County inches toward using TIF

Board of Supervisors move ahead on financing millions for road work, buildings

By BOB FENSKÉ
editor@nhtrib.com

The Chickasaw County Board of Supervisors Tuesday took the first step — albeit a small one — to using TIF funds for major projects ranging from road work to the renovation and addition to the Sheriff's Office to improvements at the Secondary Roads Shop building located on North Mission Avenue just outside of New Hampton to replacing a Conservation Board storage building.

Supervisors voted 4-0 — Steve Breitbach joined the meeting by phone while Matt Kuhn was unable to attend — to direct the county's TIF Committee to move forward on the so-called TIF timeline and begin discussions with cities on consent forms that will need to be signed for projects either within those cities or within a two-mile radius of them.

The action during a special meeting came after supervisors met with members of the TIF Committee and Ahlers Cooney attorney Jason Comisky to discuss the committee's urban renewal plan that would capture millions of dollars in tax-increment financing generated by the recently completed wind farm that was built to the north of New Hampton.

Comisky told board members that "it's a very good plan. It's very well thought out," yet at the same time, he emphasized that "it doesn't lock you into those projects, but at least you have a road map."

City, county are on board with the dam board

Board of Supervisors follows suit with Nashua City Council and appoints two; Conservation Board is still up in the air

By BOB FENSKÉ
editor@nhtrib.com

Chickasaw County now has two representatives on a board as part of an inter-governmental agreement that has been in place for more than 3 1/2 decades.

The question is how long will that agreement between the county, the city of Nashua and the Chickasaw County Conservation Board that was put into place in 1988 remain in effect.

Board members on Monday voted 3-1 — Matt Kuhn cast the only nay vote while Steve Breitbach was unable to attend the meeting — to appoint Scott Cerwinski and Jake Hackman to the board called for in the agreement that's purpose is to promote the dam located in Nashua and the surrounding area.

The action came six days after supervisors held off on appointing members to the board because, as Hackman and fellow Supervisor Travis Suckow put it, the county wanted to see if the city of Nashua would appoint members.

Cerwinski, who represents the Nashua area, said that the city's council appointed Jake Johnson and Samantha Johnson to the dam board about eight hours after supervisors adjourned their meeting on Sept. 3.

"I think we need to appoint two people there," Cerwinski said during Monday's meeting. It sounds like they want to meet and redo the whole agreement. ... For me, I think that's what needs to be done. We need a new agreement with a different direction than it originally had."

Area lawmaker takes the lead in charge against pipeline

By BOB STEENSON
bsteenson@charlescitypress.com

Ten Iowa legislators and other guests gathered on the corner of the Floyd County Medical Center Wednesday afternoon, to announce that petitions had been filed in state and federal courts asking for judicial review of decisions made regarding a carbon dioxide pipeline.

A group of 37 members of the Iowa House and Senate, calling themselves the Republican Legislative Intervenor for Justice (RLIJ), along with the Charles City Area Development Corp. and some individual landowners, filed the suits Tuesday, Sept. 10, in the Iowa District Court for Floyd County and the U.S. District Court for Northern Iowa.

Rep. Charley Thomson, R-Charles City, who led the legislative group, said the location at the Medical Center had been chosen for the press conference because it points out that the hospital and clinic, as well as two nursing homes, are located less than a mile from the proposed Summit Carbon Solutions pipeline that would run across Floyd County.

He said experts his group has consulted have determined that a rupture in the pipeline could send a cloud of CO2 18 feet high all the way to

Mehmen grand champion at State Fair; finalist for Borlaug project

By BOB FENSKÉ
Of the Reporter

Let's put it this way: Jackson Mehmen had a pretty good August.

The Nashua-Plainfield High School freshman claimed a grand championship at last month's Iowa State Fair and then was named a finalist in the Lowell Milken Center for Unsung Heroes Discovery Competition.

"Both of them are really cool," he said during a recent interview. "I love showing and everyone who shows wants to be a grand champion. I mean I love doing it so if I hadn't won, I wouldn't have been like depressed or anything but that was a pretty big moment."

