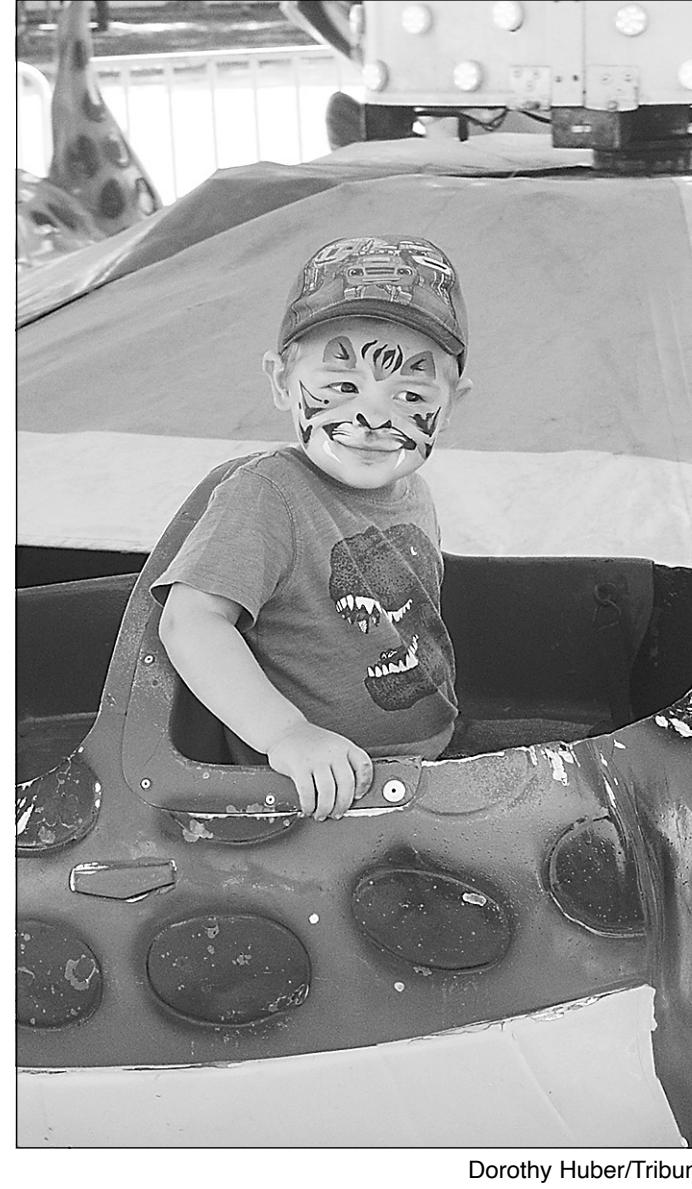

John is survived by his wife of 44 years, Carol Kout of Independence; one daughter, Alicia (Don) Imbouathong of Waterloo; two grandchildren, Kaia and Greyson; and two sisters, Mary (Melvin) Kruse of Lawler, and Margaret (George) Nolte of Nicholasville, Kentucky.

He is preceded in death by his parents; one sister and her husband, Joann (Darold) Mahlestedt; and one nephew, Mark Kruse.

Memorials may be directed to the family to be given to organizations important to John in his honor.

Online condolences may be placed at www.White-MtHope.com.

Labor Day weekend tradition set for holiday weekend at Big 4 Fairgrounds

Technically, the Big 4 Fair kicks off today with "Entry Day," but Fair Board members say the fun really gets going Friday and continues throughout the Labor Day weekend at the fairgrounds in Nashua.

The fair has been held for more than a century and was originally designed to bring the people of four counties – Chickasaw, Floyd, Butler and Bremer – together and, save for 2020, when it was canceled because of the COVID-19 pandemic, it's become a rite of the holiday weekend that many people consider the real "end" of summer.

This year's fair will include grandstand shows, beginning with Friday's Charity Truck and Tractor Pull, live music, a variety of livestock and non-livestock shows, the annual Big 4 Chamber of Commerce Best Dam BBQ challenge and, of course, a midway where $15 wrist bands will be sold on Friday and Monday and $20 wrist bands will be sold on Saturday and Sunday.

Here is the complete schedule for this year's fair:

FRIDAY

- 6 p.m. to midnight: Beer garden open at Uncle G's Pavilion.
- 6:30 p.m.: New Hampton Area Charity Pullers Truck and Tractor Pull.

