County won't have Comp Board

Supervisors say they will do their own 'homework' in setting elected officials' salaries

BY BOB FENSKA
Of the Reporter

Chickasaw County will forgo using its Compensation Board this year when it comes to setting salaries for the county's elected officials, thanks to a decision by the Board of Supervisors at a meeting Monday. The panels often referred to as comp boards were required under Iowa law, but in the wee hours of the 2024 Legislative session, lawmakers approved a tax bill, Senate File 2442, that included dramatic changes to compensation boards.

"I'm still not 100 percent certain that I agree with the interpretation as to how this is going to work stylistically," Chickasaw County Attorney David Launder told board members Monday, "but the bottom line is it seems clear that you need to take some action if you in fact want to utilize the Compensation Board. Whether it is automatically disbanded or not, I think is irrelevant at this point."

Under the old law, compensation boards were required to make salary recommendations for a county's elected officials to supervisors, who could then either accept them or decrease them proportionally.

The only exception was for supervisor salaries, which meant that if a board

Crops looking good but farmers still facing challenges

ISU Extension agronomist says area growers hope Mother Nature finds the right 'balance'

BY BOB FENSKA
Of the Reporter

Ask ISU Extension agronomist Terry Basol about the state of area farm fields and he'll be frank when it comes to his surprise.

"Considering what we went through to get the seeds in the field this year," he said Thursday afternoon, "I don't too many of us thought we'd be where we're at today."

And where is that?

"Pretty dang good, but you know people like me," Basol said, "we're going to tell you that we have a long way to go. ... Still, it's pretty good right now. Some of the earliest planted corn is starting to tassel ... our soybeans are flowering. We've got challenges ahead, but if you go back to the end of this winter when we were still in the middle of a pretty bad drought,

FOOD AND NUTRITION JUDGE EXCITED TO RETURN TO HER HOME COUNTY FOR ANNUAL 4-H AND FFA ACHIEVEMENT SHOW

Michelle Kalinay laughed Tuesday afternoon when she was asked if she could remember how she felt the first time she had a project judged at the Chickasaw County 4-H and FFA Achievement Show that is held each year at the Big 4 Fairgrounds in Nashua.

"I'm old and that was so long ago, I honestly don't remember," she said, "but I'm sure I was a little nervous, especially that first time."

She was less nervous on Tuesday when the North Washington native returned to Chickasaw County to serve as a food and nutrition judge during the Achievement Show's kickoff event — the Static Show in which 4-Hers from around the county showed off their food, photographs, wood projects and more.

And also excited.

The Static Show draws a big crowd of 4-H and FFA members presenting their non-livestock projects to judges from around the state.

Achievement Show judge meets all kinds of kids at Static Show

SHOW: FROM 1

"I've judged before at other fairs," she said, "but this is the first time coming back to Chickasaw County to do it.... So yes, I'm excited. I love the fair. It's a big part of who I am today, and I'm excited to see kids who are excited to show me their projects."

For two hours Tuesday night, the 4-H members paraded their projects to a table, introduced themselves to judges like Kalinay and talked about how they came up with their projects, what they did to complete them and what they learned by doing them.

Sure, the goal was to earn a trip to the State Fair. It's the same goal kids will have throughout the week at the Achievement Show that shines the spotlight brightly on the youngsters of Chickasaw County.

Tuesday was just the start of a seven-day event that doesn't end until the annual Achievement Show auction that will be held on Monday morning. In between, there will be horses, cows, pigs, poultry, rabbits, dogs, pets, goats and more.

In addition to the variety of shows that are part of the fair, 4-H and FFA members took part in Thursday night's Family Fun Night that included music by New Hampton's Madison Kolbet.

And they're looking forward to Saturday night's barbecue, awards night and queen crowning.

Saturday's meal is being put on by the Chickasaw Cattlemen's Association and will run from 5 to 7 p.m.

But it all started with the Static Show on Saturday, and while judges like Kalinay are gentle and kind, they also have high expectations, especially from veteran 4-H members.

that they have that degree of difficulty," she said. "4-H is all about growing, and you see so many kids who you know have grown by leaps and bounds over the years."

"For me, the best part is to see the kids who are really excited about their projects."

Yet, she also knew that she was going to see all types on Tuesday, and she did.