As for his finalist in the Lowell Milken Center competition, that, too, brought a smile to his face.

"Just to be part of a group of 10 projects all around the country, I mean that's way cool," Mehmen said. "I was really

State representative: Pipeline's use of eminent domain is 'unlawful'

the Cedar River.

"The length of exposure would determine how severe the injuries are, but it could be death," he said.

The lawsuits challenge the legality of the decision made in June by the Iowa Utilities Commission (then called the Iowa Utilities Board) to grant Summit Carbon Solutions the right to use the power of eminent domain to force landowners to accept pipeline easements if they won't do so voluntarily.

"We're asking both courts to declare the proposed use of eminent domain as unlawful, in essence invalidating this order," Thomson said, hefting a copy of the 507-page IUC ruling on Summit's request for a pipeline permit.

"This is a group of investors using eminent domain to seize people's property for tax credits that is not a public purpose under any stretch of the imagination, and our lawsuits, I think, will establish that," he said.

Floyd County, along with seven or eight other Iowa counties, also recently agreed to file suit asking for judicial review of the Iowa Utilities Commission's decision on the Summit pipeline, and other groups have also filed suits challenging the decision.

Among those at the press conference was Steve King, former U.S. congressman who once included Floyd County in his district.

King said the Summit proposal to build the pipeline through the Avenue of the Saints Development Park, owned by the Charles City Area Development Corp., was perhaps the best example in the state of eminent domain being used improperly and the best chance of having the IUC decision invalidated by one or both courts.

A 2005 decision by the U.S. Supreme Court in Kelo vs. City of New London allowed the use of eminent domain by private companies if the purpose of the project meets the conditions of public purpose or benefit.

King said the U.S. Supreme Court may use this case to walk that decision back, but in any case there is no such provision in Iowa law.

Tim Fox, CEO of the Area Development Corp, said the CCADC has never come out in opposition to the pipeline project, "but we decidedly oppose the route bisecting the Avenue of the Saints Development Park."

"We fear that this hurts the marketability because site selectors are working to exclude communities, not include communities, and a hazardous liquid pipeline bisecting your parcel does not render it very marketable," he said.

Many of the legislators who spoke raised questions about the safety of the proposed pipeline.

Although carbon dioxide is not flammable or explosive, it is an asphyxiant and can harm or kill living things if the exposure is high enough or long enough.

"The Iowa Utilities Commission's approval of this project is a gross overstep of authority, trampling on the rights of our landowners and putting the safety of Iowans at risk," said Thomson. "This CO2 pipeline is not only unethical but unconstitutional, and we will not stand by while the safety of our citizens is jeopardized."

The Republican legislators' lawsuits argue that the decision was made without proper consideration of constitutional requirements and of the potential severe negative impact the project will have on landowners and communities throughout Iowa. The lawmakers argue that safety concerns, particularly for densely populated areas, have been largely overlooked and require immediate legislative and judicial review.

"We are determined to fight this reckless decision in the courts and in the General Assembly," Thomson said. "This isn't just about stopping one pipeline. It's about safeguarding our communities, our land, and our Constitutional rights from future overreach."

Thomson also said efforts will continue in the Iowa Legislature to strengthen eminent domain requirements and opportunities for review.

The Iowa House has passed a couple of bills that would increase the requirements for the use of eminent domain or that would speed up the process for judicial review of the use of eminent domain, but in each case the bills never reached a vote in the Iowa Senate.

Thomson said with changes in the Iowa Legislature, including among Senate leadership, it may be possible to get a legislative solution to the problem before the issue can be decided in the courts.

surprised, but it's exciting."

And while the State Fair and the Milken competition finalist may seem to be mutually exclusive, there's a connection — both deal with Mehmen's love for agriculture.

"The one thing I know for sure about Jackson," Nashua-Plainfield National History Day advisor Suzy Turner said, "is that if we can find a farming topic, he's all in. That's his passion."

