Director pushes for station in New Hampton; supervisors remain undecided

By BOB FENSKE
editor@nhtrib.com

Chickasaw County EMS Director Joel Knutson made his sales pitch to locate the permanent home for the county-owned ambulance within the city of New Hampton during Monday's meeting of the Chickasaw County Board of Supervisors.

But it didn't seem the supervisors were necessarily buying what Knutson was selling, and after more than an hour of discussion, the county was no closer to picking a place to house ambulances, equipment and crews.

Since beginning operations on Jan. 1, Chickasaw County EMS has utilized a rental house on South Walnut Avenue for crews while its ambulances have been parked in two stalls at the New Hampton Police Department that the city is renting to the county.

The two most talked about buildings for a permanent home to the service have been the Community Services Building and the Chickasaw Heritage Building Center, which is located south of the city limits of New Hampton.

Knutson said a software program he used showed that the "county will have a 74 percent slower response time for 67 percent of our calls if the station is built" at the Heritage.

He also expressed concern about staffing issues that could arise if supervisors decide to place the station at the Heritage.

"Locating the station down at the Heritage is really going to mandate that all of our crews are with the

Supervisors go with door before water at Heritage

Board votes to install automatic opener after request from veterans

By BOB FENSKE

County leaders decided Monday to put veterans in front of water.

The Board of Supervisors unanimously approved installing an automatic door at the Chickasaw Heritage Building Center, even if that means a water conditioner project gets pushed into the next fiscal year, which begins on July 1.

Last month, Veterans Affairs Director Keith Elenz requested that an automatic door be installed at the former county home because a number of the residents he serves have complained about how difficult it was to open the doors to what is now an office building.

Supervisors originally held off on the request to make sure that the county would be following

County, city to get look at jail feasibility study Monday

The Chickasaw County Board of Supervisors and the New Hampton City Council will hold a joint meeting on Monday evening to hear the results of a feasibility study the two entities requested in regards to the possibility of a new jail and potential law enforcement center that would house both the Sheriff's Office and the New Hampton Police Department.

The meeting will begin at 5:30 p.m. and be held at the Community Service Building.

The county hired the Samuels Group this past fall to conduct a feasibility study on the county's aging jail that also includes the Sheriff's Office. The city of New Hampton agreed to provide $5,000 of the $20,000 cost.

Chickasaw County Sheriff Ryan Shawver said that he expects the Samuels Group to present their findings on everything from the state of the current jail to building a new "holding jail" to building a new full-scale jail to the potential for a law enforcement center.

"They're going to give us potential plans to move forward," Shawver said, "and that could be do we renovate our current building, do we add on, do we build completely new? ... By the end of the night, we should know what the recommendations are and how much it will cost."

BREAKFAST RULES

LIONS CLUB MEMBERS HAVE JOBS DOWN PAT FOR ANNUAL FUNDRAISER

By BOB FENSKE

If there is a rule when it comes to the second Sunday of March it is this: The New Hampton Lions Club will be doing the cooking for breakfast.

And if there's a second rule when it comes to the day, it is this: They all know what their jobs are.

"Pretty much everyone does the same thing year after year," Lions Club member Matt Kuhn sun.

The first thought that came to mind on Monday afternoon as New Hampton Middle School seventh- and eighth-graders gathered in the auditorium was a question — how in the heck are they ever going to get organized and get to work?

That's where Jill Cantu and Chad Pemble came into the picture. The two directors of the school's upcoming musical — Everything's Groovy! — quickly and adeptly gathered the cast of 50-some students for a quick cast picture and within minutes, the kids of New Hampton Middle School were singing and dancing.

As Pemble put it so succinctly, "They bring lots of energy. This is both a challenge and a positive!"

The musical is so ingrained into New Hampton Middle School's culture it even has its own season. There's the fall sports season, the split winter sports seasons, the spring sports season and the musical season.

And somehow, some way, every year, the students and their directors pull it off.

"What I look forward to the most is watching students overcome their fears," Cantu said, "and the exhilaration that is on their face when they realize that they made it!"

Cantu is a musical veteran, if you will; after all, she's been the music director for the play since she arrived in New Hampton for the start of the 2012-13 school year.

Her co-director, in one way, is a musical rookie. This year's musical marks the first time the high school science teacher and coach has been a director.

But for those who think of Pemble as the defensive coordinator for the football team and as a former girls basketball and assistant boys track coach, they only know part of the story.

Here's the rest of the story.

"I was heavily involved with music in high school, in both band and choir, and involved in musicals," he said, "but I haven't really been involved with anything since. So it's been nice to get back into it."

And both directors can tick off the "pluses" of being in the musical. From making new friends, to having fun to exploring their talents to being involved in their school, the middle school musical, they will tell you, is something every kid should try.

"You may not know that your are good at acting or singing or dancing until you try," Pemble said. "More involvement with school activities makes happier students and students who perform better in the classroom and have fewer problems."

The challenge for the directors is to get middle schoolers to embrace getting out of their comfort zones.

"Many students have a fear of being on their own on stage so the musical will challenge them," Cantu said, "and by the time they are in high school they have grown more confident so performing by themselves does not phase them."