The Charles City Main Street Bridge over the Cedar River opened Wednesday afternoon after being closed out of concern over potential flood damage since June 23. A weight limit was posted as no traffic allowed over 28 tons.

Charles City bridge finally reopened to traffic

BY BOB STEENSON

bsteenon@charlescitypress.com

The Main Street bridge over the Cedar River in Charles City is again open to traffic as of Wednesday afternoon.

The city of Charles City posted a notice online stating, "We have received clearance to reopen the Main Street bridge. Per the recommendation of the bridge inspection firm, we will be placing a 28 ton limit on the bridge."

The Charles City Police Department posted a notice at about 2:30 p.m. Wednesday, saying the bridge was open but noting the weight limit – "which means no semis or large heavy trucks rated for over 28T," it said.

The bridge had been closed since June 23, when rising floodwaters covered the entrances to both the Main Street and the Brantingham Street bridges, closing them both. The flooding also caused issues downriver in Nashua, where low-lying neighborhoods and Cedar View Park were affected by Cedar River floodwaters.

The Brantingham Bridge was reopened within several hours as the river level fell, but the Main Street Bridge remained closed out of concern over potential damage from debris in the river that may have hit it, or damage from the rushing water itself, which at the river's crest came within a couple of feet of the top of the arches under the bridge.

The Main Street Bridge remained closed awaiting an inspection, which took place on Monday.

City Administrator Steve Diers said on Tuesday they were waiting for the inspection report, but if the bridge was approved for traffic it would be opened immediately.

Diers was out of the office Wednesday for the rest of the week and unavailable for comment regarding the opening.

Iowa County Recorders Association

County recorders from around the state, including Chickasaw County's Shirley Troyna (hint, she's near the front!) pose for a picture during a recent meeting in which they made a contribution to the Pink Tractor Foundation,

Recorders take a break from continuing ed to fight cancer

Each summer the Iowa County Recorder's Association meets for continuing education in one of the state's six districts, and last month, Okoboji was the meeting destination.

As elected officials, the recorders have a formal certification program which offers learning sessions that broadly impact their professional role in the county.

Courses are focused on leadership and ethics, open meetings and open record laws, communication, human resources and office management, Iowa Code, tech applications and local government and budgeting.

The two-year program will culminate with a graduation ceremony at the Iowa State Association of Counties Annual Conference in August.

This year's summer meeting provided a variety of learning opportunities, as well as long-term planning and team building.

The Iowa County Recorder's Association often refers to itself as "a family" because the relationships formed throughout the state are more than just professional, they are based on genuine caring for the members.

In the last year, cancer has been a focus of additional concern, so as District 3 (made up of 17 northwest Iowa counties) planned this event it was decided to provide an opportunity to do good work beyond the "good deeds" recorders consistently do in their offices via real estate filings.

The Pink Tractor Foundation provided support to members of our association facing cancer battles in recent years and so it was chosen as our focus for philanthropy. All ICRA members, including Chickasaw County Recorder Shirley Troyna, were invited to contribute by purchasing ICRA & PTF pink shirts, making cash donations and bidding in an Iowa State-Iowa silent auction.

Thanks to many generous personal gifts, the Iowa County Recorder's Association will be making a contribution of just over $1,500 to the Pink Tractor Foundation.

Brown resigns his Iowa Senate seat

St. Ansgar farmer recently won close, says he's 'forever grateful' to his constituents

BY BOB STEENSON

bsteenon@charlescitypress.com

Sen. Waylon Brown, who represented Chickasaw County for six years in the Iowa Senate, has announced he is resigning from the Legislature effective Wednesday, July 10.

Brown, from St. Ansgar, had just won the primary election June 4 as the Republican Party's nominee to seek re-election in Iowa Senate District 30, which includes the parts of Floyd, Mitchell, Worth and Cerro Gordo counties.

Before redistricting took place following the 2020 Census, Brown represented what was then District 26, which included all of Chickasaw, Floyd, Worth and Mitchell counties as well as parts of Cerro Gordo and Winneshiek counties.

He did not give a reason for his decision, but commented on accomplishments he said he had been a part of in the Legislature, as well as thanking supporters.

Brown had defeated challenger Doug Campbell of Mason City in the June 4 Republican primary, by a 52.8% to 47.2% margin across District 30, which includes parts of Floyd, Mitchell, Worth and Cerro Gordo counties.

