Public Health still not sure about Heritage

Board member, staff question if moving department is good idea but supervisors still want to get an estimated cost

By BOB FENSKE
 editor@nhtrib.com

The Chickasaw County Board of Supervisors on Monday moved ahead with getting an estimated cost on moving Public Health and Homecare Services from its current location at the Community Services Building to the Heritage Center.

The action came despite concerns expressed by the department's director, assistant director and Board of Health member.

Board members, though, reached consensus to get an estimate on how much it would cost to move one of the county's biggest departments to the old county home just south of New Hampton.

"We've already paid money, we might as well see what the costs will be," Board Chairman Matt Kuhn said, referring to the fact that the consultant contract the county has already paid for will cover the cost of coming up with an estimate.

Board of Health member Jeremy McGrath said he felt supervisors could have more clearly communicated the reasons for proposing the move.

"As a board member," he said, "I wished someone would have come down and said, 'Hey, this is what we're going to look at doing. We're going to spend $10,000 or whatever it was on this study to do this. What's your guys' thoughts?' That didn't happen."

Also at Monday's meeting were Public Health Director Lisa Welter and her assistant, Ann Knutson, and the latter expressed her opposition to moving the department.

"I don't think it's the right place to put us because there are too many

The lights go on next week at Mikkelson!

Annual Christmas light display to be tested Wednesday and then goes live on Thanksgiving Friday

By BOB FENSKE
 editor@nhtrib.com

The Little Light of Mine holiday display has been brightening the lives of New Hampton residents and visitors since 2017, but for one New Hampton woman who serves on the committee that lights up Mikkelson Park every holiday season, that display helped remove the funk she had experienced for so many years during the Christmas season.

On Dec. 23, 1980, Dixie Zeien's 10-month-old son, Michael, died in a car accident.

"Christmas was honestly pretty blah to me," Zeien said. "It was such a painful reminder every year. I wasn't one of those Christmas people."

And then four years ago, she joined the Little Light of Mine Committee, and after almost 40

HONORING THOSE WHO SERVE

VETERANS DAY PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS THOSE WILLING TO SACRIFICE

By KELLY TERPSTRA
 sports@nhtrib.com

The chill in the air was a clear message from Mother Nature to area residents that congregated outside the Chickasaw County Courthouse late Saturday morning that winter is well on its way.

While there were no sub-freezing temperatures or snowflakes that had fallen to the ground south of that courthouse that was built 93 years ago – a memorial still stood tall and was a stark reminder of why the crowd had gathered to this hallowed location in the first place.

They were there on this late fall day to remember.

So it only makes sense that at 11 a.m. on the 11th day of the 11th month, residents of

New Hampton and surrounding communities honored those that served in the United States Military on Veterans Day.

No matter what military branch – whether in wartime or peacetime – all veterans (no matter the rank) are given their proper and rightfully due distinction for their sacrifice and courage to country.

"Everyone that puts on a uniform is willing to walk that berm," said United States Marine Clark Budweg. "I've known people that were supply mail clerks that never saw combat, but you need everybody. But they were willing to put that uniform on to make the sacrifice. That's what some people don't understand. You're still doing your job – what you're asked to do."

Larsen, Speltz win council seats via write-in votes

By BOB FENSKE
 editor@nhtrib.com

New Hampton's City Council will have one new member when it convenes for the first time in 2024 but she'll be a familiar face.

Former Mayor Deb Larsen was one of two winners in the Nov. 7 election who won without having their names on the ballot.

Larsen, who served as mayor from 2016 to 2019, claimed 54 of the 80 write-in votes for the Ward 1 seat while Ward 3 incumbent Jason Speltz garnered 46 of the 68 write-in votes to earn four-

Sheriff faces quandary when it comes to buying new vehicle

Shawver: Automakers use of ordering 'window' makes it difficult to budget as sheriff tries to 'catch up' his fleet

By BOB FENSKE
 editor@nhtrib.com

The frustration in Chickasaw County Sheriff Ryan Shawver's voice was dang near palatable last week.

The reason: Buying a new law enforcement vehicle these days is akin to completing an obstacle course.