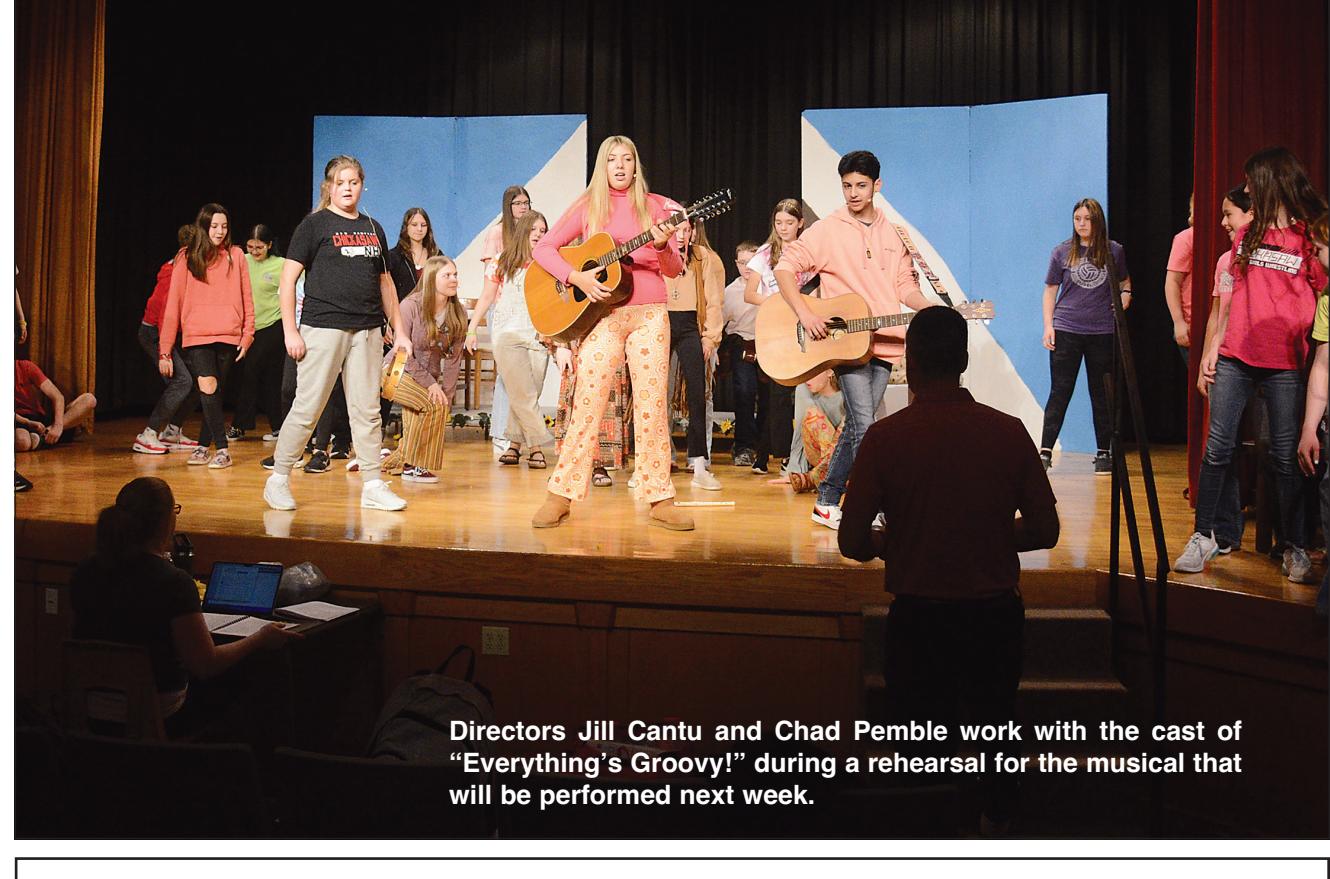

It is amazing to watch that personal growth in each student."

And soon the rest of us will get a chance to see how much these kids of New Hampton Middle School have grown because "Everything's Groovy!" opens in a week. Students will perform the musical during a matinee next Thursday afternoon and then take the stage for real that night.

For Pemble, it's been, in a word, fun.

His daughter Jersey is in the musical. He's gotten to know many middle school students, kids who will eventually have in class when they get to high school. And he's enjoyed working with Cantu.

"I'm just enjoying the entire experience," he said.

Directors Jill Cantu and Chad Pemble work with the cast of "Everything's Groovy!" during a rehearsal for the musical that will be performed next week.

said. "The guys who do the French toast are the same, the guys who do the pancakes are the same, the guys who do the serving are the same, the guys who wash the dishes ... well, you get the idea," Kuhn said with a laugh. "It's not only a great fundraiser for our club but it also gives us a chance to see a lot of people in our community."

The Lions Pancake and French Toast Breakfast has been a tradition for more than half a century; in fact, Sunday's event marked the 51st straight year that club members have risen early in the morning to start cooking, served throughout the morning and spent a chunk of the afternoon making the New Hampton High School cafeteria look like it was untouched.

And usually people come in droves, and 2023 was certainly no exception as the Lions served almost 900 residents, many of whom came not just for the food but the company.

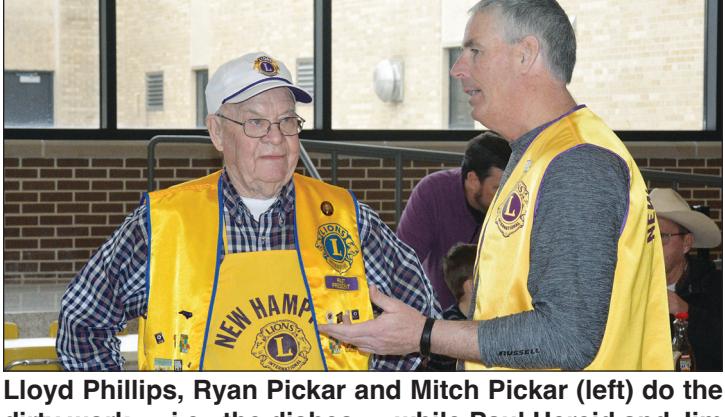

"We had a time there where it was packed," Kuhn said. "There was not another seat available. All in all it was a good day."

And 52 weeks from Sunday, they'll do it all over again for the same cause — various Lions programs and scholarships — and guess what? They'll have the same jobs, too.

Should Investors ‘Go It Alone’?

If you're going to enjoy a comfortable retirement, you should know, among other things, how much money you'll need. And you may have a much better chance of knowing this if you get some professional help.

Consider these findings from a 2021 study by Dalbar, a financial services market research firm:

- Investors who worked with a financial advisor were three times more likely to estimate what they would have saved at retirement than “do-it-yourself” investors.

- More than two-thirds of investors with a financial advisor were satisfied with the amount they would have saved at retirement, compared to about 27% of the do-it-yourselfers.

How do financial professionals help their clients in these ways?

First, consider the issue of determining how much money will be needed for retirement. It's not always easy for individuals to estimate this amount. But financial professionals can help clients like you arrive at this figure by exploring your hopes and goals. How long do you plan to work? What kind of lifestyle do you anticipate enjoying in retirement? Where would you like to live? How much would you like to travel? Are you open to pursuing earned income opportunities, such as consulting or working part time?

Next comes the other key question: How much money will be available for retirement? This big question leads to many others: How much do you need to save and invest each year until you retire? About what sort of investment return will you need to reach your retirement income goals? What level of risk are you willing to take to achieve that return? What is the role of other income sources such as Social Security or any pensions you might have?

Having a financial professional help you gain a clear idea of your retirement income picture can certainly be reassuring.

MAKING SENSE OF INVESTING

ing. But there may be other reasons why “going it alone” as an investor might not be desirable.

For example, when the financial markets are down, as was the case for much of 2022, some investors make decisions based on short-term volatility, such as selling investments to “cut their losses,” even if these same investments still have solid business fundamentals and good prospects for growth. But if you work with a financial professional, you might decide to stick with these investments, especially if they’re still appropriate for your long-term strategy. Other times, of course, the advice may be different — but it will always be advice based on your goals, needs and time horizon.

Furthermore, if you’re investing on your own, you may always be measuring your results against the major market indexes, such as the S&P 500 or the Dow Jones Industrial Average. But in reality, your portfolio should contain a wide range of investments, some of which aren’t contained in these indexes, so you might not be assessing your performance appropriately. A financial professional can help you develop your own, more meaningful benchmarks that can show the progress you’re actually making toward your goals.