Thank You

We have been in awe of the numerous support, love and generosity we have received from so many communities, family and friends throughout this difficult time. It has been amazing to see communities come together to honor our sweet Landri by starting fundraisers to give to missions and her youth group, making bracelets, as well as doing activities that Landri enjoyed like painting rocks. We are so blessed and could not say thank you enough for honoring her in such thoughtful ways and uniting together to continue her legacy. As the days continue on, may we all #LiveLikeLandri

AND GRAIN BINS DON'T MIX!

Please contact your local electric cooperative/utility if you plan to build a grain bin in the vicinity of an electric distribution line or electric transmission line.

Dairyland Power Cooperative owns and operates transmission lines in Northeastern Iowa, which provide electrical energy to local rural electric cooperatives and municipalities. Those transmission lines are operated at voltages that greatly exceed local distribution and service lines that may be located on your property. Dairyland will provide assistance in planning the placement of the grain bin near our transmission line to provide a safe environment for everyone working and living around grain bins.

The State of Iowa requires specific clearances for electric lines around grain bins, with different standards for those filled by portable and permanent augers, conveyors and elevators. The drawings show specific clearances required for each scenario.

Taking shape but still work to be done

Much of the playground equipment has been installed at the Kindness Square inclusive playground that is being built in New Hampton's Runion Park, but the director of the New Hampton Parks and Recreation Department said the park is still a month-and-a-half from completion. "It looks great, don't get me wrong," Tara Hackman said, "but we still have a lot of work to do. We're still hoping to be done by mid-October."

Among the projects that still must be completed are the installation of what Hackman called "two bigger pieces of equipment," the placing of the rubber covering in the park, the construction of the restroom and shelter house and the pouring of sidewalks.

She said the park could be used this fall but a grand opening celebration won't be held until the spring of 2024.

A quintet of Chickasaw Tri-Athlete Award winners

Former Chickasaw will wrestle one more season for Golden Gophers

Minnesota wrestling is welcoming a familiar face back to the program as sixth-year senior Michael Blockhus is returning to don the Maroon and Gold once more, head coach Brandon Eggum announced Saturday.

"After taking time to reflect and think, I've realized I have some unfinished business at Minnesota," Blockhus said. "Finishing last year as an All-American, I know that I can help this team have a really special season, and I want to give it one more go with those guys that have become like brothers to me."

Blockhus, who graduated from New Hampton High School in 2018, was a three-year starter for the Gophers after transferring from Northern Iowa following his redshirt freshman season, collecting a 69-41 career record and 23 bonus-point victories.

A three-time NCAA qualifier for Minnesota, Blockhus broke through this past season to reach the podium for the first time in his career, placing eighth at 149 pounds at the 2023 NCAA Championships.

"Coming off an All-American season, Michael feels he is not done yet and has more to give to our program," Eggum said. "We are thrilled to support his quest for an NCAA title. He will provide strong leadership, and we look forward to another season with him."

Earlier this month, Blockhus made his professional MMA debut at Bellator 298 as he defeated Eli Mefford by technical knockout at the 2:43 mark of the first round.

Blockhus, who won high school state titles for Crestwood in 2015 and as a Chickasaw in 2017 and 2018, has the opportunity to return by utilizing the extra year of eligibility that was granted in 2020 due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Trojans, Chickasaws will be at NH Invite

VOLLEYBALL: FROM 14

New Hampton versus TV was close early on, but a barrage of points up front by the Chickasaws' talented hitters – senior Hailee Pesek and junior Braelyn Rosonke – was a constantly-on-the-move force that TV had no answer for.

"We have a lot of weapons. If somebody isn't on, we've got a few to pick up the slack," said Geerts. "That also keeps the defense guessing as to who's gonna be swingin'."

Game two saw the Chickasaws race out to a 14-0 lead and cruise the rest of the way for the 14-point win – a second-straight time over the Trojans.

NH senior Paige Steinlage added 11 kills in the two matches to go along with her 17 assists. Chickasaw senior Molly Wegner led NH with 24 assists.

Balk's Trojans persevered and came away with a win over MFL – which opened its season last week in a straight-set loss to Cascade.

After an opening match that saw numerous ties – TV senior Halle Weber's back-to-back aces gave her Trojans a little breathing room, up 18-13. Turkey Valley would keep momentum and the run going after Trojan senior Adriana Tiedt's kill rocketed down on to the hardwood. That capped a 7-0 run for TV and allowed the Trojans to hold a 19-13 advantage. Two aces by Mariah Thronson and Maici Weber – along with a Tiedt power kill – propelled the Trojans to the game-one, eight-point triumph.