During a Board of Supervisors meeting held last week, Shawver made his pitch for a new vehicle for the Sheriff's Office to be purchased this fiscal year because in large part, Shawver doesn't know when the next opportunity to order a vehicle will materialize.

The sheriff explained that Karl Chevrolet recently let law-enforcement agencies know that an "order window" is opening soon for vehicles, and Shawver wants the Sheriff's Office to get into the queue.

"What I need is one," he said, "what I would like is two."

Board members, though, put the kibosh on ordering two vehicles, and even though they years, she once again experienced the joy of the season thanks to the hundreds of displays and thousands of lights that illuminate the park.

"It just lifts me up to see so many people come together," Zeien said, "to make the park so beautiful. I actually get excited now when the Christmas season is coming because I know for a lot of people, this is really a highlight of the season."

And the lights will go on next week at the park — first, on the night before Thanksgiving for a "test" and then on Thanksgiving Friday, for good, as Little Light of Mine kicks off its annual season that will run through New Year's Eve night.

"Wednesday's just to make sure everything's working," Zeien said, "and if anything needs fixing, we'll get it all straightened out so we're ready to go on Friday. When you have that many lights, trust me, a little test run is a good thing."

On both Friday and Saturday of the Thanksgiving holiday weekend, the Little Light of Mine Committee will be providing horse-drawn wagon rides through the park to see the more than 160 displays that are being put up by the Little Light of Mine Committee and area businesses, organizations and families.

The committee also has a big event planned for Saturday, Dec. 9, when Santa will make his annual trek to Mikkelson to talk with kids and their parents at the bandshell that serves as the cornerstone of the display. That same evening, fireworks will fill the air over the park, which, trust us, is a must-see.

"It's one of our favorite nights because you have all the lights in the park and around [Ring Road] and then you get the fireworks and it's just beautiful," Zeien said. "Really, it makes all the work worth it."

And for those who think those on the Little Light of Mine Committee make just a two-month commitment to New Hampton's biggest light show, well, that's simply not the case.

This year's season actually began as the lights were still burning brightly at Mikkelson Park last December.

That's when committee members scoured area stores for new lights because, as Zeien said with a laugh, "after Christmas is when you get the really good deals."

And each year, once the displays are taken down, the lights are tested one last time and stored away for the following season. Once fall arrives, the committee really gets down to business and begins planning for the "new year."

The positive in 2023 is that Mother Nature has cooperated beautifully — providing plenty of relatively warm days for the committee, businesses, organizations and families to get their displays ready.

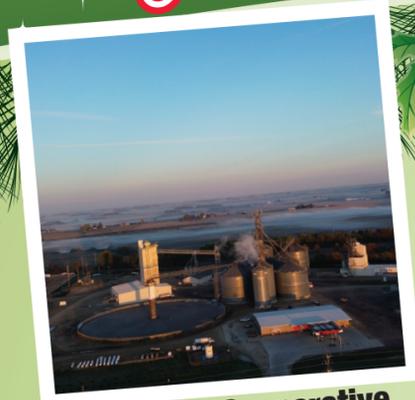

And now, they're almost ready for next week.

"I think I can safely say that I'm like all the committee members," Zeien said, "when I say I can't wait. And we hope people come out and just enjoy what is really just a beautiful month for our community."

Good things come to those who...

BRINGING 'OKLAHOMA' TO NEW HAMPTON

New Hampton High School students Emma Carpenter and Caydence Phillips (left) perform a scene while the cast sings "People Will Say We're in Love" during Saturday's performance of "Oklahoma." The musical that was performed Friday and Saturday at the New Hampton Elementary School Auditorium included 20 cast members, 19 chorus members, four backstage workers and three students manning the lights, microphones and camera was directed by Jill Cantu and Maggie Konecne.

Performing scenes during the musical "Oklahoma" are (from left) Braden Manson, Caydence Phillips, Jarrin Robinson, Ben Schuchhardt and Skyler Bugenhagen, and trust us, the latter's laugh was worth the price of admission!

Sheriff will keep the board updated on new vehicle seemed to agree with moving forward on purchasing one vehicle — either a Tahoe or a Silverado — they were uncertain how the county would be able to pay for it.

Shawver told board members that there "are no cars available; they don't make them anymore," but he also added that if the county does ask Karl Chevrolet to order it a vehicle, the county must purchase it.