In some areas of life, going it alone can be exciting — but when it comes to investing for your future, you may benefit from some company on the journey.

This article was written by Edward Jones for use by your local Edward Jones Financial Advisor.

EMS director expresses concerns about Heritage

we move to that model.”

He especially expressed concerns about being able to staff his backup crews, many of whom are working full-time jobs within the city. Their employers, Knutson said, have been more than willing to let them run with the ambulance but may not be as hep on the idea if their employees have to leave work as soon as the first ambulance is called out.

“If we end up having to move to south of town, when the first truck goes out, they have to get activated and go to the truck,” he said. “A lot of the employers we feel are probably going to not allow them to leave anymore because we’re talking a fairly sizable amount of time.”

And the issue with that, the director said, is it will “make it very difficult to take transfers out of Mercy, where we make our money.”

But some board members felt, as Jake Hackman put it, that there were “too many moving pieces” with the county at this time to make a decision. They pointed to the jail feasibility study that the county will receive this coming Monday, the possibility of combining the Emergency Management Agency with EMS and the unknown cost of moving other departments — like Public Health, for example — to the Heritage.

“I think there are a lot of decisions to be made before we can really decide which building where we’re going to put it,” Supervisor Scott Cerwinski said. “Are we going to combine the two? Who’s moving and what’s the cost of that moving? ... Jake’s right, there are a lot of moving pieces right now.”

Hackman said he has long believed that Public Health, EMA, the Emergency Operations Center and EMS should be housed together, and he said he didn’t think there was enough room at the Community Services Building to make that a reality.

He also asked if a new jail and law enforcement is built that would include the New Hampton Police Department, would the current Police Department building be available?

Supervisor Travis Suckow took issue with the fact that Chickasaw County EMS employees would work for the service if it was located in town but not if the station was at the Heritage.

“The thing I don’t understand is are the employees really in it for the right reasons? If we move it a mile south of town, two miles south of town, why would everyone leave?”

Bridget Edson, who served on the Chickasaw County EMS Advisory Committee that helped the county get the new service off the ground, quickly rebutted Suckow.

“Those providers have other full-time jobs so they’re doing this as an above and beyond to serve their community,” she said, “so I’m not questioning like what they’re in it for. They’re working a lot of hours for us, but I understand the idea that they want to be home with their families on their down time and waiting for calls to come in for us.”

County Attorney David Laudner told the board that as much as he didn’t want his office to move that maybe the best “compromise” location would be the building that houses his office on South Linn Avenue.

“If space is a problem at CSB,” he said, “I don’t think space is a problem there.”

Still, there appeared to be a divide on the board, and Chairman Matt Kuhn said the issue is really one that could impact the service in the future. He conceded that, right now, the Heritage would probably work.

“But what happens when, if, we don’t have all these providers that are coming in from other locations,” he said, “and we’re back to the people who live here? You know, it’s new and shiny, everyone wants to go and be a part of it. What happens in a couple of years when that wears off?”

In the end, no decision was made and a question by Laudner basically went unanswered.

“So what’s going to change,” he asked.

“What Janga piece is going to fall out to make it all start falling into place and the pieces start getting moved? What piece of information is going to come forward to say, ‘OK, now I’m ready to decide.’” the board approved Hackman emphasized that the water coming into the Heritage was safe.

“The water’s good to drink, it passes every test,” Hackman said. “I think we have some concerns about the color of the water.”

In other business Monday:

• Board members agreed to have the county “sign on” to the latest opioid lawsuit settlement that was reached with two drug companies and three pharmacies.

The settlement, County Attorney David Laudner said, was for almost $50 billion and that Iowa should receive around $135 million — with half of that going to the Attorney General’s Office and the other half to local government entities.

The county has already received about $34,000 from other opioid lawsuit settlements, but none of it has been spent yet because there are a number of guidelines that must be met for it to be spent.

Laudner told board members that the Iowa State Association of Counties (ISAC) is planning to hold several meetings this spring to help counties come up with ideas on how to use the money.

• Supervisors approved 28E agreements with the cities of Ionia, Lawler and North Washington to have the Sheriff’s

Office provide drive-through services to each of the municipalities for $15 a resident.

Board members also approved another 28E agreement that in effect is the contract to provide law enforcement services to the city of Fredericksburg.

Under the agreement, the Sheriff’s Office will provide the city with 1,020 hours of service during the fiscal year that begins July 1 for a total cost of $66,300.

And the board also OK’d a 28E agreement with the city of New Hampton to provide dispatching services for $15.75 per resident, which means the total the city will pay is $55,030.50.

• Board members also spent a short time discussing the two public hearings that are set for this coming Monday. One will be to adopt the fourth and what supervisors say will be the final budget amendment for 2022-23 while the other will deal with the 2023-24 budget and maximum levy.

The latter will need four votes to pass because a “super majority” is required whenever a county asks for more than 2 percent additional tax-asking than it did the previous year.

Because the Rural Services Basic tax-asking for next year is 11.7 percent higher than it was for this year, the board needs at least two-thirds of its members, in other word four, yes votes to approve the max levy.

Americans with Disabilities Act guidelines and asked the county’s head custodian, Dave Gorman, to check with the Iowa Department of Inspections and Appeals and also check to make sure that the door wasn’t located next to a fire wall.

Gorman told supervisors he made a call to the department and was referred to an ADA website.

“Basically, it says doors on public buildings need to be 32 inches [wide],” Gorman said before adding that the website stated that “although automatic door openers provide greater accessibility, they are not required.”

Supervisor Jake Hackman reminded his fellow board members that the county has been looking at installing a conditioner at the Heritage because of iron in the well water.

“I don’t foresee both of these being done in the fiscal year,” Hackman said.

Supervisor Travis Suckow, though, felt the door should leapfrog the water issues.

“I guess in my book, the veterans were the ones that requested this,” he said. “I feel we should take care of our veterans. To me, that’s a little more important.”

Later in the meeting, after the board approved Hackman emphasized that the water coming into the Heritage was safe.

“The water’s good to drink, it passes every test,” Hackman said. “I think we have some concerns about the color of the water.”

In other business Monday:

• Board members agreed to have the county “sign on” to the latest opioid lawsuit settlement that was reached with two drug companies and three pharmacies.

The settlement, County Attorney David Laudner said, was for almost $50 billion and that Iowa should receive around $135 million — with half of that going to the Attorney General’s Office and the other half to local government entities.

The county has already received about $34,000 from other opioid lawsuit settlements, but none of it has been spent yet because there are a number of guidelines that must be met for it to be spent.

Laudner told board members that the Iowa State Association of Counties (ISAC) is planning to hold several meetings this spring to help counties come up with ideas on how to use the money.

