Nashua's party almost here!

City gearing up for big weekend with Water Over the Dam Days, Civil War Re-enactment

BY BOB FENSKE
Of the Reporter

Nashua Park Board President Nate Sinnwell looked at the forecast Thursday morning and couldn't help but laugh at the plethora of rain chances that Nashua has today and Saturday.

"It's perfect," he said with a laugh, "because we want to get it all out of its system."

As far as Sinnwell and the Water

Over the Dam Days Committee is concerned, the mantra for this weekend is "let it rain."

Next week, though, would be a perfect time for a dry spell because Water Over the Dam Days kicks off its four-day run next Thursday. And just once, Sinnwell and the Park Board want a worry-free weather weekend for Nashua's annual party.

"I told you a couple of weeks ago that we've had some kind of rain event every Water Over the Dam Days since the Park Board took over the celebration and Mother Nature owes us one," Sinnwell said. "And I haven't changed my mind. So hopefully, we get the rain out of the way now and have nothing but blue skies next week."

Water Over the Dam Days officials aren't the only ones hoping for good weather, for next Saturday and Sunday, June 29-30, the Old Bradford Pioneer Village Museum will hold its annual Civil War

Reenactment at the park located just to the east of Nashua.

Sinnwell said, save for a few final details, the Park Board is ready for Water Over the Dam Days, although officials did cancel the annual family-friendly triathlon that was set for next Friday because of a low number of registrations.

Water Over the Dam Days great way to show off Nashua

WODD: FROM 1

"It's a little disappointing, but we're hoping it's just a one-year deal and we can do a little better advertising and get more people involved for next year," he said. "Everything else, save for a few little details, are all set. It's time to have our party."

The celebration will begin on Thursday evening with a host of events including a youth golf tournament, the crowning of Water Over the Dam Days royalty — a princess, a prince and a queen — a hot dog eating contest and live music from the Mitch Laue Band.

Sinnwell did point out that after a number of years in which Water Over the Dam Days held its Thursday's activities downtown, those events will be held at Cedar View Park this year.

And he added that the committee is still hoping more candidates will sign up at a chance to represent the town as Water Over the Dam Days royalty.

Friday's events begin with a four-person best-shot golf tournament scheduled to start at 9 a.m. at the Nashua Town and Country Club and kick into high gear later that afternoon with a "Foam Blaster Party," kids inflatables and more live music by the band Sushi Roll, as well as a bonfire, DJ and games designed for high school and middle school students.

And then comes Saturday's schedule that includes activities throughout the day, including the 10:30 a.m. Water Over the Dam Days Parade that will be led by Grand Marshals Dave and Judy Bucknell.

Numerous kids activities, tournaments and live music will be found in Cedar View Park throughout the day as Ritchie Lee and the Fabulous 50s play the Baldwin Bandshell stage from noon to 2:30 p.m.; Dueling Pianos will play from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. and the band Triple Threat will play from 8 to midnight, with a break for the fireworks that will be shot off over the lake around 10.

And at least for a while, Sunday won't be a day of rest for the celebration as a community breakfast that will benefit Nashua Area EMS will be held from 8 to 11:30 a.m. and a non-denominational church service will be held at 10 a.m.

Then it can rain.

Seriously, Sinnwell pointed out that one of the things he loves about Water Over the Dam Days is the fact that the celebration benefits so many local organizations.

"This isn't just a Park Board thing," he said. "You have the EMS breakfast, the figure-eight races out at the fairgrounds, the public library book sale, the golf course events, the reenactment out at Old Bradford ... it's just a great way to celebrate our town and help out some great organizations."

And those who come to the celebration either hungry or thirsty or both won't leave so.

There's a free-will donation meal that will benefit the 2026 grades 5-6 trip to Gettysburg and Washington D.C. on Thursday, Food Truck Friday, the Chickasaw County Cattlemen's Association meal on Saturday, the breakfast on Sunday and, of course, the beer tent that will also feature five craft beers from Tellurian Brewing.

"The committee members, we get a lot of exercise in," Sinnwell said, "and that's a good thing; otherwise we'd put on some pounds during Water Over the Dam Days."

Still, the work is worth it, the Park Board president said.