"I will forever be grateful to the people of my district who entrusted me to represent them

"Where Quality Prevails"

Large thunderheads can be seen Monday evening, but for what seems like the first time this spring or summer, Chickasaw County missed out on some thunderstorms.

Agronomist says farmers need to be 'scouting' fields

the guys are happy to be where they're at right now."

Start with the evaporation of a drought that Northeast Iowa endured for more than a year before spring and early summer rains left it in the dust.

The latest USDA Iowa Crop and Condition report that was released on Monday showed that 99 percent of cropland in the Northeast District, which includes Chickasaw and Bremer counties, had either adequate or surplus topsoil and sub-soil moisture. That number is at 100 percent in the North Central District, which includes Butler and Floyd counties.

"If you would have told me on April 1 that we'd be sitting where we're at now, I would have been a little skeptical," Basol said and then added with a laugh, "and yes, you probably would have won the bet with me. I've seen droughts turn around before, but this is about as dramatic a turnaround as I've ever seen."

After experiencing less-than-normal precipitation for 11 of 12 months, Nashua has had four straight months of above-normal rainfall, and through the first nine days of July, the city's reporting station has recorded 3.69 inches of rain, more than two inches more than usually falls during the first third of the month.

All that rain that fell in April, May and June, though, made the crop tough to get into the ground, and while it helped rebuild soil moisture, Basol said that one of the concerns he has is that corn plants will develop strong root systems.

"We want those roots to have to dive a little deeper to get to that water," he said, "and so far, they really haven't had to do that. What you don't want are those storms with high winds late in the season causing problems because the roots aren't deep enough."

Basol also suggested that farmers continue scouting their fields for both diseases and insects.

"We're not hearing a lot, nothing widespread mind you, but we're at an important time to be scouting fields and keeping a sharp eye out for things," he said.

And as much as he wants roots to develop, Basol will also say that farmers don't want the spigot completely turned off.

"I'm a broken record," he said, "because I'm always talking about timely rains. We will still need them. The good news in my mind is that we're entering that part of the growing process where we want to keep the corn plant from stress and we have the moisture in the ground that will help alleviate that stress. I just wouldn't mind seeing the plant have to work at it a little, you know?"

Law enacted by Legislature allows counties to not have compensation boards of supervisors decreased the county attorney's pay increase by 50 percent, then the recommended pay increases for the auditor, recorder, sheriff and treasurer also had to be decreased by 50 percent.

Senate File 2442, though, changed the process.

"You now have 100 percent authority, if you utilize [the Compensation Board], to either accept the recommendation, to lower it or to even raise it now and you can differentiate between the five elected offices," said Laudner, who added the new law was "last-minute add-on" on the last day of the legislative session. "The bottom line is it's giving you more authority to make your own decisions."

Laudner emphasized that he was speaking just as a county attorney in describing the changes to the new law, but later during the meeting, he added what he called his "personal thoughts."

"I don't think it makes a difference as long as someone is doing the homework," he said, referring to the fact that the law requires supervisors to set salaries based on other similar private- and public-sector jobs.

"I don't know that it's a huge benefit [to have the Compensation Board.] If you guys don't want to do the work, have them do the work. The bottom line to me is that you have the ultimate authority ..."

Supervisors leaned toward taking on the work.

"I'm disappointed in the current members," Jake Hackman said, "some of them who stated that we just raised it high so you can cut it in half ... I don't see a purpose for them if the board is the ultimate decision maker."

Supervisor Matt Kuhn said he also was leaning toward not having the Comp Board, at least for the upcoming budget cycle.

"I don't know if the Comp Board is necessarily necessary," Kuhn said. "In the past, myself included, we've just cut it anyway."

Supervisor Travis Suckow said he was in the "same boat," and Board Chairman Scott Cerwinski added that supervisors all do their own research "before we go to the Comp Board meeting or right after the Comp Board meeting anyway."

County Recorder Shirley

Troyna was the one elected official who expressed some concerns over nixing the Comp Board.

"My only fear with this is that the five of you won't each do your own research and come up with your own numbers," Troyna said. "One's going to speak up and the other ones are all going to agree with it.

"Without you each doing your research and coming up with these numbers and speaking to us as elected officials and finding out what we do in our offices, how are you going to come up with your number ... when you don't know what we're actually doing or how much money we take in."