• Supervisors approved 28E agreements with the cities of Ionia, Lawler and North Washington to have the Sheriff’s

Phone and Internet Discounts

Available to CenturyLink Customers

The Iowa Utilities Board designated CenturyLink as an Eligible Telecommunications Carrier within its service area for universal service purposes. CenturyLink’s basic local service rates for residential voice lines are $29.50 per month and business services are $42.00 per month. Specific rates will be provided upon request.

CenturyLink participates in the Lifeline program, which makes residential telephone or qualifying broadband service more affordable to eligible low-income individuals and families. Eligible customers may qualify for Lifeline discounts of $5.25/month for voice or bundled voice service or $9.25/month for qualifying broadband or broadband bundles. Residents who live on federally recognized Tribal Lands may qualify for additional Tribal benefits if they participate in certain additional federal eligibility programs. The Lifeline discount is available for only one telephone or qualifying broadband service per household, which can be either a wireline or wireless service. Broadband speeds must be at least 25 Mbps download and 3 Mbps upload to qualify.

CenturyLink also participates in the Affordable Connectivity Program (ACP), which provides eligible households with a discount on broadband service. The ACP provides a discount of up to $30 per month toward broadband service for eligible households and up to $75 per month for households on qualifying Tribal lands.

For both programs, a household is defined as any individual or group of individuals who live together at the same address and share income and expenses. Services are not transferable, and only eligible consumers may enroll in these programs. Consumers who willfully make false statements to obtain these discounts can be punished by fine or imprisonment and can be barred from these programs.

If you live in a CenturyLink service area, visit <https://www.centurylink.com/aboutus/community/community-development/lifeline.html> for additional information about applying for these programs or call 1-800-201-4099 with questions.

Chickasaw County EMS Director Joel Knutson makes a point about the location of a permanent ambulance station to the Board of Supervisors Monday.

with the fact that Chickasaw County EMS employees would work for the service if it was located in town but not if the station was at the Heritage.

“compromise” location would be the building that houses his office on South Linn Avenue.

“If space is a problem at CSB,” he said, “I don’t think space is a problem there.”

Still, there appeared to be a divide on the board, and Chairman Matt Kuhn said the issue is really one that could impact the service in the future. He conceded that, right now, the Heritage would probably work.

“But what happens when, if, we don’t have all these providers that are coming in from other locations,” he said, “and we’re back to the people who live here? You know, it’s new and shiny, everyone wants to go and be a part of it. What happens in a couple of years when that wears off?”

In the end, no decision was made and a question by Laudner basically went unanswered.

Nashua-Plainfield voters approve referendum to use funds for baseball, softball complex

BY BOB FENSK
editor@nhtribune.com

Nashua-Plainfield voters evidently liked the thought of saving up to $1 million in interest payments as they overwhelmingly approved selling general-obligation bonds to help pay for a new baseball and softball complex in Plainfield.

The March 7 election results, which are unofficial until their final canvas by the Chickasaw County Board of Supervisors this coming Monday, showed that 292, or 85.4 percent, of voters voted yes on the measure while 50 voters, or 14.6 cast no ballots. The measure needed at least a 60 percent approval rating to pass.

"We got it done, and we're absolutely thrilled," Nashua-

Plainfield Superintendent Todd Liechty said Wednesday morning. "I think voters realized that we shouldn't leave that kind of money on the table and wanted to pay off the bonds quicker and save a bundle on interest costs."

No matter how Tuesday's vote had turned out, the district had planned to use its SAVE Fund, often referred to as the "state penny," to pay for the $3 million project that will include two new varsity field with lights, a concession stand, press boxes and two new youth diamonds. But the School Board brought the question to voters because general-obligation bonds come with lower interest rates than regular SAVE bonds.

The measure passed easily in all four counties in which the district is located. Approval rates were 92.3 percent in Butler, 88.6 percent in Bremer, 83.6 percent in Chickasaw and 76.4 percent in Floyd.

The new complex will be built on the grounds of the old Plainfield school building, which closed after the 2017-18 school year and will allow Nashua-Plainfield to join the rest of the Top of Iowa Conference East Division schools in having baseball and softball playing their home games in the same town.

Currently, the Huskies' softball team plays in Plainfield while the baseball team plays on a field in Nashua owned by the Big 4 Fair Board, but that field does not have lights, which means both Nashua-Plainfield varsity diamond teams play their home games at the same time. At other conference schools, the varsity softball games are at 6 p.m. while the varsity baseball games kick off at 7:30 p.m.

Liechty said Wednesday that the district would continue to work with its bond consultant and construction could begin earlier than originally expected. He said work on the new softball field could begin during the upcoming season.

"That has to be the priority because with baseball, we at least have the option of playing in Nashua in 2024," he said, "but the idea is to have it all ready to go that season. We're going to get to work and we appreciate the support our communities gave us."

The best gift

The great news of the season is that we have a Savior

O Lord, our Lord, how majestic is your name in all the earth! You have set your glory above the heavens.

— Psalm 8:1

David begins this psalm by ascribing greatness to the name of the Lord. How excellent is His name in all the earth! How majestic is His name in all the earth!

This was most certainly true to the Jews. How unfortunate that the name of the Lord is not held in greatness among us in general today.

The name of the Lord is so majestic, and yet man has turned His name into a byword and even a curse word. We must remember that the name of the Lord is to be held sacred and holy and only used to speak of His mighty works and wonders.

“O Lord, our Lord, how majestic is your name in all the earth.”

Without God, we have no value. Without God, we are no better than the animals. Without God, we are small in this universe and our lives have no meaning.

With God, we have meaning and significance. As we get closer to Resurrection Sunday stop and remind yourself how majestic God truly is and that you are a child of His.

For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus
for good works, which God prepared beforehand, that we should walk in them.

— Ephesians 2:10

Have you placed your hope in Jesus Christ? If you have not been baptized for the forgiveness of sins, then your hope rests somewhere else.

If you haven't truly accepted the Lord and Christ as your savior then your hope rests somewhere else. It is time to turn to the Lord today and remember how majestic He is. For He is the Father who sends His Son to die for you and I.

Pastor Anthony Harris serves Harvest Church New Hampton, and more about the church can be found online at harvestcares.com.

Then Jesus declared, “I am the bread of life.
Whoever comes to me will never go hungry, and whoever believes in me will never be thirsty.”

John 6:35

The man behind St. Patrick's Day

Do you have your favorite green shirt ready to go for March 17? Will you dye your scrambled eggs green that morning? Believe it or not, behind our silly St. Patrick's Day traditions – like wearing green or stories about leprechauns and pots of gold – lies a rich story about a man devoted to God who spread the Gospel throughout Ireland.

Cultures all over the world celebrate St. Patrick's Day. Of course, St. Patrick's Day has become a pretty secular holiday but when we understand the real meaning behind the celebration, it can become a more fun – and meaningful – experience for the whole family!