"There's always a moment during the weekend, where I'll just look out over the park and see so many people — of all ages, too — realizing what a great place we have here," Sinnwell said, "and that, for me, is what makes Water Over the Dam Days special every single year."

The annual Civil War Reenactment, meanwhile, will begin at 7 a.m. on Saturday, June 29 and continue through 3 p.m. on Sunday at Old Bradford.

Admission to the two-day event is just $5, and "battles" between Union and Confederate soldiers will be fought at 3 p.m. on Saturday and 1 p.m. on Sunday.

But the event also includes numerous demonstrations throughout the weekend, and lunch will be served on the grounds both days.

Water Over the Dam Days was love at first sight

Saturday, June 26, 2010, dawned hot and muggy, but the Fenske Boys — the two younger ones, at least — awoke early. Free food and drink awaited them ... after they did a little work that is.

Two days before, the Nashua Reporter's new owner, Dave Stanley, had published his first edition of the paper, and he had printed hundreds of extra copies that he wanted to hand out to those along the parade route at Water Over the Dam Days.

But with yours truly covering the parade and Dave driving the Reporter "float," he needed some paperboys.

"You think Josh and Noah and maybe one of their friends would want to do it if I offered them all the food and drink they wanted after the parade?"

Absolutely, I told him, "but are you sure you don't want to put a limit on that food and drink?"

I went home and told the boys the plan, and they were all in. They recruited one of their newfound friends — we had moved to Chickasaw County six months before — and Josh said Jake Zwanziger came with a bonus.

"A bonus?"

"Yeah, his dad's from Nashua. He was a Husky or a Bulldog or something like that."

To set the record straight, Bruce Zwanziger was a Bulldog, a member of Nashua's 1985 state championship basketball team and a 1986 grad of what was then just of' Nashua High.

Anywho, the day arrived, I packed the boys into the car and gave them the "be respectful and nice talk" all the way to Nashua, where we met up with Jake.

Josh and Jake had just finished the fourth grade while Noah was a year behind. We found Dave, who had those hundreds of copies of the Reporter — I remember the front page like it was yesterday, for the centerpiece story was on Kim Walk, who led the planning for Nashua's big celebration for a number of years — sitting in the back of his pickup.

He went through the ground rules. Grab papers, hand them out and tell people we were happy to be there.

"We are happy to be here, Dave," Noah said, "because we can't wait for the food."

I'll say this for those boys — they worked the crowd. By the time the parade ended, hundreds of Reporters had been distributed.

It was time for Dave to pay up.

Twenty minutes later, my phone vibrated with a text.

"Boys are by City Hall, heading your way ... and I'm broke."

Later that day, we returned to Nashua so I could shoot some photos of the

Waterhawks Ski Team. The boys ran all over the park while I snapped pictures and talked to folks about one of the coolest town celebrations I had ever covered.

A lot has changed since 2010. Josh is a teacher and coach at Decorah High School. Jake is in business in Des Moines. Noah recently completed his undergraduate degree at Southern Illinois University.

They're not kids anymore, and Dave Stanley, who left our newspaper eight years ago, wouldn't dream of offering them free food and drink anymore.

That would be, as he told me a couple of years ago, "absolute insanity."

But one thing hasn't changed over the past 14 years.

I still get excited about Water Over the Dam Days.

Back then it was because it was the start of a new adventure — a new paper, a new challenge, a new town. You know, all that jazz.

I've covered virtually every Water Over the Dam Days since. I missed out in 2018, when Noah took his "official visit" to the University of Iowa, and God bless the Hawkeyes, but who schedules an official visit at the same time as Water Over the Dam Days.

I watched Kim Walk and her family turn over the festival planning and organizing to Tori Ulrichs and her family, who turned over the festival to the Nashua Park Board.

I watched events like the Mud Run, the basketball shooting contest, the parade, the volleyball tournament, the horseshoes tournament, the ... well, you get the idea.

I've seen some great bands and some even better dancers on the "Water Over the Dam Days dance floor."

I've seen fireworks, church services and a park filled with people of all ages having, at least for a weekend, the times of their lives.

In a couple of years, I will celebrate 40 years in the newspaper business, and I've covered a ton of town celebrations during my career.

For a summer at the Mason City Globe Gazette in the 1990s, my entire job was covering fairs and festivals.

I was Festival Boy.

So I know a thing or two about celebrations; some could say I'm even an expert.