An individual documentary on Norman Borlaug, the Iowan who was considered by many to be the "father of the Green Revolution," that Mehmen completed as a seventh-grader landed him on the finalist list by the Lowell Milken Center for Unsung Heroes.

That project was a finalist at the 2023 state National History Day competition, and Mehmen's 2024 project — an individual website on Hart-Parr tractors — earned him a trip to the national contest this past June.

"It's kind of neat that even though I didn't go to nationals with my Norman Borlaug documentary," he said, "it's now in a national contest. ... I kind of came up with the idea because we live close to the Borlaug center and the more I read about him and researched him, the more I really got into it. I mean he was a guy who came from, like you know, like really a humble start and his family didn't have a lot and he kind of changed the world."

And he's already thinking ahead to the 2025 National History Day competition and is almost sold on doing a website on the "Iowa Cow War," a series of violent disputes over the testing of cows for bovine tuberculosis in 1931.

Like we said, his addicted to agriculture, and when he talked about the State Fair, Mehmen couldn't help but laugh when he was asked to take the reporter through what it takes to show cattle and pigs.

"How much time do you have?"

He loves his animals, let's put it that way, and he shared some of the tricks on how to get cows and pigs ready for the show ring and the joy he has when it comes to going to shows — big or small.

"I think one of the best parts about the State Fair is I got to see a lot of my show friends," he said. "I mean you want to win, but you kind of root for each other, too. I think everyone knows how much you work with your animals so we kind of get it, you know?"

And that hard work paid off for the youngster not once but twice.

On Aug. 8, the Nashua-Plainfield FFA member won the champion award in the live show competition at the FFA Carcass Value Swine Show, and four days later, his cow, Livy, was named the grand champion female during the Limousin Cattle Show.

"When they announced it, I was so happy I almost cried," he said. "I almost couldn't believe it, but the banner they gave me, I guess that kind of proves it, right?"

And yes, showing animals takes a lot of work.

"Hours and hours and hours," he said, "but I like it. I just like working with animals."

Bob Fenske/Reporter

Jackson Mehmen says exploring historical topics in agriculture is one of the draws to being a part of Nashua-Plainfield's National History Day program.

You kind of get a bond with a lot of them."

He was asked if he named all his show animals, and Mehmen couldn't help but laugh.

"Oh yeah, one year we named all of them after characters from [the TV show] 'Friends,' and that was kind of fun," he said, "because I think some of them took after the personality of the characters. Weird, I know, but it's true."

And he's a busy guy outside of the show ring and the National History Day research room.

He also plays football, basketball and golf and is an active member of the FFA.

"I guess one of the things I've learned is time management," he said, "but all of it is fun, too, so it's not like I'm doing something I hate. That's makes it a lot easier, and once one thing is done, it's time to move onto the next thing."

Ahlers Cooney attorney Jason Comisky (left) discusses how the county can use TIF revenue from a recently completed wind farm during a special meeting of the Board of Supervisors Tuesday.

Attorney: Urban-renewal plan isn't 'set in stone'

TIF: FROM 1

Among the renewal projects in the plan are:

- Almost $9.59 million for road projects for work on V18 from the south city limits of Alta Vista to the Chickasaw County line, reconstruction of North Linn and South Linn and two bridge replacements — one on 170th Street and one on B57.
- Up to $750,000 for the replacement of the Conservation Board's storage building located at 2456 Hickory Avenue.
- Up to $1.6 million to undertake improvements and/or construct replacement buildings at the Roads Shop that is located at 1990 Mission Ave.
- And up to $20 million for the renovation of the current Sheriff's Office building and the construction of an adjacent new 24-hour holding facility.

The road projects would be tied to economic development while the three building projects would help remediate blight. Last fall, the county had a blight assessment done on four county buildings — the three in the urban-renewal plan and the courthouse and only the latter was not considered blighted.

The projects in the plan are spread out over years, with the first TIF funds being used for the Conservation Board building in fiscal 2026-27, the road work to begin using TIF funding the year after and the Sheriff's Office not using any TIF money until the 2033-34 building.