But supervisors unanimously supported Hackman's motion to "take on the responsibilities" of the Compensation Board and dissolve it, although at one point, Kuhn wondered if board members should wait until after this fall's election when three supervisor seats will be decided.

Laudner did point out that board members have the option of appointing a new Compensation Board in the future.

"They can put one in place anytime they want to," Laudner said. "This isn't final for the rest of time."

Brahm and sophomore Navaeh Bloker.

"We got our first two runners on right away," said Stastny-Hall about N-P's first inning. "We had at least three innings with at least two girls on base and we just couldn't get 'em scored."

Riceville accumulated 12 hits off Jensen, who along with Brahn each pitched in the regular season matchup with the Wildcats, which was also played on their home diamond.

Stastny-Hall had this to say about a Riceville team that placed fourth in the North division of the Iowa Star. The Huskies finished sixth in the Top of Iowa East.

"They're young. They're smart. They hit the gaps. They have the same issues that we have with fielding errors and stuff," said Stastny-Hall. "Riceville definitely hit the five and six gap a lot. We even tried adjusting to it, then they would hit right up the middle between second and shortstop."

Stastny-Hall was impressed by the gritty defense behind the plate of her junior catcher Paige Franzen, who blocked pitches in the dirt and kept Riceville from going station to station for stretches of the game. Riceville had zero stolen bases.

"Paige did an awesome job behind the plate," said Stastny-Hall. "Only one runner advanced to second base, otherwise nobody stole on her at all."

Stastny-Hall also saluted two of her outfielders - Bloker, who started in center field and sophomore left fielder Madison Wahl.

"Nevaeh had a big game in centerfield. She caught four pop flies to keep 'em on their bases," said Stastny-Hall. "They didn't tag or anything. That was a big deal."

Wahl got the Husky dugout fired up early on after her assist to Pratt on a putout at third that cut down a runner trying to advance a base.

"We got a girl out trying to push the limits with her," said Stastny-Hall. "That was huge Monday night. That really pumped the girls up even though we were down 2-0."

Jensen gave up six earned runs and struck out two. She walked just one batter.

Pratt led the team in hits (25) and runs (15). Stats aside, it was Pratt's dedication and commitment to the program that Stastny-Hall will probably miss the most along with her skills out on the diamond.

"Jalynn was a big asset to the team. The loss of her glove and bat will hurt next year," said Stastny-Hall.

Bloker was the top hitter on the squad in terms of batting average (.300) and sophomore Kami Hannemann, who played shortstop the majority of the season, was the Huskies' biggest run producer with 20 RBI. Hannemann also sported a .925 fielding percentage. She committed six errors in 80 total chances.

Kristen Lee, a junior, paced the Huskies with a team-leading .462 slugging percentage. She smacked two homers on the year.

It's been another fun season of 'Ionia Ball'

They call it "Ionia Ball" but the fact of the matter is that the annual summer program attracts kids from not just Ionia but also Nashua, Charles City, New Hampton and beyond.

The program is coached by Chad and Heather Hackman, who receive plenty of help from assistants Hayden and Addie Hackman, Caleb Sinnwell and the parents of the players, who are divided up into "older" and "younger" groups. The city of Ionia, meanwhile, benefits the program by allowing the program to use the field and also provides supplies and awards for the once-a-week program that has just three weeks remaining.

BASEBALL: FROM 8

a little bit," said Miller. "He battled through it. Dawson pitched a great game. It just didn't fall our way that day."

Glaser provided Husky fans this summer with plenty of highlights with his arm, glove and bat.

The all-conference standout also caught behind the plate and led the Huskies in batting average during the regular season with a .406 clip. He collected the most hits on the team with 28. Glaser was one of the top arms in the Top of Iowa Conference, as evident by his 89 strikeouts in 60 innings of work.

Snyder was able to neutralize Glaser and senior Tucker Franzen, who were two of the Huskies' biggest sticks. Neither of them were able to muster up hits.

Both were recently pegged on the TIC East first-team all-conference squad, along with second-team selection, sophomore Eli Kalainoff, and honorable-mention pick, senior Wyatt Bouillon. Franzen was second on the team in batting average (.377) during the 23-game regular season.

"We battled really well," said Miller. "We had our chances in the game. We had runners in scoring position in multiple innings, we just couldn't get 'em across. We played clean defensively for the most part."

Even without his best stuff - Glaser gutted it out.