Nashua's is one of the best.

I can't give you a definitive reason, but I am as sure about making that statement as I am that the sun rises in the east in the morning.

As I drove through Cedar View Park this afternoon, it was relatively quiet. Oh, the campground was filling up and there was a kid or two using the splash pad, but compared to what it will be like a week from Saturday — God and Mother Nature willing — it was filled with the sounds of silence.

It hit me that's what I love the most about Water Over the Dam Days. Few, if any, celebrations I've covered for almost 40 years have given me as many cool conversations and the chance to meet so many great people.

Maybe, that's the secret of a festival that for me was love at first sight.

Since 2010, it's always been about the people.

The Charles City Municipal Band plays a concert Sunday night under the direction of Scott Stroud, the director of bands at Nashua-Plainfield Schools.

Sunday's concert featured an eclectic collection of songs including old standards, marches, opera and a selection from the musical "Les Misérables."

The band's next concert is scheduled to be held on July 4, beginning at 7:30 p.m. as the band will perform near the Charles City Library above the bank of the Cedar River.

Busy campground and a scene we haven't seen in a while

One might think it's already the weekend late Thursday afternoon, at least if they were driving around Cedar View Park, where the Nashua Park Board's campground was almost full, while a little down river, in a scene we haven't taken in for the past couple of years, water rushes over the dam, thanks to heavy rains to the north of Nashua earlier this week.

Ambulance living quarters comes in under budget

By BOB FENSKA

editor@nhtrib.com

After the Chickasaw County Board of Supervisors unanimously approved the final payment for the remodeling of the Chickasaw Country EMS ambulance station Monday morning, Supervisor Steve Breitbach pointed out that the county hit a "daily double."

The project came in not only under budget but was completed — or at least all but completed — a month ahead of schedule.

"Doesn't happen very often; you might want to mark it down," said Chuck Stanton, who served as the general contractor for the project. "It was a fun little project, got everybody local involved and I think we worked really well together."

Stanton told supervisors that the final cost of the project was $160,753, about $8,400 under budget and he said that EMS crew members were able to move into the building's new living quarters 30 days before originally expected.

"Getting in early, you saved one month's rent," he said, "so we probably saved about 10 grand."

Stanton went on to add that there were a few items of the project that still needed to be completed, "a couple of cameras to hook up, we probably all have a little thing here or there to get done but over the next 25, 30 days, we'll make sure everything's done, everyone's happy."

Stanton said the reduced cost came about for a variety of reasons, including EMS personnel doing the painting, having blinds purchased by the EMS Department and reduced flooring costs.

Country Cabinetry, Stanton Electric, Mic's Plumbing and Heating and TS Iowa were the contractors who worked on the project that will allow paramedics, EMTs and drivers to be located in the same building as the service's ambulances. Since beginning service on Jan. 1, 2023, EMS personnel on the main crew have been housed at rental properties — first a house on South Walnut Avenue and then in the apartment building located across the street from Fareway.

Board members earlier this year voted to cover the remodeling costs with $64,000 from the county's America Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) funds. The remainder of the cost, supervisors agreed, would be paid for by the EMS Department's fund that includes, an addition to revenue generated from calls, money provided by the county and the six cities — New Hampton, Bassett, Fredericksburg, Ionia, Lawler and North Washington — that signed 28E agreements with the county-owned entity to provide ambulance service.

While the final payment of the remodeling project sailed through easily Monday, board members once again held off on approving a new policy for the ambulance service that could allow those activated to main crew status to remain in their homes.

Earlier this month, Chickasaw County EMS Director Joel Knutson, who was not at Monday's meeting, proposed to allow "on-call" crew members who are bumped up to main crew status when a call is being taken to remain in their homes.

homes at a reduced rate of pay if they can continue to respond to the station within five minutes of a call.

Those who are on the "on-call" crew must be able to go on to "main crew" status within 30 minutes of being called.

But supervisors still had questions about the wording of the policy and wanted to hold off on approving the policy change until they could visit with the EMS director.

City attorney: Not owning building will help VFW to reach out to young vets funds that are available, to reach out to young vets and support their families without putting it on an insurance payment."

The VFW Post 6782 in Nashua's president is Bill Schmidt — who was the keynote speaker at this year's Memorial Day ceremony in Nashua.