"One thing I will say is that this document isn't set in stone," Comisky said. "Even when you approve it, it isn't necessarily set in stone. You can always come back and amend this urban-renewal plan."

Approving the urban-renewal plan, though, will take a while. Comisky said that supervisors will need at least two meetings — at least a month apart — to adopt the plan.

He said the first action the board would need to take is to set the dates of so-called consultation meetings with other taxing entities and a public hearing on the urban-renewal plan.

Comisky said the consultation meetings are usually about one week after the first meeting and that those meetings should be at least 15 days before the date set for the public hearing, i.e., the second meeting.

After the public hearing, supervisors can adopt the urban renewal plan and also hold the first reading of the TIF ordinance adoption. They also could waive the second and third readings, but if they don't, that would extend the process.

He emphasized that even if the county adopts the urban-renewal plan, it won't be "locked into" it.

"This is a planning document," he said. "It says we may use tax increment in the future so we're authorizing it as an urban-renewal project."

"It doesn't mean you absolutely have to do the project. It doesn't mean that you have to issue debt for it. It just means that you now have the general authority to do that in the future."

And he admitted that there's no guarantee the "prices" for projects will remain the same over the course of the plan.

"Everybody's crystal ball in this room is limited, right? We don't know what construction costs will be in 10 years," Comisky said. "We don't know what interest rates are going to be in 10 years. So we're trying to do the best we can with the planning document, but we all have to understand it may need to be amended at some time."

Board members, though, were willing to at least start the process of adopting the urban-renewal plan.

"I think it's there to capture," Hackman said, "to do some of the projects that need to be done and should have been done many years ago. I guess we'll wait and see what the school and the cities say about it, they can't veto it."

And Comisky said moving ahead Tuesday didn't tie the county to the plan.

"That second board meeting, after the public hearing," he said, "that's when you make the decision, [that's] where you decide to move forward."

During Tuesday's meeting, it was discussed having the "first meeting" in early October with the "second meeting" coming sometime in mid-November, but no firm dates were set.

Supervisors may seek bids for rural recycling pickup not have the dam agreement on its board agenda on Sept. 3, but he added that he did inform his board members about the discussion that took place among the supervisors earlier that day.

He said the Conservation Board has two options — place the dam agreement on its October agenda or call a special meeting — but he added that he has questions about being part of the agreement.

"If I move forward and present this to the Conservation Board, what are the plans? What does the city of Nashua want out of the Conservation Board getting into this agreement? ... We're obviously there and if there's anything we can do to help promote or help fund raise or whatever we can do, we're all for it ... but what is the reason for us to be part of this?"

Cerwinski said one reason Nashua would like to redo the agreement is to bring other parties — into a new 28E agreement.

County Attorney David Laudner said that he would like to be a part of the process of coming up with a new agreement, saying it would probably end up on his desk anyway.

"I think sooner rather than later, it would be a good opportunity to bring the other persons you want into the discussion," he said. "Off the cuff, initially, my comment would be I think it might be something to disband and then form a brand-new document with all the new parties entered into it."

Supervisor Matt Kuhn, though, expressed his concerns about having the county attorney "getting drawn into this because if something falls apart or there's an issue or somebody doesn't hold to an agreement in this 28E then you have to defend us. But then is there a conflict of interest if you're helping with all the other parties?"

Kuhn last month made the motion to have the county withdraw from the agreement, but that was voted down 3-2, with only Breitbach supporting him.

In the end, board members voted on a motion by Hackman to appoint himself and Cerwinski to the board, which now leaves only the Conservation Board having to decide if it will stay a part of the 1988 accord and appoint board members.

The dam was part of a relatively brief supervisors meeting as the board met for just 43 minutes on Monday.

Board members passed on taking any action on a 3.3 percent rate increase that Jendro Sanitation/LJP Waste Solutions will implement on July 1, 2025, for the pick up of recycling for rural residents.