"I always feel like our first game is always like a warm-up game," said Balk. "They got into it. I also feel like nerves are always a big part."

An 8-0 run in game two versus the Bulldogs saw TV jump out to a 14-5 lead. Another string of five-consecutive points by TV helped keep MFL at bay in the final game versus the Trojans' Upper Iowa Conference rival.

Balk's coaching approach this season is different than last fall. Post-match meetings in the locker room include players giving constructive criticism to one another as to what the Trojans can do better the next time they take to the hardwood against opponents.

"I can only see so much off the court. I like to have open communication. You guys have to tell me what's going on," said Balk. "The peer feedback has definitely been more introduced this year. Last year was just me coaching."

Tiedt – who is a two-time first team All-UIC player at outside hitter – racked up a team-leading seven kills versus MFL. Thronson led TV with nine assists and Maici Weber came up with four blocks. Kinsey Reicks and Halle Weber each sent three aces apiece over the net.

Turkey Valley – the defending Upper Iowa Conference champs – travels to Decorah tonight (Thursday) before finishing off the week in New Hampton.

New Hampton hosts North Fayette Valley tonight (Thursday). Then the Chickasaws will more than likely get their second crack at Denver on Saturday.

"We still have some things to work on as far as ready defense. Sometimes they catch us a

Chickasaws fresh/soph win an abbreviated opener

Chickasaws' only points.

"We felt the team did a great job of being ready to adjust to only playing half of a game," New Hampton coach Dennis Pagel said. "We did our best to get everyone some playing time in this abbreviated game. As coaches, we were pleased with how the team played in this first game."

The Chickasaws got strong performances from both their quarterback as Rochford went 2-for-2 for 55 yards and two touchdown passes while Robinson was 5-for-6 for 71 yards. Pickar led the running game with 67 yards on just four carries while the defense had 18 players record at least one tackle, with Ben Burke and Jacob

McDonald leading the way with five apiece.

The Chickasaws will play at Clear Lake this Friday in a game that kicks off at 4:30 p.m.

"Our focus will be to improve," Pagel said, "so we set ourselves up to be the more physical team in the weeks to come."

made things very difficult for us. We will regroup and learn from this."

New Hampton was led by McShane, who had 128 yards on 14 carries, in addition to his catch for 20 yards, which meant the senior standout accounted for almost 82 percent of the Chickasaws' 181 yards.

Jaxon Eckley led the New Hampton defense with seven tackles and came up with the only Chickasaw sack. McShane had 6.5 tackles, Talyn Bohaty had four and Ty Shekleton came up with a fumble recovery — one that set up McShane's 19-yard scoring run in the first quarter.

Despite the loss, Frerichs and his team aren't panicking.

"It will be our plan to stay the course," the veteran coach said. "That's what you do when you have tough losses. [You] believe in your program and the process. We are a high school team with 28 juniors and seniors out for football. Our only resolve is to get better at what we do."

New Hampton heads to Clear Lake to take on the Class 3A Lions this coming Friday. Clear Lake beat Forest City 34-0 in its season opener on Friday.

And while Frerichs knows the Chickasaws are in for a "stiff test" against the Lions, he said New Hampton will focus on itself this week in practice.

"We will look to improve in all areas going into week two," he said.

Trojans travel far to get season-opening victory

Turkey Valley takes advantage of five Coon Rapids-Bayard turnovers to pick up 38-28 victory in West Des Moines

sports@nhtrib.com

Four small schools from opposite ends of the state had the big stage all to themselves Saturday in West Des Moines.

It was east versus west in an 8-man football doubleheader at Valley Stadium. The Turkey Valley Trojans and longtime head coach Mark Scott proved to the Crusaders of Coon Rapids-Bayard that Northeast Iowa can play some football.

The Trojans distanced themselves in the second half and came away with a 38-28 season-opening victory over the school that resides in the western portion of Iowa.

The Trojans entertained the Crusaders in the Saturday matinee matchup as TV traveled over three hours to make the trip to Polk County to play at West Des Moines Valley High School's stadium. The Tigers' home field is one of the more expansive and expensive prep facilities built in the last two decades in Iowa that hosts any number of athletic contests in the Des Moines metro area.

Scott – in his 21st season at the helm of his TV football program – talked about the experience for his players, coaching staff and fans that endured a long bus ride home after the big win 180 miles away from home base in Jackson Junction.