Who was St. Patrick?

Patrick was born in Britain circa A.D. 385 – over 1600 years ago! At the time, the Roman Empire (of which Britain was a part) was on the verge of collapse. Barbarians were on the move, invading different regions of the empire.

Roman legions (large groups of soldiers) had deserted Britain, making it vulnerable to attack. When Patrick was sixteen years old, Irish pirates invaded his village, destroyed it and took Patrick captive. He was put on a ship bound for Ireland.

In Ireland, Patrick was sold as a slave and put to work as a shepherd for pigs. In those Irish hills, life was hard for Patrick. He was exposed to a harsh climate and nearly starved to death. He was completely alone, but he turned to God for comfort and companionship. Through prayer Patrick found great relief:

“The love of God and the fear of him surrounded me more and more. And faith grew. And the spirit roused so that in one day I would say as many as a hundred prayers, and at night only slightly less.”

Six years into slavery, Patrick had a vision from God. He was told he would return to his homeland. Not long after he had another vision and was told his ship was waiting for him. Patrick ran away and traveled more than 200 miles to Ireland's southeast coast and boarded a ship headed for Gaul (modern-day France), where many people believe he trained for ministry.

After returning to his homeland, Patrick received another vision. In it a man named Victorius came to him holding many letters. Patrick read one of the letters aloud, called “The Voice of the Irish.” As he read he heard Irish voices calling out to him and pleading for his return to Ireland.

Years later Patrick was ordained as a bishop, a leader in the Church. Around A.D. 432 Patrick returned to Ireland to start sharing the Gospel about Jesus with the Irish people.

Patrick's missionary work over the next thirty years was truly remarkable. He journeyed across Ireland, spreading the gospel, baptizing and confirming countless believers and founding many churches and monasteries.

One of Patrick's missionary strategies was to focus his efforts on evangelizing Ireland's many tribal kings. His thought was that converting the kings would lead to the conversion of their subjects. His strategy proved extremely successful, and many people became Christians!

Spreading the Gospel in Ireland was far from easy for Patrick. He faced frequent opposition and was in constant danger of being killed for his bold faith.

Patrick died on March 17th in A.D. 461. His is best known for organizing the church in Ireland and spreading Christianity there.

Why is St. Patrick important?

Historically, St. Patrick's missionary work forever changed Ireland. His bold faith and godly character makes him one of the great saints in church history. As a former slave, he condemned slavery as an ungodly institution.

As a missionary, he lived among the Irish, identified with them, honored their customs and beliefs and redeemed many of them to reflect the truth and teachings of Christianity.

As an evangelist, he was driven to make God's name known among the Irish. God used his steady resolve and ambition to advance God's kingdom in a mighty way in Ireland. Patrick was passionate about evangelizing the Irish, but he was also passionate about educating converts in Christian living and service.

Should Christians celebrate St. Patrick's Day?

Like Patrick often did with Irish traditions, believers today can redeem a holiday that has become quite secular in its practices and traditions (e.g., leprechauns and shamrocks).

Christians throughout the centuries have participated in cultural events like St. Patrick's Day and used them as springboards for relationship building and gospel conversations with nonbelievers.

How do Christians honor him?

St. Patrick's Day is an officially recognized feast day in the Roman Catholic, Anglican, Eastern Orthodox and Lutheran Church. Church services near the holiday usually honor Patrick's life and missionary work.

Many Christians participate in the traditions surrounding the holiday, such as public parades and festivals, Gaelic folk music dancing and wearing green and shamrocks.

Rochford's last hoops season ends with all-state honor state squad for the second consecutive season.

"Our community and our program is very proud of putting Carlee and a New Hampton high school girls basketball player at that level. It helps build our program and helps build our community," said Leichtman.

Regardless of what team she was voted to or resides on again this year, it's been a tremendous ride for Rochford and her Chickasaws.

"Yeah, my last season has come really fast and hard to believe. But I am ready for one last season with my teammates and hopefully a memorable one – not just for me, but for my teammates as well," said Rochford.

Rochford is referring to the sport of track and field – for which she has signed to compete collegiately in the track and field uniform donned by the University of Iowa Hawkeyes.

The hoops stat lines – although noteworthy and impressive – are secondary, at least in Rochford's mind. Her 24 points a game averaged in her senior year (2nd-best in Class 3A) and an all-time scoring mark (1,378 points) accumulated take a back seat to the relationships she's built and the memorable moments she was a part of.

"I am honored to have received the awards I did. They are definitely an honor, but don't mean as much as the memories I have made," said Rochford, who also excels in volleyball at an all-conference level.

Rochford made it a point to utilize her talent in any number of athletic endeavors.

Focusing on one sport has never really made sense to me. Growing up in a small town you have to be involved in as much as you can. Each sport has a benefit to another sport. Being a multi-sport athlete has made me the player that I am today," Rochford added.

Then there's the little things along the way that might not seem important at first glance or could be looked at as trivial – that mattered.

Memories like Chad Pemble's music selection during basketball practices her freshman year. Think classic rock and plenty of it from Pemble, who coached Rochford her first two years of varsity competition when she was an underclassmen.

There was a career highlight just this past winter – a record that was destined to be broken.

A game at home versus Waverly-Shell Rock saw Rochford eclipse the century mark in scoring and pass Leichtman's daughter – Isabel – as the school's top scorer in 5-on-5 at New Hampton.

"The top moment of my high school career is reaching the 1,000 career point mark surrounded by my teammates, coaches, and family," said Rochford.

Leichtman said Rochford's drive helped get her to where she is today.

"Carlee has worked her whole career for her name to be printed in those awards," said Leichtman.

Leichtman, who first saw Rochford play basketball as a third-grader, was impressed right off the bat.

"She was at that point already where she was beyond her peers or the individuals that she played," said Leichtman. "She was destined to be a great athlete and really had some very good intangibles on the court that just led her to be a superior player when she entered into the high school level at that point."

Rochford also holds the single-game scoring record of 39 points scored in a game versus Kee High in January. New Hampton won that contest by a score of 77-42 – the most points scored by a Chickasaw team since a 79-35 win over Charles City in 2017.

The previous highest single-game total notched by a Chickasaw player was also held by Rochford. The old record was 38 points, which was netted by Rochford against Kee as well – back in December of 2021.

Rochford was still tabbed first-team all-conference in the NEIC despite only playing in nine games in an injury-plagued sophomore season. She was first-team All-NEIC all four years she competed on the varsity level.

For her career, Rochford averaged 19.6 ppg in what was a total of 70 games. She was second in the NEIC with a 7.7 rebounds-per-game tally and led the league in scoring in 2022-2023.

Only West Liberty's Kelsey Joens (24.6 ppg), an Iowa State recruit, outscored Rochford in Class 3A. She is the younger sister of Iowa State senior Ashley Joens, the all-time leading scorer at Iowa State. Kelsey Joens is a transfer from Iowa City High, where she helped the Little Hawks to two state tournaments in Class 4A.