"Once we say this is what we need, this is what we are going to order, we have to buy them," he said. "There's no, 'Well, we decided we can't take it on this fiscal year, we're going to give it back.' You can't do that anymore. Before you could [do that]; you can't anymore. It's kind of uncharted territory for us all."

The estimated cost of a Tahoe is $49,355 while a Silverado is $49,322, but Shawver said he was getting those prices off a state website and had yet to get a final price from the dealer.

The sheriff's biggest concern is that if the county passes on this order window, he has no idea when it could possibly order a new vehicle.

"I don't think we're going to see another order window for any type of model for about another year," he said. "So we're already behind due to COVID and supply-chain issues with our vehicles. If we miss this order window, it puts us even farther behind."

Although board members did not approve any motions or resolutions allowing Shawver to put an order in, they did reach a consensus that the sheriff, once he had a hard price, could return to the board room and probably receive the OK to enter the order queue.

"I guess I have no problem with one," Supervisor Scott Cerwinski said "It's just figuring out how we're going to pay for it."

Shawver said he would request that the $12,000 the county received for the sale of two used sheriff's vehicles be returned to his office to help with the purchase of a new vehicle. He also said he would not equip the new vehicle until the next fiscal year begins on July 1, 2024.

But he was unsure if he would have enough money in this year's budget to pay for the cost of the new vehicle.

"Do I think I could find the money if it lands before July 1," he said. "I might be able to have it, but it will be tight. If that's what it takes, that's what it will take, but if I don't, then what do we do?"

Board Chairman Matt Kuhn said that he would be OK with the purchase of a new vehicle, but added that "I think you're going to have to figure out how to rearrange the numbers and make it work."

Shawver said that he would "keep you guys updated on how things come [and] when she needs a hard, fast answer, I'll come back and talk about it, too."

Also during the Nov. 6 meeting, the Board of Supervisors spent almost 25 minutes talking about the possibility of using tax-increment financing (TIF) funds to pay for some or all of the proposed remodeling of the current Sheriff's Office that would include the construction of a 24-hour holding facility to replace the current jail.

County Assessor Ray Armel spoke with board members at length on the possibilities of using TIF funding for the project and also told supervisors they can "spread out" the TIF funds for different projects, including road ones.

The question remains on when the county will actually see the funds that will be generated by the Chickasaw County Wind Farm that is being constructed north of New Hampton. If the turbines don't go online until next year, that would mean the county would begin receiving the funds a year later.

No decisions were made on the TIF funds; instead, the discussion was to provide information for the supervisors to make decisions at a later date.

Veterans Day speaker: 'Service never ends'

VETERANS DAY: FROM 1

His father, John Budweg, fought in World War II and earned a Purple Heart and Bronze Star – two of the most distinguished decorations a military veteran can be bestowed with. He has uncles that served in the Korean and Vietnam wars. His late older brother, Gregory, was a U.S. Naval pilot.

Budweg, a 1974 New Hampton High School grad and member of the American Legion Fae Stine Post No. 38, enlisted in the USMC three years out of high school in 1977. He fought in the Gulf War in the early 90s over in Iraq. He said he has been a part of New Hampton's Veterans program for around 12 years. He wanted to thank not only veterans – but loved ones, friends and family members that kept him in their thoughts and prayers while he was overseas or away from home while serving his country.

"To me it's the honor and respect for people that did serve. We always forget about the family. Without that family supporting you...when we get letters when we were over in Iraq – I got letters from home. It makes the job a little easier," Budweg added.

Veterans Day – also known as Armistice Day – officially became a federal holiday in 1938. The landmark day in 1918 signified the peace agreement with Germany to halt

World War I.

Veterans Day differs from Memorial Day – which takes place in late in May and honors those that died in service, particularly those that perished in battle or died because of their wounds while a member of the U.S. Military.

Saturday's guest speaker was Scott Smith, an Army veteran and pastor at Peace United Church of Christ in Fredericksburg.

He spoke of a combat mission twenty years ago in 2003 when he was traveling with a combat unit in the Kurdish region of Erbil, Iraq. He and his fellow comrades were on a mission to dig up corpses and investigate torture that occurred in years previous under the Iraqi leadership of Saddam Hussein.