"There's no need to approve this because we're months away from budgeting," Hackman said. "My concern is this rate is a little bit higher and maybe we should go out for some bids. ... This strictly ... almost 300 bucks short of $30,000 now. I don't know guys ... you see around other counties they have their drop-off sites, partner with some of the cities and try to cut some costs."

Kuhn agreed.

"I don't think it would hurt to go out and get some quotes," Kuhn said.

Supervisors also acted on several personnel items presented by Chickasaw County EMS Director Joel Knutson, including the hiring of Conrad Rosendahl, the recently hired New Hampton police chief, as a part-time EMT and the position change from EMT to paramedic for Josh Schuchhardt.

Plainfield's Lee wins Waverly Health Center Spotlight on Values award

Five members of the Waverly Health Center (WHC) team, including a Plainfield resident, have been named the July and August Spotlight on Values award winners.

Nominated by co-workers, patients and members of the community, these individuals are examples of WHC's values in action.

Judy Lee of Plainfield, admissions, was recognized for the value of enthusiasm.

Her nominator wrote, "Judy does a great job starting each day with a smile. She is easy to get along with and makes work easier and funnier. She is eager to learn and is always enthusiastic about her job and the people she gets to meet each day."

Other winners included medical-surgery nurse Cori Westergreen of Waverly for the value of compassion, the Women's Clinic's Kris Weber of Cedar Falls for the value of excellence, nutrition services' Chuck Konig of Allison for the value of innovation and clinic billing office's Courtney Buss of Readlyn for the value of integrity.

WHC has adopted six values which include compassion, enthusiasm, excellence, innovation, integrity and leadership.

The Spotlight on Values program recognizes WHC employees, volunteers and physicians for demonstrating these values.

Huskies defense stellar in district win

FOOTBALL: FROM 10

from 2015-2017, was happy to see his team rise to the occasion in big moments versus the Redhawks, which fell to 0-2 with the setback.

"The way the kids fought in the second half going in with the lead was something I'm really excited about," said Sudol.

N-P (2-0, 1-0) is looking to crack the playoffs for the fourth-consecutive year and moving to 4-0 in the first half of an eight-game regular season is obviously critical in achieving that goal. The Huskies host the other "alphabet game" next week during homecoming against AGWSR (Ackley, Geneva, Wellsburg, Steamboat Rock).

That sounds like a spoonful, but the Cougars are beatable.

N-P will be favored in these back-to-back home games, but that's on paper. AGWSR is 1-1 on the year and 1-0 in district play after a 14-13 win over BCLUW. Lake Mills shut out AGWSR, 14-0 in the season opener and the Comets lost to East Marshall by a score of 19-7 in their first game.

The technical term for Sudol's new offense this fall is the flexbone, but the Huskies, like many prep teams nowadays, will run out of numerous formations in an attempt to roll up yardage.

To say Sudol's squad this year is run-heavy would be an understatement.

The Huskies pounded the rock 68 times for a total of 375 yards on the ground in N-P's first road tilt. N-P was once again led by junior star Eli Kalainoff, who has the ability to make defenses miss and offenses feel his wrath when he's not in Sudol's backfield or leaping up to grab TD passes.

Kalainoff, a junior, finished with 235 yards on 30 carries and found the end zone three times. He also came up with 2.5 sacks at his defensive end position. The hard-to-control Husky also had a big hand in the N-P's season-opening 33-14 win over Postville with three TDs as well.

Kalainoff scored the game's first TD from five yards out and then answered the bell yet again after North Tama pulled the contest to 7-6 after Kolt Knaack's 40-yard TD pass to Josh Dostal midway through the second quarter.

Kalainoff leaped up and snared a Devon Blanchard pass in the middle of the end zone with 4:06 to play before half to give N-P a 13-7 lead.

Then he made his presence known again as he sacked Knaack on a key fourth-down pass attempt as the Redhawks were knocking on the door inside the Husky 20-yard-line. Kalainoff jumped all over Knaack as he exited the pocket to force the turnover on downs. That gave the ball back to N-P with around 45 seconds remaining in the third quarter.