"The feeling I got from the kids is it was hot and they were tired," said Scott. "It was getting warm down there on that turf. This previous week didn't do much to get them ready for that kind of stuff. They battled through, toughed it out and got the job done."

Valley Stadium – built at a cost of $8 million back in 2002 – also hosted the nightcap 8-Man pigskin game that pitted WACO against Fremont-Mills. WACO won that battle, 26-20.

"This was a great experience for the players to play on a sports turf. The boys battled through the heat and some mistakes to come home on the

Turnovers doom Chickasaws in opener

Opportunistic Denver takes advantage of miscues to hand New Hampton 42-14 non-district loss

It's an often overlooked stat when it comes to football, but New Hampton got a tough reminder on how important it is to take care of the football during its season opener Friday night.

The Chickasaws turned the ball over six times – losing three fumbles and throwing three interceptions – and Denver turned all six miscues into points as the Cyclones pulled away for a 42-14 win in a non-district matchup of two teams that entered this season with high expectations.

"It was a tough opener for us to be honest," New Hampton coach Scott Frerichs said. "We made some mistakes that we haven't seen in practice or the scrimmage with Decorah."

The score may have been ugly, but the reality is this was a much closer game than that final tally showed. One look at the total yards gained by each team told the story that this wasn't your typical 28-point football game as Denver outgained New Hampton 233-181.

But in some ways, the Cyclones "New

After lost week, runners hit the course

New Hampton's cross country team members run with their coaches, Jamie Ohrt and Bob Vorwald, during an early-morning practice last week, but because of the heat, the Chickasaws, like most of the state's cross country teams, got an extra week to prepare for their 2023 season opener.

And for both the Chickasaws and Turkey Valley, the season opener takes place late this afternoon (Thursday) when they compete in a meet at Charles City's Wildwood Golf Course.

New Hampton rolls to non-league wins; Trojans get victory over Upper Iowa foe Shelbie Balk and her Turkey Valley Trojans had their hands full on Monday in the season opener versus MFL-Mar-Mac and New Hampton.

Balk – in her second year as TV head volleyball coach – has plenty on her plate as well. She's expecting her second child any day now as her due date is next week Thursday. The full-time nurse who is on maternity leave is trying to get her Trojans up to speed before the regular season really kicks into high gear.

In the meantime and in between matches and practices with her volleyball squad – Balk is basically on standby for when she will add an addition to her family. Balk said she doesn't know the sex of her soon-to-be newborn child and she has no preference whether the baby will be a girl or boy.

"Right now it's kind of just a waiting game," said Balk, who is a military veteran that was deployed overseas a decade ago to defend her country over in Afghanistan in 2012. "It's a lot different this year because I have an assistant. I don't have to take on all the responsibility by myself – so having help is definitely beneficial."

That help comes in the form of TV assistant Ashley Walz. The pair helped guide TV to a 25-17, 25-16 win over MFL in the second match of the triangular over in Jackson Junction. The conclusion to the evening saw the Trojans square off against area rival New Hampton.

There wasn't much to say about that match if you're a Trojan fan, other than to mention it was all Chickasaws – which dominated TV by identical scores of 25-11 and 25-11.

"They are taller than us. You can put up a block and they hit over us," said Balk.

New Hampton – which ran its record to 5-1 overall this season – will host its home invite this Saturday. That's a tournament that gets underway at 8 a.m. sharp and will also feature the Trojans – although the Chickasaws and TV will compete in different pool-play brackets. Turkey Valley was a late addition after Balk wanted to add some matches to her calendar.

"We only had 13 playing dates so I emailed Jess (Geerts) to see if we could get in," said Balk.

New Hampton is fresh off a takedown of NEIC foe Charles City – ranked 14th in Class 4A – last Thursday at a home triangular. The Chickasaws bested the Comets in two sets – 25-23 and 25-23. Denver – a state qualifier last year – gave NH its only loss so far this fall with a 25-22 and 25-21 sweep.

NH sent down 12 aces to the hardwood against MFL in a 25-7, 25-8 victory – six of them by all-state senior Marissa Cahoy. She had three aces in a row at one point in game two against the scrappy and feisty Bulldogs – who have yet to win a match this season in three tries. Cahoy led all attackers for New Hampton with 16 kills on the night in the two matches.

"I think the big thing is that we stayed ahead and didn't play down to their level," said NH head coach Jess Geerts. "I think that's big when we can stay at our level of play from start to finish – for the most part."

Jenna Heeren – another senior for Geerts' squad that swept the regular and postseason NEIC titles last year – tallied four of NH's five aces in the win over TV.