"We were on our way to Erbil to exhume some mass graves – to document the process of finding broken bodies and attaching names to them and building a case for international court," said Smith. "We were on a dusty, hot miserable ride. My friends and I were there – the team that I was a part of, that I had come to know. Some were my mentors, some were my advisors, some were in an odd way, my chaplain."

His group didn't reach their destination as all hell broke loose within the blink of an eye. Smith was lucky to survive as his convoy was hit by an IED (improvised explosive device) along the road and was ambushed as a firefight ensued. Three of Smith's team were killed; five badly wounded (including Smith). His team would never be able to work together again.

"We got a rude awakening. The first vehicle exploded so it was lifted off the ground. The vehicle that I was in laid on its side. The column had stopped. That was when the fire had opened up around us," said Smith. "I kind of stumbled out in shock, looked over to that first vehicle and realized three of my friends were on fire. They would not make it through the day. Five of my other friends were laying on the ground. The smell is something I'll never forget. Everything was chaos."

Smith said he was thankful for the support of the U.S. Marines, who would assist in "cleaning up" the area where the hostile event took place. A-10 Thunderbolts from the U.S. Air Force rained down on the enemy to extinguish the remaining threat.

Smith snapped back into the present day to address his cold – yet captivated audience.

"My story joins with others and it's not always easy. I have to be careful because I ramble about it. Those of us that are gathered here today – some know the pain of friends who are no longer with us. They are with us no more because they gave all. They left it on the field in a way that no sport teams or politicians can ever fully grasp. That's a high price to live with," said Smith.

Smith said later on in the day he would join a Zoom chat to reminisce and remember – and share memories about friends and comrades – some still here, some gone.

"So as we gather today, those who came home we gather to remember their sacrifice. Those of us that remain stand resolved to carry on in their memory. There aren't as many as there once were," said Smith. "We are the ones that carry on – remembering that day. That's the thing about veterans in so many ways – service never ends. That's the thing that we gather here to remember."

Jesus never changes

We may not like change, but as Hebrews says, the Son will always be a constant

The leaves are falling and the seasons are changing!

Change; what a word.

Human nature does not like change.

We like stability. Change is scary. Change is unknown.

It's a lot easier to stay with the status quo, to stay with what we know. That's true for everyone, of all ages.

The problem, of course, is that our world is constantly changing.

I don't know if there's a good way to measure how fast the world is changing, but it sure feels like it's changing faster than ever before, doesn't it?

We humans like consistency. Just look at the fact that oldies radio exists.

No matter what generation you grew up in, you probably still listen to the music you grew up with.

As Christians, we worship an eternal God, a God who is outside of time.

Hebrews 13:8 states that "Jesus Christ is the same yesterday and today and forever."

How amazing!!!

That's something we can anchor our lives to. No matter what happens, no matter what changes in the world or in your life, God is there for you and God is still faithful.

It's comforting to know that in the midst of a changing world and changing culture, the

A couple of great Thanksgiving ideas — a great meal and lending a hand by ringing the bell!

A week from today we will celebrate Thanksgiving, and one of the best meals around will be found at Trinity Lutheran Church, which will hold its annual Community Meal from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the church's fellowship hall. Trust us, the food — from the turkey to the ham to the mashed potatoes to the corn to the beans to ... well you get the idea. A freewill donation will be taken and carry-out meals are also available, and all proceeds will go the Chickasaw County Food Pantry.

While we're on the subject of Thanksgiving and gratitude, we know we are fortunate to live in a community where so many people are willing to step up and help out those less fortunate to them. If you're one of those people, the Salvation Army's Chickasaw County unit could use your help as a bell ringer. The Christmas Kettle Campaign began on Wednesday and Salvation Army officials say if they can find enough bell ringers, the campaign will run from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. each day at the New Hampton Fareway store. Those interested are encouraged to call Kris Markham at 641-229-0113 to sign up for some shifts.

Let the peace of Christ rule in your hearts, since as members of one body you were called to peace. And be thankful. Colossians 3:15

Elizabeth 'Joan' Hemann, 93

Elizabeth "Joan" Hemann, age 93 of Osage, died peacefully Friday, Nov. 10, 2023, at Faith Lutheran Home in Osage with her nine living children at her side.