"Our kids responded with a huge stop. It was a huge game-changer for us. Our kids fought the whole game. They knew it was a big game and they stepped up to the challenge and did everything we could ask," said Sudol. "We had a perfect game plan on both sides of the ball so it was really something. It was cool to see the kids execute what we wanted to do to move forward with the victory."

On the second play of the fourth quarter, Kalainoff darted through the line and busted his long run toward the left sideline for a 64-yard scamper to paydirt with 11:07 left in the game.

N-P senior tailback Aiden Gelner - who is chasing the all-time career rushing mark at N-P - danced into the end zone from one yard out underneath a minute left in the contest for the game's final score.

Gelner notched 83 yards on 22 carries.

"Gelner got going and Kalainoff just continues to have really good football games. He can't be stopped. He's just breaking tackles," said Sudol. "Our backfield's come together like we thought it would."

Matthew Malven's interception of a Knaack pass was also key with 2:28 left in the third. The Redhawks had a 2nd-and-10 from the N-P 48-yard line before Malven stepped in front of a Redhawk receiver to return the ball 29 yards. A Husky unsportsmanlike penalty on the return brought the ball back to the N-P 45-yard line.

N-P junior Tyler Zimmer led the Huskies in tackles with 7.5 and Kalainoff finished with 5.7.

The Huskies held NT to just 45 yards rushing. The Redhawks did pick off two N-P passes.

Three out of N-P's first four regular season games are at home. That means the remaining four games - three road contests versus No. 5 St. Ansgar, South Winneshiek and Wapsie Valley - and the lone home tilt against North Butler on Oct. 11, will go a long way to determine N-P's fate in 2024.

and 25-20.

CS's Kaci Crum, a 6-2 outside hitter for the Panthers, was a problem all night for the Huskies. She finished with 14 kills and was dominant up front. Another Panther senior - outside hitter Quinn Smith - recorded double-digit kills as well with 12. Paige Prazak, another senior, tabulated eight kills. Those three seniors combined to register 34 of Central Springs' 40 kills.

"This was a tough match. Crum is obviously a huge player up front. We didn't adjust to her and again tips killed us," said Foelske.

Franzen racked up nine kills in the Panthers' match. Eiffler notched five kills. O'Neill and Kirk each had four kills. Mehmen sent down three kills. Hannemann's 21 assists led the Huskies once more and she also was tops on the team in digs (10).

Eiffler struck gold with two aces and Jade Maia Gicquel - a foreign-exchange student from France - was 9-10 serving with an ace.

"At times we looked really good but one mistake would cost us four points. We can't win like this," said Foelske. "Jade had a good serving game. They seemed to have some trouble with her at the service line."

N-P butted heads with No. 4 St. Ansgar at home on Thursday and makes a trek to Osage on Tuesday.

Huskies have 'breakthrough' in Waverly

CROSS COUNTRY: FROM 10

Other N-P runners that made their mark at Waverly as well.

N-P junior Jase Hansen galloped his way to a 24th-place finish in the 11/12 boys race at Waverly in 18:45. That was a seven-second cut from his time of 18:52 at CC, which was good for 16th place.

Hansen came oh so close to qualifying for Fort Dodge last year. He placed 16th at the district meet – one spot and one second away from running at state. His PR is 18:24, which took place at that qualifier in Manly.

Hansen is working to perfect the balancing act that Huck is trying to gauge as well in the first couple weeks of the season.

"With track especially, at the beginning of the season...I'm always kind of starting out too fast," said Hansen. "Sometimes I would kill myself at the end just because I was so tired. I'm definitely trying to get out and not get packed in, but also find my speed right away and not die out at two miles or something like that. You can't have time for that."