The rest of Class 3A's all-state roster for the IPSWA included repeat first-team selections – Haylee Stokes of Estherville-Lincoln Central, Gracie Schoonhoven of Unity Christian and Katy Reyerson of West Marshall. Jenna Twedt of Benton Community, Callie Levin of Solon and Emily TerWee of West Lyon rounded out the eight-player, first-team all-state squad.

Algona Garrigan's Audi Crooks was named 2023 Miss Iowa Basketball as she helped lead her Bears to back-to-back state titles in Class 1A.

With stature and recognition comes responsibility and Rochford isn't shy about helping make a difference in the lives of potential Chickasaw future stars.

She has worn their shoes – figuratively speaking.

"Being a leader and role model for me is what it's all about. I remember growing up and looking up to the high schoolers when I was a younger athlete. Being able to be in that position for other younger kids has been a highlight for me," said Rochford.

Rochford is competing in her final sport this spring – and perhaps her best – as track fans across this portion of the state are witnessing one of Iowa's marquee prep athletes make one final turn around the oval.

It's not a goodbye quite yet for Rochford, but a final chapter will be written soon to the ending of a book that has been a remarkable read.

Rochford wouldn't change one second of her journey as a Chickasaw.

"I have spent many hours in the gym and it has all paid off. I have gotten to play with and against all of the top players in the state and nation," said Rochford.

"Being dedicated and spending numerous hours working to get better has taken away from getting to do many things, but I wouldn't have traded it for anything."

2023 Chickasaw Women's Pool Tournament winners

The Chickasaw Women's Pool League wrapped up its season with its annual tournament that was held on March 4.

Finishing in first through third were the teams of (clockwise, from top left) Michelle Rosonke and Sue Matthews, Cathy Knutson and Leslie Noehl and Staci Vrzak and Jess McCabe.

The final regular season games were played on March 1, and the team of Butch's II won the team title with a record of 91-71, four games ahead of the two teams from Dak's Tap that finished the season 87-75.

but Jenkins said he chose not to as there was not enough time to warm up. McShane and Beau Serie, a sophomore, were scheduled to run in the event.

"It was kind of a decision we had to make. Do we really want to go down for just a few of the events and not have a full day?" said Jenkins. "I just figured we were better off doing it just because – number one, it gets us out of practice mode. Giving the kids a chance to run against somebody new was a good thing."

New Hampton also missed out on competing in the 60-meter hurdles with senior Aiden Roberson as well as freshman Kale Venem in the long jump.

The boys distance medley of McShane, Cahoy, Huter Serie and Peyton Anderson also did not compete.

Anderson – a two-time state competitor in cross country – ran well in the 3,200 run with a time of 10:54.82. That was good for ninth place among 20 competitors. His PR from a year ago as a junior was 10:36 – so he's got out of the gates quick this spring.

"For P.J. being sick the week before and only having a few practices under his belt – he ran really good. That's a good time," said Jenkins. "He's right there."

NH junior Marshall Zein and senior Carsyn Leistikow also fared well in their throwing events. Zein placed 12th overall with a personal-best throw of 40-8.5 in the shot put.

That topped his previous best effort by over three feet (37-7). Leistikow tossed a 36-1.5 – less than six inches away from his PR of 36-7. That slotted him in 27th place.

"That was a big jump for both of them, especially Marshall," said Jenkins.

New Hampton finished 10th in the 4x400 with the squad of Roberson, freshman Dylon Schmitt, Hunter Serie and McShane. The time clipped out for the Chickasaws in that event was 3:44.58.

"I told those guys I would have been happy with a slower time than what they ran," said Jenkins. "Then when they exceeded that, it gives everybody a good feeling coming out of there."

Most indoor tracks New Hampton runs on are of the 200-meter variety – meaning the turns at Iowa State's indoor 300-meter track aren't quite as tight.

"I like that track just because it's a little bit longer and it gives you a little more room to open up and stuff," said Jenkins. "A really good time indoors should hopefully translate to even faster for outdoors – just because of turns."

New Hampton competed on Tuesday at the Wartburg Indoor and will finish off the indoor season at the NEIC meet held at Luther College in Decorah on Tuesday, March 21. The Chickasaws begin the outdoor portion of the 2023 season on Thursday, March 30 at the Co-Ed Go-Hawk Early Bird Invitational in Waverly.

Indoors to start practice

Members of the New Hampton soccer team work on a passing drill on Monday, the first day of practice not only for the Chickasaw soccer squad but also for the New Hampton golf teams.

Unfortunately, opening day wasn't exactly spring like as temperatures were in the 20s, and the news for the rest of the week isn't that great, either, as teams will probably be forced inside today (Thursday) because of rain and snow in the forecast.

A good day to compete indoors

loss is a loss, but that match, I think it showed everyone I can wrestle with anyone."

And now the three-time Iowa high school state champion is in Tulsa, Oklahoma, where the NCAA tournament kicks off its three-day run today (Thursday), and the former Chickasaw great has set his sights not on just becoming a first-time all-American but standing on top of that podium Saturday night.

Blockhus' aim is on a "natty" — a national title — and although he's heading into the tournament as an 11th seed, the Golden Gopher is heading into the tournament knowing he's never wrestled better than he is during the 2022-23 season.

"Physically, I've never been better," he said. "I'm at a good weight, the weight-cutting's perfect, my nutrition is good, and one of the things we're known for is peaking at the end of the year. ... And mentally, I'm flying right now. At this level, if you don't have supreme confidence, you're in trouble. Right now, I have the mindset that no one is better than me."

It's been a long and, at times, winding journey for Blockhus, who wrestled his first two years of high school at Crestwood before open-enrolling to New Hampton, where he compiled a gaudy 81-1 record, led the Chickasaws to two state dual titles and won two individual state championships.

After graduating, he headed down the road to the University of Northern Iowa, where he competed for two years — first as an "unattached" wrestler during a red-shirt year in which he went 18-4 and then claiming his first NCAA berth as a freshman 141-pounder for the Panthers.

That trip, however, never materialized as the national meet, which was scheduled to be held at U.S. Bank Stadium in Minneapolis, was canceled at the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic.

"I still remember hearing that it was off," he said, "and I'm not going to lie. I was pissed. To work so hard to get to nationals and then find out they were taking it away from all of us ... that was hard."

Blockhus would never don the Panther gear again, for during the offseason, he decided to transfer.

"UNI was so familiar, so close, and I just felt like I needed something different," he said. "I guess I was thinking I needed to strike out on my own, and no disrespect to UNI, but it's the best decision I ever made."

He found a home in Minneapolis, trading in the purple and gold for the maroon and gold of the Gophers.