Mass of Christian Burial was held on Tuesday, Nov. 14, 2023, at 10:30 a.m. at Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Osage with the Rev. Raymond Burkle officiating.

The burial was at Sacred Heart Cemetery.

Visitation was held from 4 to 6 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 13, 2023, at Sacred Heart Church in Osage with a Rosary at 3:45 p.m.

Joan was born on March 30, 1930, to Leo and Pauline (Werner) Michels in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. She was quite proud of her 3-30-30 birthday throughout her life.

At the age of 1, the family moved back to one of the Werner family farms near Meyer. Joan attended grade school at Sacred Heart Catholic School in Meyer and Visitation High School in Stacyville, graduating in 1947.

She was united in marriage to John E. Hemann on June 2, 1948, at Sacred Heart Church in Meyer. They made their home near Osage, farming together for 25 years at that location before purchasing their own farm near Riceville.

Joan loved being outdoors and working on their farm where they lived for 30 years before purchasing a home in Osage in 2003. Shortly after settling in their home in Osage, she had to say goodbye to her husband, John, who lost his battle with cancer in 2003.

Joan fought a brave fight with her own cancer and after multiple surgeries over 11 years moved to the Faith Home Assisted Living in April 2018. In March 2022, she became a resident of the Faith Lutheran Nursing Home.

Joan loved being a "mom of 10" ... most of the time. She proclaimed this on her license plate, but would tell her children she collected angels because she didn't have any. She worked tirelessly as a wife of a farmer and mother of 10. Hopefully heaven can use even more perfection. She would love to get back to cooking a great meal or making another quilt.

Joan was a phenomenal cook, from cheesy potatoes to any kind of pie you ask for. (She had lots of practice.) God only knows how many souls she fed in her 93 years.

She loved music. She played piano and sang in the church choir. Joan and John could clear the floor dancing the polka, and they attended every musical and athletic event that involved their children. They also attended many professionally staged musicals. She played cards with the best, and her artistic side was evident in the gorgeous quilts she made for her children and grandchildren.

John and Joan continued to work together after retirement, creating woodworking projects and traveling together to Europe and throughout the U.S. But it was her faith that truly defined Joan: family rosaries, Sunday and often daily Mass, and daily prayer. She was a Eucharistic minister both in church and to the homebound for many years. She was also active in the rosary society and religious education program at Immaculate Conception while in Riceville and the Sacred Heart Guild, Study Club, and Covenant Choir after returning to Osage.

Joan is survived by her children, Marilyn (Dave) Osterhaus of Earlville, Tom (Mary) of Streater, Illinois, Don (Cheryl) of Kirkwood, Missouri, Karen (Tom) Thome of Osage, Alan (Linda) of Riceville, Barb of Des Moines, Jean of Des Moines, Mike (Tracee) of Lawrenceville, Georgia, and Brian of Fox Point, Wisconsin; two sisters, Rose Bock of Clive, Iowa, Jean Brandt of Apple Valley, Minnesota; brother and sister-in-law, Kenneth and Ann Hemann; sisters-in-law Sister Kenneth Hemann, Beatrice Hemann, Angie Werner, and Theresa Theis; 23 grandchildren; 37 great-grandchildren; and two great-great-grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her parents; her husband, John E. Hemann; her precious, faithful son, John (Teddy); son-in-law, Steve Gulick (Barb); brothers, Leo and Robert Michels; sisters, Ann Marsolek and Germaine Michels; brothers-in-law, Tom Marsolek, Dale Bock, Ray, Cletus, Robert, and Arthur Hemann, Herb Werner and George Theis; sisters-in-law, Bette and Irene Michels, Kate, Noraine and Darlene Hemann.

Robert 'Bob' Hill, 94

Bob Hill

Robert "Bob" Hill, age 94 of Viroqua, Wisconsin, and formerly of New Hampton, died Wednesday, Nov. 8, 2023, at Vernon Memorial Hospital in Viroqua.

Funeral service will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, Dec. 8, 2023, at Hugeback-Johnson Funeral Home & Crematory in New Hampton, with the Rev. James Goernd presiding.