Kalainoff's runners that made tremendous improvement from week one to two were freshman Kelly Cerwinski (28:57 to 27:18), seniors Amberley Gerholdt (27:19 to 26:07), Luke Paplow (20:06 to 19:17) and Caleb Sinnwell (21:00 to 20:00), as well as sophomore Carson Mundorf (24:00 to 21:52). Paplow's time was a PR and Mundorf's was a lifetime best.

Mundorf's reduction in time from CC to Waverly was an incredible two-plus minutes.

"Carson had a great race! I don't even think Carson knows what he's capable of. I am hoping that a race like that helps build some confidence and shows him he can run competitively as he gets older and more experienced," said Kalainoff.

One of Kalainoff's top runners – junior Jalissa White, placed 29th in 23:46 at Waverly. She ran 24:16 at CC, which saw her cross the finish line in 16th place.

Kalainoff said every runner on her girls team ran a PR at Waverly – which is a challenging course.

"A large meet like this can be pretty overwhelming. I thought they handled it well and went out and ran great. This was totally a confidence booster as the course is not the easiest course to run," said the N-P head coach.

Kalainoff broke down what it means to run well at the Wartburg Max Course – north of the Knights' football field on the campus of Wartburg College. The weather – like pretty much any of Iowa's four seasons – can be unpredictable to say the least when the meet is run in Bremer County around the second or third meet of a team's scheduled slate. Last year's race was cancelled due to extreme heat.

"The race itself hasn't been a favorite throughout the years. We identified yesterday that it probably wasn't so much the race itself, but rather, every time we run there, the weather has given us not so great experiences. We have run in freezing cold, windy, rainy conditions and the exact opposite of scorching hot. Last night, I think we had a breakthrough and finally had a positive experience there. The kids really capitalized on the beautiful night," said Kalainoff.

Huskies pick up road win in district opener

Nashua-Plainfield uses strong running game and stout defense to roll to 27-6 win over North Tama

By KELLY TERPSTRA
Of the Reporter

Chicken noodle, minestrone or how about vegetable beef?
Either way the Nashua-Plainfield Husky football team is going to get a steady diet of alphabet soup in the next two weeks – you know those letters that are made up of pasta that swim around in your broth, stew or stock.
Take your pick – from A to Z.
And when we're talking about alphabet soup, we're discussing the prep football teams in the Huskies' Class A, District 3 that every pigskin fan loves to pronounce and roll off their tongue.
The first "alphabet game" is tonight

(Friday) at Lloyd Koob Field in Nashua versus BCLUW – otherwise known as the Comets of Beaman, Conrad, Liscomb, Union and Whitten.

Say those school districts that comprise that consolidated school real fast – just kidding.
But this will be serious business for Chase Sudol's Huskies as his seventh-ranked N-P squad – Radio Iowa's latest rating of the Huskies – looks to improve to 3-0 on the young season after a nice 27-6 win last Friday in Traer over North Tama in the district opener.

Huskies are looking to find groove on the court

Nashua-Plainfield falls to Newman in a heartbreaker

By KELLY TERPSTRA
Of the Reporter

So close, but yet so far.
The Nashua-Plainfield volleyball squad was just out of reach in an attempt to snare a victory over the visiting Mason City Newman Knights last week Thursday.

The Knights came up with a key play here and a pivotal point there to pull out the five-setter – 24-26, 20-25, 25-15, 25-19 and 16-14.

The Top of Iowa Conference East Division league match was back-and-forth all evening and saw the Huskies play some of their best volleyball early on to take a commanding 2-0 lead.

"This is one loss I can say hurt. We were very much in control of our own destiny against Newman (3-4, 1-2). We handled them well in games one and two – maybe some of the best volleyball I have seen our team play!" said Husky head coach Mindy Foelske.

No matter how close N-P (1-5, 1-2) came to reeling in a win – there were no moral victories on this night.

"We talked a lot about not being okay with losing. They showed they have the ability to play great volleyball. Now they need to come out and do it every night!" said the N-P coach, in her fourth season of guiding the Huskies.