The resolution that was passed by all three Council members in attendance states the property will be used and maintained as a Nashua Veterans Hall, with grantor and all other U.S. military veterans associations and auxiliaries in the city are entitled to use the building for meetings and events at no charge and given priority to scheduling. The City shall prohibit the removal of photographs and other memorabilia of the post currently attached to the building.

"It would be free for them to use, but we can rent it to others," said Nashua City Clerk John Ott. "All costs would be assumed by the city."

Skilton said the local VFW is in sound enough financial shape to pay for its utilities (water, electric, etc.)

"I'll go back to the club and say, although not required, as long as we're able to make the utilities — to pay them," said Skilton.

The VFW organization will celebrate its 125th anniversary this coming September and was established back in 1899 following the Spanish-American War. The headquarters of the VFW are located in Kansas City, Mo.

The job posting to fill the Water/Wastewater Superintendent's position that could be vacated after June 30 of this month was extended until July 3 and the Council decided to form a hiring committee that includes Kelleher, Council members Peggy Hall and Dan Zwanziger, as well as city employees Zade McCall and Shea Gerber.

There have been ongoing talks between the city and Ion Environmental Solutions — a water/wastewater company based out of Wichita, Kan. Ion announced last April it doesn't plan on renewing its contract with the city.

Chad McCleary, water/waste-water superintendent from Ion, said he would work with the city during the transition. The current contract with Ion runs out on June 30 of this year.

Brian Glasgow, another water/wastewater superintendent with Ion, said on Monday there could be a possibility that Ion stays on in a limited capacity.

"If there's somebody around here that can do the daily stuff, they may still let us stay on to sign paperwork or for emergencies to come one day a week," said Glasgow. "They just want somebody to have some sort of certification that can be there on a daily basis is the main thing."

Nashua Mayor Hal Kelleher relayed to the public the Nashua Area EMS monthly report.

He said there have been 146 calls for service as of this past Monday since the local ambulance service started up on July 1, 2023.

Hall and fellow Council member Jake Johnson were not present at the meeting.

The next scheduled Nashua City Council meeting will take place on Monday, July 1.

"Where Quality Prevails"

The 'ball stops bouncing' for longtime Chickasaw County lawyers

KENNEDYS: FROM 1

School in 1967, Kevin attended Notre Dame and received his undergraduate degree before heading to the University of Iowa Law School.

He did a lot of income tax work back in those early years, but like his brother, he found that there's no such thing as a specialized small-town lawyer.

"The small-town law practice you get enough variety," Kevin said. "You're not specialized. You know a little bit about a lot of things, and that keeps the job a little more interesting."

"You tend to end up with some kind of personal relationship with a share of the clients, not all of them. It makes the job most of the time a pretty good job."

They also remember the days when there was no such thing as the Public Defender's Office; instead, local lawyers handled those cases.

"If you were a lawyer you were expected to take your share of court-appointed cases," Michael said. "Once in a while there would be some ugly cases. The judge would call you in and say this is going to be an ugly one but you have to take it. I never defended a first-degree murder case, but I can't tell you what else I haven't defended."

For 50 years, they have worked together ... and played together, too.

For four years, they called Chickasaw sporting events on the radio and enjoyed working together even though they knew their harshest critic, their mother, was listening.

"She let us know exactly what we did right and what we did wrong," Kevin said with a laugh, "especially the wrong part."

The Kennedy brothers have been active in New Hampton. Micheal had that four-year stint in the Iowa Legislature and has been a longtime advocate for the New Hampton Economic Development Corp. Kevin served as the chairman of the Library Board for a decade and was New Hampton's city

He found his footing in the law when he was hired to represent school districts when collective bargaining came into play, but he found variety is a fact of life for small-town lawyers.

Six years after Michael returned to his hometown, Kevin did the same. After graduating from New Hampton High attorney for more than 32 years. He also coached some hellacious basketball teams at St. Joseph Community School.

"He had, in my opinion, a big part in that state championship team," Michael said, "because he coached those kids at St. Joe's."

Weekdays, weeknights, hell, spent at the law office on Main Street. Fifty years of working together, though, hasn't caused any rifts or tension between the two.

"It's really been amazing," Michael said.

"It's been a pretty easy ride," Kevin said. "When you're working with someone you don't have any issues with, it's been good, really good."