Interment will follow at St. Mary's Catholic Cemetery in New Hampton.

Friends may greet the family an hour before the service on Friday at the funeral home.

Online condolences for the Hill family may be left at www.hugebackfuneralhome.com.

Bob was born the son of William and Eva (Holmes) Hill on Dec. 11, 1928.

Robert graduated from New Hampton High School and went on to work for his parents' trucking company.

He married Eleanor "Ellie" Marie Hill on Oct. 7, 1950, and they shared 70 years together before her passing on May 22, 2021.

Robert was called into service during the Korean Conflict, where he served in the U. S.

in Alta Vista and were blessed with seven wonderful children.

Monica and Virgil made their first home south of Alta Vista, where they lived without the modern convenience of running water. But Monica's hard work and determination transformed this humble start into a warm and loving home. In 1968, the family moved into Alta Vista, where Monica nurtured a large garden, canned, cooked, baked and cared for her family. Her remarkable baking skills became well known, particularly her homemade bread, cinnamon rolls, pies, and noodles. Monica's Christmas candy, made with love for family and friends, was a cherished annual treat.

Monica was also known for her vibrant spirit and zest for life. She enjoyed sewing, quilting, square dancing, playing cards, embarking on wagon trips and spending time with her family and friends.

She looked forward to the arrival of the daily newspaper and another crossword puzzle to solve — and yes, she completed them with a pen. A devoted fan of Jeopardy, she made sure to tune in every day at 4 p.m., and her family and friends quickly learned to respect the guarded time slot.

Monica's faith played a central role in her life. A devoted Catholic, she prayed the Rosary regularly and attended Mass faithfully until her mobility kept her from doing so. Her faith-filled life was a testament to her deep spiritual convictions and served as an encouragement to others.

Monica is survived by her children, Darlene Winter of Bethany, Missouri, Dennis (Colleen) Marvin of Alta Vista, Raymond (Dorothy) Marvin of Ankeny, Beverly (Michael) Spangler of Lakeville, Minnesota, Paula (Jimmy) Baker of Charles City, and Bryan (Ann Bettsworth) Marvin of Charles City; son-in-law, James Alverson of Brunswick, Missouri; numerous grandchildren and great-grandchildren; and sisters-in-law, Coletta Geerts of New Hampton, Delores Welch of Kohler, Wisconsin, and Mary Knuston of Elma.

She was preceded in death by her parents; husband, Virgil in 2013; daughter, Carol Alverson; brothers, Paul (Helen) Geerts, Louis (Katherine) Geerts, Andrew (Monica) Geerts, Elmer (Joann) Geerts and Daniel Geerts; and sisters, Ruth (Everest) Kruth and Mabel Geerts.

Monica will be remembered as a woman of great strength, resilience, and love. She was a beacon of faith, a thoughtful friend, and a selfless mother. While her physical presence will be deeply missed, her spirit and the memories she created will continue to live on in the hearts of all who knew and loved her.

its treasurer for many years as well many other committees at the church.

During his spare time, Harlan enjoyed woodworking, fishing, especially at Lake Pepin in Minnesota, playing golf and playing cards, particularly "65."

Harlan is survived by sons, H. James (Pat) of San Diego, John (Peggy) of Minneapolis, and Kevin (Joe) of Kansas City, Missouri; grandchildren, Alisa Pose, Sarah (Aaron) Bleiweiss, Christine (Rick) Korecky, Michelle (James) Anderson and Matthew Pose; great-grandchildren, Ava Bleiweiss, Teddy Anderson, William Korecky and Amaya Bleiweiss; brother, Robert (Sally) Pose of West Des Moines, as well as many nieces, nephews, other relatives and friends.

If so desired, memorials may be directed to Trinity Lutheran Church or donor's choice.

He was preceded in death by his wife of 74 1/2 years, Betty; his parents; and a brother, Walter "Bud" Pose; and a sister, Janette Dato.

The family would like to thank the staff at Kensington Place, New Hampton Nursing & Rehab, and St. Croix Hospice for all their care for Harlan. A special note of gratitude to Jane Kraft and Bev Jerdee for their friendship and assistance shown to Harlan over the past years.

appointments in Rochester, Minnesota.