N-P junior setter Kami Hannemann produced 41 assists on the night versus Newman, which helped lead to kill totals of 12 by Elayan O'Neill, nine apiece by Paige Franzen and Lily Eiffler, as well as eight for Alison Mehmen and seven for Ava Kirk. Hannemann had three kills.

Franzen, a senior, led the team with 28 digs and Eiffler was next in line on the defensive side with 17 digs. Eiffler was 26-27 serving with three aces.

Foelske said tip coverage was a problem that the team needs to work on. The Knights exposed the Huskies in that facet of the game, something Foelske hopes her team improves on in the future up close near the net.

"Tip coverage is where most teams score on us the most and that is what took us out of this match. We have to start being active on the court even when the ball is somewhere else. We need to focus on one point at a time and realize what we are capable of," Foelske added.

N-P traveled to Manly to take on Central Springs (5-2, 3-0) on Tuesday. The Panthers prevailed by scores of 25-14, 25-21

Huskies shine on Max Course

Huck claims title as Nashua-Plainfield puts together solid meet in Waverly

By KELLY TERPSTRA
Of the Reporter

Kadence Huck made a statement on Tuesday in Waverly. It was a straight-forward, determined declaration with her arms and legs that helped produce one of her fastest times this early in running career – cross country speaking of course.

Bottom line – she means business in 2024.

After the Nashua-Plainfield superstar won the prior week's Trent Smith Invitational at Wildwood Park in Charles City on Thursday, Sept. 4, Huck shot out of the gates this week at the Dick Pollitt Go-Hawk Classic.

The result was a resounding first-place finish with a sensational time of 19:19.73 to produce the top clip in the 5K race (3.1 miles) amongst all 208 girl competitors that finished the two separate girls varsity races on the Wartburg Max Course. The two early season meets divide runners into grades – ninth and 10th, as well as junior and seniors – to comprise four different races for the girls and boys.

Huck's fast clip was impressive to say the least and it's one of the reasons Huck will be one to keep a keen eye on this year in Class 1A as she strives for one more top-10 finish at the state meet in Fort Dodge this fall in what has been a legendary career thus far for the Husky multi-sport standout.

Huck's goal is to once again dip below 19:00 – which she's done once in her career. That clip of 18:58, set last year as a junior, is the school record. Huck's other motivation is to improve on her 67th-place state finish in 2023 – an uncharacteristic bump in the road at Fort Dodge – after placing 10th overall as a sophomore.

How will Huck attempt to dip lower with her times as the season progresses? She'll do it with a winning and confident mindset, that's how.

That's one of her goals this year – in addition to cheering on and helping her teammates improve, as well as having some fun along the way. "Individually, I would say just don't be in my head and run fast. I know I can do it. I've done it in practice a lot when there's no pressure," said Huck, now a senior, who won six races last year.

This is the final opportunity for cross country fans and running enthusiasts in general to watch the fleet-footed, once-in-a-generation Husky athlete attempt to make history as she'll take her talents to the collegiate level next year.

What makes Huck special, not only as an individual competitor, but also as a teammate?

Her N-P coach – Jenn Kalainoff – explained.

"Kadence is so calm, prepared and confident. She helps others to just relax and have fun, which is huge!" said Kalainoff. "She doesn't ever appear to be nervous, which sets the vibe for the rest of the team."

Huck – an eight-time state title holder in track and field – ran 20:15 at Charles City. Kalainoff said Huck felt she went out too fast in her first mile at Wildwood and that might not have left her enough gas in the tank to finish out the remaining two miles as fast as she would have wanted.

So she made the proper adjustments on Tuesday and bested second-place Claire Zweibohmer of Riceville (19:23.72) by almost four seconds. The result was a strong middle portion of the race and a better finish toward the tape. Huck beat the second-place Zweibohmer (20:29) at CC by 14 seconds.

"I can always count on her to just go out and do her thing. She does a great job of analyzing her race, talking about what she could do different and going out the next time and executing her plan," Kalainoff added.

Huck is a big part of the Huskies – just from her sheer positive impact on her teammates – but there's plenty of