They have been through a lot together, but if anyone doubts how they feel about each other, consider this: When Michael talks about Kevin's three children — Austin, Abbie and Dan — he beams with pride. Ditto for Kevin when he talks about Michael's daughter, Cara.

And on July 1, the law partnership will finally come to a close.

"You know, to use a basketball analogy," Kevin said, "the ball has to stop bouncing sometime."

For a moment, the library at their law office grew quiet and then Michael looked up and smiled.

"And for us, that's July 1."

Example No. 2?

That would be N-P's contest at Central Springs (12-9, 9-3) on Monday in a twinbill that saw the Huskies lose 12-7 in the nightcap. The Panthers won the opener, 15-2, but it was N-P's fight and determination that had a perennial power — Central Springs finished third last year at state — on the ropes and Stastny-Hall smiling.

N-P played at Osage on Thursday night and after that just six games remain in the regular season.

"That's the first time we've played seven innings with them for years. We had a good opportunity to beat them," said the N-P head coach about the second game of the doubleheader Monday night at Central Springs.

Janesville defeated N-P, 9-3, last week Thursday. Eighth-grader Callie Jensen struck out eight over her six innings of work and senior Jalynn Pratt and sophomore Kami Hannemann each doubled.

The host Chickasaws blitzed N-P, 13-3, in the morning slate of games at the NH Invite. Denver bounced N-P, 12-0, in the Huskies' second game.

"The Denver game we didn't really show up," said Stastny-Hall.

N-P was 13-13 in stolen bases (three by Pratt, two each by Nevaeh Bloker, Abi Schmitt, Hannemann and Madison Wahl) versus TV.

That's a definite bright spot.

"In the Turkey Valley game we just had two bad innings where we let them back in the game. We just gotta get base-runners scored when they're on base. We're seeing great things. Our base running is starting to improve, our errors are starting to decrease. Our bats are becoming extremely hot," said Stastny-Hall.

Bloker, Schmitt, Pratt, Wahl and junior Kristen Lee also tallied two hits apiece versus TV. Schmitt scored four runs and Pratt crossed home plate three times.

N-P just needs to sustain this improvement it's been able to mount in a season that is quickly reaching its end.

"It's so much about consistency. We can hang with some of the big teams — like New Hampton, like Central Springs. We could be a thorn in somebody's side right now," said Stastny-Hall.

N-P played at Osage on Thursday night and after that just six games remain in the regular season.

Stastny-Hall talked about what she preaches to her girls after things don't go their way and deficits on the scoreboard seem insurmountable to overcome.

"First — if they have an error — they need to flush it," said Stastny-Hall. "They can't keep that in the back of their mind because it's going to continue to happen. As soon as something bad happens on the field they need to clear their head, come back — refocus, regroup. The same thing when we drop a pop fly — we're going to get the next one. We can't constantly think that we're going to always fail."

Bloker leads N-P in hits (19) while Hannemann is the Huskies' biggest run producer with 16 RBI. Pratt has scored the team's most runs with 12.

The N-P pitching staff's ERAs are inflated, but that can come with the territory when Stastny-Hall's arms are still trying to gain valuable experience inside the pitcher's circle.

"Our biggest thing is we're still working on the pitching," said Stastny-Hall. "We play a lot of games in a row, so their arms hurt. We're dealing with that right now. We had a doubleheader Monday night — everyone's sore."

Jensen leads the Huskies with 63 strikeouts and is 2-6 on the year.

Another facet of N-P's game — communication — is also making strides.

"The talking on the field is getting better. It's slow, but it's coming together," said Stastny-

Hall.

N-P is now 3-19 overall and 2-9 in the conference.

Business of the Mayor:

Mayor Kelleher wanted to thank the city workers for all their hard work. He also wanted to have the council consider tearing down 223 Main St. to eliminate the hazard, but not removing it at this time. City Clerk Ott will look into whether or not this is feasible. He will check with the regulatory agencies on what steps need to be followed in order to do that.

City Clerk Ott reviewed the May financial reports and informed the council that the bank reconciliation for May is complete and ready for council review. He reviewed the results of the FY'22 Annual Exam and informed the council that it is available for review. He reminded the council that he will be gone from June 19th - 21st for training and Deputy Clerk Berends will be gone June 24th-27th for training as well.