Robert and Ellie moved to Viroqua in 2012, and he helped at Bethel Home on the Birchwood Board.

He was a proud veteran and was involved in the American Legion, where he served in the honor guard.

His favorite pastime was anything that involved water, especially boating or skiing.

Above all, nothing ranked higher in his life than his family, and the pride and joy of that group was his four daughters.

Robert is survived by his daughters, Christine Radcliffe, Mary Jo "JD" (Gary) Deber, Jean (Jim) Cox, and Margy (Benjamin) Burton; eight grandchildren, Rob Radcliffe, Jenni (Jason) Fields, Brad Deber, Trina (TJ) Shutters, Brandon Cox, Lane (PJ) Carl, Brittany Burton, and Kateri Burton; nine great-grandchildren, Ben, Max, Lynnea, Ford, Joseph, Aden, Brooklynn, Christian, and Nico; and a sister, Lois (Larry) Straw.

In addition to his parents and his wife, Ellie, Robert was preceded in death by his son-in-law, Joseph Radcliffe.

people who walk to our clinics, who walk to WIC and stroll their kids in," Knutson said. "I know it's for the whole county, but the people who live outside of town are going to drive anyway, but we have a lot of people that don't. And them [state legislators] talking about regionalizing us, it would be a waste of money."

McGrath said that with the number of potential projects on the county docket, he questioned the need for the move.

"To me, we're trying to spend money before we got it," he said. "As a taxpayer, I don't know if I like that idea."

Supervisor Jacob Hackman, though, said he felt the county needed to consider moving Public Health — pointing out it would give the department more space and give Public Health access to a backup generator that is located at the former county home. He also said that if Public Health moves, the building that currently houses the county attorney and the Emergency Management Agency on New Hampton's south side could be sold.

Fellow Supervisor Travis Suckow also believes that Public Health would "fit in" with the other county agencies and non-profit offices that have taken up residence in the Heritage during the past year.

"I'm going to say this flat out," Suckow said. "I think all them offices that are down there already, they all kind of work together. It would be kind of like a one stop."

Among the other projects that the county is considering is adding living quarters to the Chickasaw County EMS building in New Hampton and paying the construction costs to extend city of New Hampton water lines to the Heritage, which is not within city limits.

During the more than 20 minutes of discussion, board members not only looked over the plans the county would submit to get an estimate, but they also discussed where the county's Emergency Operations Center would be located if Public Health moves to the Heritage.

"EOC is one of those things, [during the] COVID pandemic, it worked great having it in public health, but in a natural disaster, it's going to work better having it in Jeff's area," McGrath said, referring to EMA Director Jeff Bernatz.

Welter also pointed out that if the county needs to do what she called a "mass clinic," like it did during the pandemic, the Heritage wouldn't be as convenient for her staff if that clinic was held at the Chickasaw Event Center, which is located just across the street from the Community Services Building.

"That worked well because we just walked across the parking lot," she said, "but we're running back and forth across town."

Still, only one supervisor appeared willing to hit the brakes on moving Public Health.

"I'm not in favor," Steve Breitbach said. "I don't think it's the right thing to do this at this time, but that's just my opinion."

But as Kuhn stated, getting an estimate on a cost to move Public Health won't cost the county any more than it already has spent so the board moved ahead.

Board members also voted 5-0 on Monday to seek bids on the water project at the Heritage despite the fact that the New Hampton City Council last week did not back off from having the county use a bigger line than county officials say they need.

The county said it would pay for a six-inch line for a project that would cost around $213,500, but city officials said they would proceed with the project only if the county agreed to pay for an eight-inch line and an auto-flusher.

Kuhn said Monday morning that the two items would cost the county somewhere between $20,000 and $22,000.

However, the Board of Supervisors members decided that they will call for bids on the project. That doesn't necessarily mean city water will be going to the Heritage, because the county can reserve the right to reject the bids.

It's a week to celebrate America's educators

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following was written by Kristie Brincks and Nikki Vossberg, the co-presidents this year for the New Hampton Education Association, which represents certified staff at New Hampton Community Schools.

American Education Week is always celebrated the week prior to the week of Thanksgiving. This year it is celebrated November 13-17, 2023. American Education Week's theme, Together for Safe, Just & Equitable Schools highlights the importance of bringing together educators, parents, students and communities in a unified effort to build great public schools.