"Dawson threw another great game, even with his thumb bothering him," said Miller. "He didn't have his curveball like he normally would. You need to throw a thumb to be able to spin off a curve ball pretty good."

Dunkerton got on the board first in the opening frame with two runs. The Raiders got RBI from junior Noah Fuelling and senior Rylee Marquart.

N-P (11-13) would tie it in the bottom of the fifth on Bouillon's two-out double that plated two Huskies. That knot-tied the score up at 2-2.

"It was incredibly clutch hitting by Wyatt," said Miller.

Dunkerton would answer right back with the eventual game-winning run in the ensuing top of the sixth. The Raiders had no extra-base hits.

Snyder pitched a complete-game four-hitter and struck out 11. He walked just two.

"He kept us off-balance," said Miller. "He attacked us really well. You tip your cap to them."

Consistency at the plate has been an Achilles' heel for the Huskies this season. The up-and-down nature of the hitting game can be a thorn in the side of squads that swing and miss a lot, as was the case this summer for N-P. The Huskies averaged almost 10 strikeouts at the plate this year during the regular season.

That means bat on ball can win a lot of games on the high school level, even if that contact doesn't find a hole for a hit.

"Offensively, we didn't hit with runners in scoring position like we needed to," said Miller. "It needs to be a consistent thing throughout a game to get runs across."

Matthew Malven, a sophomore, also doubled in the elimination contest. N-P's other hits came from Kalainoff and senior Titus Evans. Kalainoff and Evans each stole two bases and freshman Kolbie Vance swiped one.

Kalainoff led the Huskies in runs scored during the regular season with 24 and was tied with Glaser for the RBI lead with 19. He also slammed a home run this season, as did Malven.

Bouillon worked his way to a team-leading 24 bases on balls.

The Huskies committed one error against Dunkerton.

Dunkerton (9-12) would go on to lose, 11-1, at South Winneshiek on Tuesday in the semifinal round of postseason play.

Season comes to an end for improving Huskies

Rough start costs Nashua-Plainfield in regional opener

By KELLY TERPSTRA

Of the Reporter

A throw to third that hits the mark and a glove that makes a timely tag.

A stop behind the plate that keeps a runner at bay.

Or even just one pitch that hits the strike zone on the outer half that can disrupt a rally and end a scoring threat.

That may seem small or trivial to some teams, but when you're building a softball program back up – they matter quite a bit in the grand scheme of things.

Those plays – although not made enough consistently – were part of the reason the Nashua-Plainfield softball squad improved out on the diamond in 2024.

The Huskies got better as the season progressed this summer and that positive direction moving forward was reflected in N-P's overall record – which was a three-win improvement from last year.

To add more optimism to the mix – the Huskies graduated just one senior this year in Jalynn Pratt. That means N-P will have its entire 2024 roster back – minus one – if those players do indeed decide to go out for the squad in 2025, along with newcomers to the lineup.