"I think growing up, every kid in Iowa wants to wrestle in the Big 10," he said of the nation's premier wrestling conference, "and I wanted to wrestle the best of the best."

He went 9-8 in his first year at Minnesota but ended the 2020-21 season at the national tournament, going 1-2. A year ago, he upped his record to 17-15 and once again qualified for the national tournament and repeating his 1-2 showing.

But he took off this year — opening the season with an impressive tournament title at the Bison Open in Fargo, North Dakota — and compiling a 14-4 record heading into the Big 10 tournament that was held March 4-5 in Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Seeded sixth, Blockhus opened the tournament by avenging a pair of earlier-season losses as he pinned Nebraska's Dayne Morton and defeating Northwestern's Yahya Thomas by 6-4 decision in sudden victory.

He then came up with a dominating semifinal performance — one that included more than four minutes of riding time — to beat Indiana's Graham Rooks 6-2.

That set up a finals date with Sasso, a four-time Big 10 finalist. Blockhus opened the match with a quick takedown and led 5-4 after two periods, but the Buckeye got an escape in the third period and then after Blockhus initiated the first attack in overtime with a single-leg attempt, Sasso was able to spin behind for the score.

"That's the thing about wrestling here, as compared to high school," Blockhus said. "That's a takedown every single time I was in high school; here, I just got a tiny little out of position. If I get another shot, trust me, I'll be exactly where I need to be the next time."

Maybe the biggest question facing the former Chickasaw will come in the offseason.

Because the NCAA granted student-athletes an extra year of eligibility because of the pandemic, Blockhus can return to Minneapolis next winter. He and his parents took part in Senior Day activities earlier this year, but Blockhus, who plans on going into MMA (mixed martial arts) fighting, hasn't completely closed the door on remaining a Gopher.

He'll graduate this year with a degree in human resources management but could take post-graduate classes if he decides to keep wrestling.

"I'm still not sure," he said and added with a laugh, "but if I do come back, I'm not going to go through the senior suit again. Once is enough."

He paused for a moment and that old Michael Blockhus focus that Chickasaw fans know well came through loud and clear over the telephone line.

"Right now, all I'm thinking about is Tulsa," he said. "Everything else can wait."

FORMER CHICKASAW LOOKING FOR BREAKOUT NATIONAL TOURNEY

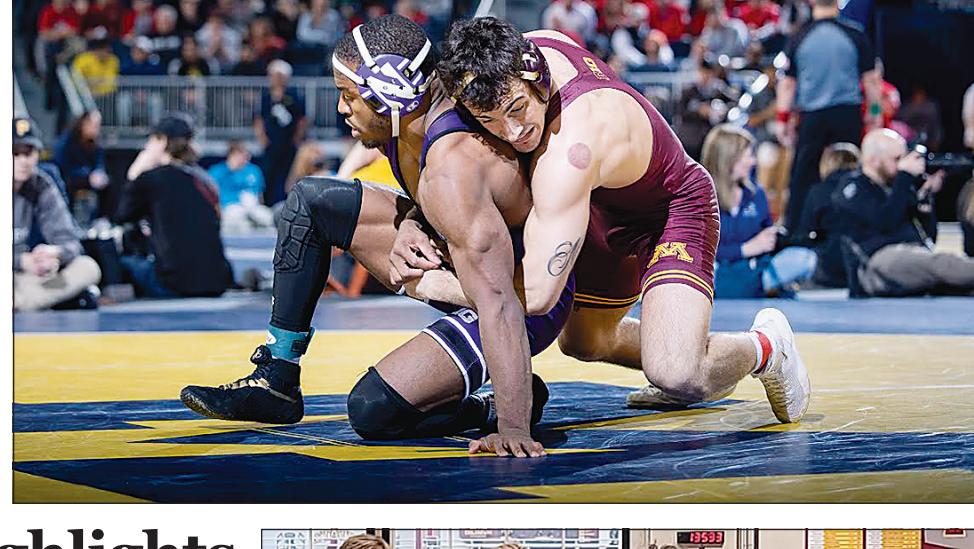

By BOB FENSKY

Michael Blockhouse walked off the Crisler Arena mat that Sunday evening feeling both excitement and disappointed.

The 2018 New Hampton High School graduate and current University of Minnesota wrestler had just given the nation's second-ranked wrestler, Ohio State's Sammy Sasso, an absolute dogfight in the 149-pound championship match at the Big 10 tournament before suffering a heartbreaking 8-6 loss in the sudden victory period, wrestling's version of overtime.

"I dominated that match," Blockhus said in a recent phone interview, "and I think Sasso knew who the better wrestler was. A

4x1 relay win highlights opener for Chickasaws

New Hampton's McShane, Cahoy, Serie brothers come up with an impressive win

By KELLY TERPSTRA
sports@nhtrib.com

Scott Jenkins and his New Hampton boys track team can blame the weather for running a little behind schedule on Friday morning.

A decent amount of snow that fell the night before delayed the Chickasaws' trip down to the Iowa Association of Track Coaches (IATC) Indoor meet held at the Lied Recreation Center on the campus of Iowa State University.

Better late than never.

New Hampton came up smelling like roses after crossing the tape first in the 4x100 relay. The group of Beau Serie, Carter Cahoy, Hunter Serie and Braden McShane placed first among 27 entrants with a sizzling time of 45.4.

Jenkins said New Hampton's best time last year in the relay was 45.75 with the foursome of juniors from a season ago — Ben Tenge, Cahoy, Hunter Serie and McShane.

"We've already bettered that time with just one indoor meet so far," said Jenkins, NH's head coach.

To give you another idea of just how impressive New Hampton's first run of the season in the sprint event was — Jenkins also mentioned that if the relay can cut a few more tenths of a second off their winning time, a Drake Relays spot may be in the cards.

"It puts us in a better frame of mind, for sure," said Jenkins.

While New Hampton didn't lead on the final 4x100 exchange of the baton on the 300-meter track, McShane's anchor leg tracked down the Chickasaws' first blue-ribbon win of the year.

"Braden ended up running another guy down to get first," said Jenkins. "They all looked really good."

Because of the inclement weather that blanketed a large portion of Iowa last Thursday, the Chickasaws did not take off for the two-plus hour trip to Ames until 8:30 a.m. That meant New Hampton was going to miss the 9 a.m. start for all 1A and 2A girls/boys events.

Jenkins said his squad arrived shortly after 10:30 a.m. — right before the start of the 60-meter dash. New Hampton could have run in that event,

Chickasaw senior caps stellar career with all-state nod

Iowa Print Writers Association puts Rochford on its Class 3A first team highly doubtful an answer will be relayed in advance.

But time will tell a story, as it did this past winter when Rochford put a cap on a Chickasaw basketball career that is unparalleled at NHHS in the 5-on-5 game.

If Carlee Rochford were a painter — imagine the colors of expression that would cover the canvas.