Zenda Vikturek presented the monthly report for the Nashua Area EMS. Since the ambulance went into service on July 1, 2023 they have responded to 146 calls. She also provided scheduling policy for the council to review.

McCall Street Superintendent provided the monthly Streets Report. He informed the council that all road patches are complete; Hinders Tree Service has been cutting trees down since the storm on May 21st; the road ditch project on Charles City Road is completed and he let the council know that the street sweeper is broken down.

Heather Hackman Library Director presented the monthly library report for the council and reviewed the upcoming summer programs. City Clerk Ott noted that there was a nice article about Heather and the programs she puts together in the paper.

The newest addition to Chickasaw County's Airport Lake Park is a handicap accessible dock (above) that has proven to be a huge hit while sometimes, Mother Nature provides reason enough to be outdoors as these wildflowers (right) at Chickasaw Park show.

New dock just one more reason to get 'outdoorsy'

BY BOB FENSKY
Of the Reporter

One of Chickasaw County Conservation Board Director Chad Humpal's goals for years was to get a dock placed at Airport Lake Park.

"We needed one, it had been a better part of 10 years without one," he said, "so one, there was a need."

Two?

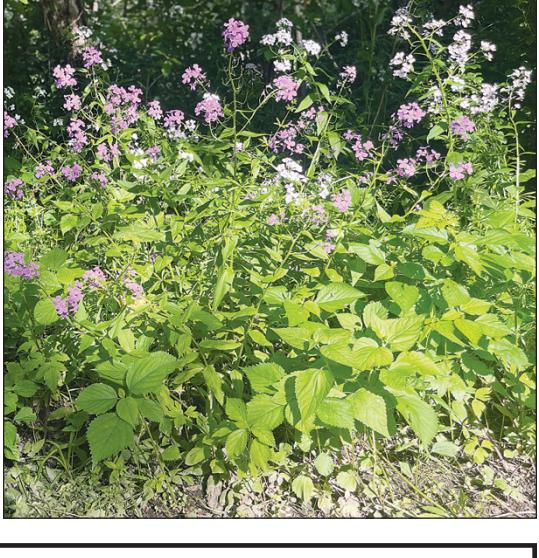

"Anything to get people more outdoorsy," Humpal said with a laugh, "but in all seriousness, it was another way to add to the amenities to the park out there. It's pretty amazing how much it's getting used. Every time I get out there, people are using it and it's not just kids either."

And there's a third reason Humpal wanted the dock. It's handicap accessible.

"That was important because we wanted all members of a family to be able to use it," he said. "Anytime we can make something handicap accessible,

Huskies play well down the stretch in key TIC East tilt

BASEBALL: FROM 12

Beland's ERA jumped up to 1.22 in 23 innings pitched.

Miller said N-P had been struggling at the plate prior to the final installment of the St. Ansgar home-and-away regular season series. N-P will have played four games in four days after traveling to Osage on Thursday night.

"I think we've been almost seeing too many pitches and working too deep into counts and taking too many strikes," said Miller. "We just needed to start swinging. They let it rip. It was fun to see."

N-P's Matthew Malven started out the fifth with a lead-off single, followed by senior Hayden Munn's single past second to start the Huskies' rally. Then Kalainoff laid into the first pitch he saw from Beland and promptly deposited into the cornfield in left for his first homer of the season.

In the seventh — with Schwiesow throwing darts — Malven led off the frame with a walk and Munn connected on the first pitch he saw and roped it down the left field line for a single. Up stepped Franzen and he shot a Schwiesow pitch to right-center field for his second double of the game. That made it 5-4, Saints. Glaser came up next and bounced a grounder to short that ate up the Saints' shortstop and that scored Malven, but Franzen got caught in a rundown after slipping past third as he rounded the base. The Saints would tag Franzen for the final out of the frame.

"Basically the third baseman was blocking his view. There was no argument on an interference. I think he thought there was going to be a throw. Our field's a little bit slick right now, so when he planted to come back — it is what it is," said Miller.

Glaser was admirable on the mound as he worked just over seven innings and gave way to Kalainoff after two Saints' runners reached base with one out in the eighth.