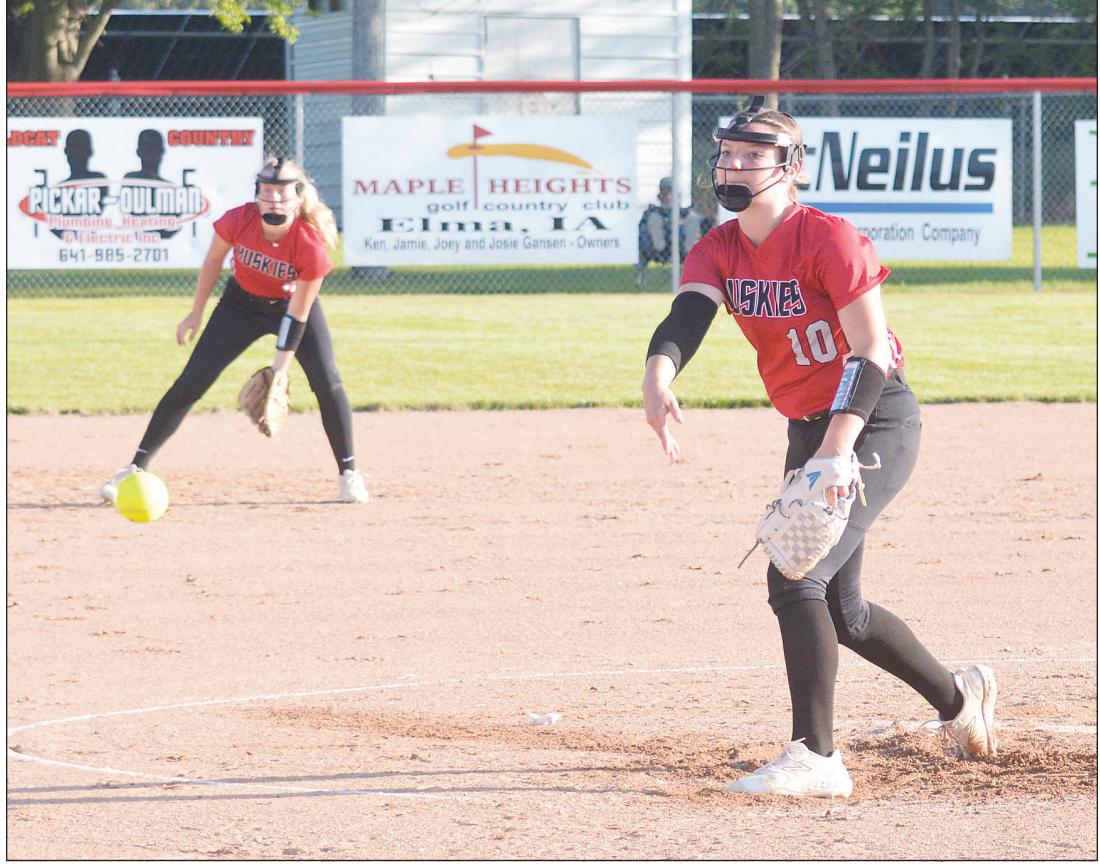

N-P bowed out this summer in a first-round Class 1A regional loss at Riceville on Monday by a score of 8-1. It was the second time in the last three years that the Wildcats have knocked the Huskies out of the first round of the playoffs. Riceville also defeated N-P, 3-1, in those two squad's opening 2022 postseason tilt.

Riceville (13-17) lost to St. Ansgar (21-9) in the quarterfinal round of Class 1A, Region 2 on Wednesday by a mere margin of just 3-2.

The Wildcats defeated N-P, 5-2, near the end of the regular season on June 25.

The rematch saw Riceville jump out on top of N-P early with two runs in the first inning off of eighth-grade Husky starter Callie Jensen.

"We had a rough start. We had to play catch up," said Stastny-Hall.

A big blow came from junior pitcher Lily Fair's bat, which was able to crank out a two-run home run in the third inning to help her team stake claim to a 4-0 lead.

"I will take the heat on that. I called a pitch thinking that she wasn't going to hit it and that's the pitch she crushed the home run on," said Stastny-Hall about the Fair dinger. "Because before that she struck out – she was chasing the high ball."

That game-changing blast gave the Wildcats plenty of cushion as Fair twirled her way to a three-hit complete game. She struck out four and walked two. The only run she surrendered was a Pratt sacrifice fly in the top of the fifth that scored sophomore Hannah Brahn. Fair did walk five and she did hit two batters as well.

N-P (5-24) was able to muster up three hits – one by Pratt in her final game as a Husky,

N-P '9' struggles in season-ending loss

Huskies battle but come up short in loss to Dunkerton in Miller's final game as coach

By KELLY TERPSTRA

Of the Reporter

The harsh reality of the situation was that on Saturday night Nashua-Plainfield's baseball season came to a conclusion.

The Huskies' opponent – Dunkerton – obviously had something to do with that. But in baseball and pretty much sports in general, all sorts of factors come into play on why one team wins and the other loses.

Dunkerton moved on in the Class 1A, District 8 opener with a score of 3-2. The contest was also the last game coached by veteran Husky manager Levi Miller, who stepped down at the end of the season after an impressive nine-season run guiding the Huskies.

"It's never fun when a season ends," said Miller, who took the job at N-P as head coach in 2016. "It was a good group of guys."

Dunkerton senior ace Jacob Snyder outdueled the Husky's junior ace – Dawson Glaser. Glaser, who was battling a thumb injury, was relieved by junior Nic Brase in the seventh after striking out 10. He surrendered seven hits along with just two earned runs. He issued just two free passes.

"Not to make excuses, but he had a cut on his throwing thumb that I think affected him