As most accomplished artists will tell you, the hues appearing on their palette are diverse and meaningful — creating a portrait or drawing that best exemplifies their shared experience as a whole.

There's just one final brush-stroke left before Rochford's easel will be folded up and the final print of her work will be preserved for generations to come.

Then her legacy at New Hampton High School will be complete — at least athletically.

Only the future knows exactly what that illustration or sketch will look like — and it's Michael Blockhus walked off the Crisler Arena mat that Sunday evening feeling both excitement and disappointed.

The 2018 New Hampton High School graduate and current University of Minnesota wrestler had just given the nation's second-ranked wrestler, Ohio State's Sammy Sasso, an absolute dogfight in the 149-pound championship match at the Big 10 tournament before suffering a heartbreaking 8-6 loss in the sudden victory period, wrestling's version of overtime.

"I dominated that match," Blockhus said in a recent phone interview, "and I think Sasso knew who the better wrestler was. A

4x1 relay win highlights opener for Chickasaws

New Hampton's McShane, Cahoy, Serie brothers come up with an impressive win

By KELLY TERPSTRA

Scott Jenkins and his New Hampton boys track team can blame the weather for running a little behind schedule on Friday morning.

A decent amount of snow that fell the night before delayed the Chickasaws' trip down to the Iowa Association of Track Coaches (IATC) Indoor meet held at the Lied Recreation Center on the campus of Iowa State University.

Better late than never.

New Hampton came up smelling like roses after crossing the tape first in the 4x100 relay. The group of Beau Serie, Carter Cahoy, Hunter Serie and Braden McShane placed first among 27 entrants with a sizzling time of 45.4.

Jenkins said New Hampton's best time last year in the relay was 45.75 with the foursome of juniors from a season ago — Ben Tenge, Cahoy, Hunter Serie and McShane.

"We've already bettered that time with just one indoor meet so far," said Jenkins, NH's head coach.

To give you another idea of just how impressive New Hampton's first run of the season in the sprint event was — Jenkins also mentioned that if the relay can cut a few more tenths of a second off their winning time, a Drake Relays spot may be in the cards.

"It puts us in a better frame of mind, for sure," said Jenkins.

While New Hampton didn't lead on the final 4x100 exchange of the baton on the 300-meter track, McShane's anchor leg tracked down the Chickasaws' first blue-ribbon win of the year.

"Braden ended up running another guy down to get first," said Jenkins. "They all looked really good."

Because of the inclement weather that blanketed a large portion of Iowa last Thursday, the Chickasaws did not take off for the two-plus hour trip to Ames until 8:30 a.m. That meant New Hampton was going to miss the 9 a.m. start for all 1A and 2A girls/boys events.

Jenkins said his squad arrived shortly after 10:30 a.m. — right before the start of the 60-meter dash. New Hampton could have run in that event,

A message to our readers...

It's About Freedom, Transparency and Your Right To Know

Members of the Iowa Legislature are wondering if public notices published in newspapers remain relevant and necessary.

The Legislature is proposing a bill that removes a major component of government transparency. This legislation would require legal notices to only be posted on a website controlled by the very government legal notices are designed to oversee.

This is the wrong move today, tomorrow and for the future. Government transparency is more important than ever. In truth it is critical.

While the Tribune and other Iowa newspapers have an economic interest in seeing that the public notice publishing requirement remains, the issue goes far beyond a few dollars. Maintaining the legal requirement is crucial for ensuring accountability and making important information accessible to all members of the public. It strikes at the heart of truth. Government workings should never be hidden.

While many people now browse digital platforms for information – including nhtribune.news – not everyone has access to the internet or the technological know-how to navigate online platforms. And the staggering amount of information available online, representing every viewpoint, degree of accuracy, hidden agendas and motivations from every philosophy and side of the political spectrum, makes it more and more likely public notices posted online would be lost among the chaff. Worse, they may be vulnerable to manipulation.

The basis for public notices published in newspapers remains as important as ever:

- Requiring an independent, third-party to publish the notices in accordance with the law helps prevent government officials from hiding information they prefer the public not to see. The government cannot be in charge of holding itself responsible. A public notice must be published in a forum independent of the government. As an independent and neutral third party, a newspaper has an economic and civic interest in ensuring that the notice delivery requirements are followed.

- Publishing the notice in a newspaper ensures that the information is widely accessible to the public. Unlike social media or other online platforms, newspapers are trusted sources of information that are available to everyone, regardless of whether or not they have access to the internet or social media accounts. This helps to ensure that all members of the public have an equal opportunity to be informed and involved in government decision-making.

- A public notice must be archived in a secure and publicly available format. Newspapers have always fulfilled this requirement because a public notice published in a newspaper is already archived and accessible. This is particularly important for notices that contain information about government decisions and actions that impact individuals and communities for years to come. Requiring governmental bodies to publish legal notices in newspapers ensures that this information is always accessible.

- The public must be able to verify that a legal notice is not altered after being published. In a newspaper notice, an affidavit is provided by the publisher, which can be used in an evidentiary proceeding to demonstrate that a true copy was published as well as the exact wording that was used. Legal notices published in newspapers are subject to public scrutiny and can be easily monitored by journalists or concerned citizens. This guarantees that governmental bodies are held accountable and acting in the best interests of their constituents.

- Community newspapers have established relationships with readers and have a deep understanding of the issues and concerns that matter most to them. When public notices appear in newspapers, government bodies can tap into these relationships. Legislators must pledge that their messages are being heard by those people who are most impacted by their decisions.

- Newspapers have a long history of serving as watchdogs for their communities, holding local officials accountable and shining light on issues that might otherwise go unnoticed. By requiring government bodies to publish public notices in newspapers, we are ensuring that these important watchdog functions are preserved and that the public has access to information that might otherwise be hidden from view.

- Newspaper public notices are already online at iowanotices.org, a site run by newspapers at no cost to government or taxpayers. It is available for those who prefer accessing an electronic version.

There may be parts of the country where newspaper readership is receding, but not in Iowa, and especially not in community newspapers like the Tribune. Every month 84% of Iowa adults read local print or digital newspapers.

And newspaper readers are more engaged in their community. Newspapers reach 93% of Iowans that report, "I feel that I have a responsibility to help share the future of my community."

It is true that newspapers charge a nominal fee, set by Iowa law, for publishing legal notices. This is a very small price for freedom. All Iowans should demand more scrutiny of government affairs, never less.

We believe that requiring governmental bodies to continue publishing legal notices in newspapers is crucial for ensuring transparency, accountability and accessibility in government decision-making. Newspapers – especially Iowa newspapers – remain a trusted source of information that is widely accessible and easily searchable.

As a newspaper, we strongly urge Iowa's representatives and senators to vote "no" on this short-sighted bill.

As should all Iowans.