Glaser — who lost to St. Ansgar in his other start against the Saints — struck out five and walked just one. The junior ace on the staff for Miller was the hard-luck loser against Newman in the second head-to-head matchup with the Knights. He also faced the Knights in the first meeting with the Huskies, a 15-5 rout, but a game that saw Glaser only give up two earned runs in just under four innings of work.

"Shout out to Dawson Glaser for another fantastic performance," said Miller. "He's been unreal this year and the record doesn't indicate it. He took 'em to extra innings again today. It could be special when it comes to district time."

Last Thursday N-P edged Janesville on the road, 2-1.

"It was a great defensive performance all-around. All nine guys had either a putout or an assist, which is unbelievable," said Miller. "Tucker Franzen was fantastic on the mound. Nic Brase shut it down in relief. If we got two guys that are pounding the zone and on — we're going to be in the ball game, win or lose."

Central Springs turned back N-P, 8-3 on Monday and Aplington-Parkersburg topped the Huskies, 11-1, on Tuesday. Both games were on the road and the Huskies committed five errors in the loss to Central Springs.

"It was kind of a wonky deal. It happens," said Miller about the A-P loss. "We're not too concerned about that. If we're on our 'A' game we can compete with anybody."

Could N-P get a rematch with the Saints in the postseason once the district pairings are released?

That could very well be the case.

N-P (8-8, 6-6) stunned the Saints two summers ago in a district matchup by scoring a run in the bottom of the seventh to win, 4-3.

"When we played 'em the first time — there was a line shot to the first baseman with one out. Kolbie Vance hit it — it was just a heat missile. First baseman caught it — double play. If that would have been four more feet to the right or left — we win that baseball game. That's what the breaks of the game are," said Miller about N-P's first loss to St. Ansgar in 2024.

Conservation Board director appreciates that younger generations are using county parks that's a win in my mind. We wanted something outdoorsy — that's what we do — that everyone can use."

Humpal said he's appreciative of the support the dock received; in fact, virtually the entire cost of the modular dock was covered by grants and donations.

The Conservation Board received a $10,000 grant from the Chickasaw County Community Foundation, a $5,000 award from the New Hampton Hotel/Motel Tax Committee and a $2,000 donation from First Citizens Bank.

"With the way budgets are, I'm not sure we could have done this without people willing to step up and help us," Humpal said. "We can't thank those groups enough for supporting this."

And there's one more advantage to the dock.

"Any modular dock like that makes it easy to take it apart, to add to it, to change it," he said. "Right now, we love it, but the great thing is we have options down the road that we can do, too."

The dock is just one reason county parks are experiencing a boom of sorts these days.

Park usage, Humpal said, "is way up." The board's campgrounds, when Mother Nature cooperates, are close to full. And what pleases the Conservation Board director the most is that those taking advantage of the parks come from all age groups.

"What's been great to see is we're seeing especially younger generations embracing the outdoors," he said. "They're coming back to the outdoors, and that's the business we're in. They're getting out to hike, bike, kayak, fish, and honestly we don't care what they're doing, as long as they are doing something outdoors."

He said camping, especially at the Airport Lake Park located just northwest of New Hampton, has been strong so far this season. All 11 of the campground's seasonal campsites have been filled, and the 10 extended stay spots are being heavily used as well.

The Conservation Board's Split Rock Campground located near Fredericksburg has seen a drop in usage but

Humpal said he attributes most of that to the rainy start to the camping season.

"I think we'll be back to full speed once it dries out a little," he said. "Split Rock has been wet — really wet — and unfortunately, that's one thing we don't have a lot of control over, right? If we did, we'd be rich."

Still, he isn't about to totally chastise Mother Nature; instead, Humpal said that she provides the beauty that has seen park usage rise in recent years.

"Mother Nature is spectacular," he said, "and go out to Chickasaw, go out to any of our parks and you'll see some absolutely beautiful landscapes painted by her."

N-P gives Newman, Saints battles but fall to TIC powers

Huskies drop 3-0 game to Newman, lose in extra innings to St. Ansgar, but coach finds plenty of positives in team's play

BY KELLY TERPSTRA
Of the Reporter

The sixth-ranked St. Ansgar Saints lead the entire state in ERA.

That's all four classes on the prep baseball level in the state of Iowa just in case you're wondering.

Well, Levi Miller's Nashua-Plainfield Huskies put a dent in that earned-run average statistic – which has historically been one of the best indicators of a pitcher's worth on the hill for well over a century.

The problem with any numerical evaluation is the metric doesn't fully encapsulate the guts, determination and grit of a ball player – because Miller's Huskies have plenty of heart.

N-P put that fight and toughness on display on Wednesday night at Stan Burkle Field in a showdown with those Saints and in the process put the state on notice – because these Huskies are almost certain to be a tough out in about two weeks when the postseason rolls around.

The problem with Wednesday's night clash with one of 1A's superpowers – at least for Husky baseball fans – is N-P just can't seem to get over the hump against elite and upper-echelon squads.

Regardless, N-P and St. Ansgar sure put on a show.

N-P's rally fell short after Eli Kalainoff's three-run blast over the left field fence in the fifth inning brought the Huskies back from the brink. Miller's squad would tie it at 5-5 in the bottom of the seventh inning after senior Tucker Franzen's double and Dawson Glaser's bouncer to short forced extra innings.

But a hit batsman with the bases loaded – a pitch after Kalainoff's sweater near the black was not called – ended up being the winning run as Devin Schwiesow's Saints survived in a thrilling, instant classic.

"We saw there one and two and fell short, but again – I've said it a million times, we can compete with anybody we want to," said Miller. "It's just a matter of stringing together the hits and making the little plays."

St. Ansgar (16-2, 9-1) – who beat N-P, 2-1, in a similar contest last month – plated a run in the top of the seventh to take a 5-3 lead after a grounder wasn't fielded at shortstop.

N-P had four errors on the night and several of them had an impact on the outcome of the game.

With that said, N-P was right there at the end.

"The first time around we lost 2-1 to them and against Newman we were 3-0," said Miller. "We know we can do something special these last two weeks. If we put it together – we will."

The Huskies have lost four in a row – but played fourth-rated Mason City Newman tough in a 3-0 loss at home last Friday night at home.

Newman's Toby Kesten, a senior, pitched a one-hit shutout versus N-P. He struck out 11 and walked five.

In St. Ansgar – N-P faced senior Max Beland, who like junior Jayce Schwiesow, entered Wednesday's TIC East tilt with just one earned run surrendered all year.

Beland worked four innings and struck out nine. He didn't record an out in the fifth and gave way to Schwiesow – who encountered trouble in the seventh.

The dominating duo fanned a whopping 19 Huskies on the night. Schwiesow is now 6-0 on the year with a microscopic 0.36 ERA in almost 39 innings of work. He leads Class 1A in strikeouts with 74 and fanned 10 Huskies on Wednesday.

Offense hums as Huskies pick up 17-13 tourney win

Nashua-Plainfield picks up third softball victory in wild affair against Turkey Valley

BY KELLY TERPSTRA
Of the Reporter

It's a mindset more than anything.

Sure, there are obvious reasons why the Nashua-Plainfield softball team has suffered 19 setbacks in 22 tries this summer.

That's no secret.

But Jessica Stastny-Hall's TIC East squad is making progress – heck, the Huskies have already exceeded last year's win total of two games.

So while there are still plenty of miscues out on the diamond – there's more than enough positives taking place to remain optimistic.

Sure, there was this past Wednesday's 12-0 shutout at the hands of St. Ansgar (16-6, 7-2) – who was ranked most of this season prior to this week's latest installment of the Iowa High School Girls Athletic Union's ratings.

And a 14-1 shellacking courtesy of No. 11 Mason City Newman (22-2, 11-1) last Friday night at home won't exactly enter into the end-of-the-season highlight reel – but there's a substantial amount of silver linings in this 2024 season for the Huskies to get excited about.

"The girls are starting to see what we can become," said Stastny-Hall.

Take for instance last weekend's New Hampton Invite on Saturday where N-P raced out to a 10-0 lead over area squad Turkey Valley – only to see the Trojans storm back in the bottom of the fifth to tie the contest at 12-12. The Trojans had the winning run on third base, but Husky sophomore hurler Hannah Brahn was able to get out of the jam. Once the sixth inning rolled around, tournament organizers, along with umpires, decided to implement international rules and play just one more inning.

With a runner placed on second base to start the frame – N-P separated themselves from TV with five runs to claim a 17-13 slugfest victory.