The National Education Association spotlights the importance of providing every child in America with a quality public education from preschool through college, and the need for everyone to do his or her part in making public schools great. The Association calls upon America to provide students with quality schools so that they can grow, prosper, and achieve in the 21st century.

Today's teachers do more than teach basic skills. They nurture and inspire children despite obstacles. They help students learn essential skills not always measured in testing, such as critical thinking, conflict resolution, cooperation, and problem solving, which helps students throughout life.

Monday was for honoring the school board members and their dedication to our schools.

Tuesday was set aside to recognize administrators and the vital role they play in our students' education.

Wednesday marked the observance of Education Support Professional Day — a time for saluting our public school education support professionals (ESPs) and the contributions they make to education.

Today (Thursday) is the day to pay special tribute to the teachers who work endlessly to meet student needs.

And the week comes to a close on Friday, which is designated as Substitute Educators Day. These employees are called in to temporarily replace regularly employed teachers or education support professionals, such as classroom aides.

Also on Friday, Student Day is celebrated with special recognition given to the students for their hard work.

The interaction between children, parents and all of these individuals is vital to the continued success of public education. Everyone's work is something to celebrate.

Parents are always encouraged to take part in their child's education. Please contact your child's teacher if you would like to visit.

Thank you for taking time to read this essay. We, along with our colleagues, are proud to make a difference in the lives of the students we teach.

Former Charles City man found guilty in murder of New Hampton resident

By BOB STEENSON
bsteenson@charlescitypress.com

A former Charles City resident who was charged with first-degree murder and abuse of a corpse over an apparent theft of illegal drugs, was found guilty on both charges in Howard County District Court last week.

Sayvonne Eugene Jordan, age 27, was living in Elma when he was arrested in January this year, but he has listed his address as Charles City and Waterloo previously, and was being held on unrelated charges in Floyd County Jail when he was arrested for the Howard County murder.

Authorities arrested Jordan

after saying they had found evidence of the remains of a human body in a burn barrel behind Jordan's home during a search of his residence in November 2022.

The remains were sent to the Iowa State Medical Examiner's Office, and the Howard County Sheriff's Office said the remains were determined to be that of Jonathan Esparza, age 30, a New Hampton resident who had last been seen in October 2022.

Monty Platz, an Iowa assistant attorney general helping Howard County with the prosecution, presented evidence that he said showed Jordan was Esparza's drug dealer, and that Esparza had gone to Jordan's house and stolen four to five pounds of methamphetamine with a street value of $20,000 to $25,000.

Jordan accused Esparza of the theft and warned him of dire consequences if the drugs were not returned.

Testimony showed that Esparza said he was going to Jordan's house on Oct. 20, 2022, and that was the last time Esparza was seen.

The case went to the jury last Wednesday, and jurors deliberated for about three hours before returning verdicts of guilty to the charge of first degree murder, a Class A felony, and guilty to the charge of abuse of a corpse, a Class C felony.

District Court Judge Linda Parish set sentencing for Dec. 18 at 1 p.m. in Howard County District Court in Cresco.

Conviction of first degree murder in Iowa has a mandatory sentence of life in prison without the possibility of parole.

At the time of his arrest on the murder charge, Jordan was being held in Floyd County Jail on unrelated charges involving parole violations and a drug possession charge.

Do Your Investments Match Your Goals?

As you go through life, you'll have various financial goals — and to achieve them, you'll need to invest. But just recognizing the need to invest is not as useful as matching specific types of accounts or investments with specific goals. How can you make these connections?

Let's look at some common goals and how they could possibly be met with appropriate accounts and investments:

- Saving for a down payment on a house — When you're saving for a down payment, you want a certain amount of money available at a certain time — so, for this goal, you won't want to take too much risk. Consequently, you might consider investing in certificates of deposit (CDs), which will pay you regular interest payments and return your principal when the CDs mature. CDs are issued in a range of maturities, from one month to 10 years. Other vehicles you might consider are money market accounts or other cash equivalents.

- Saving for a child's education — If you have children, and you'd like to help them pay for some form of higher education, you may want to consider a 529 education savings plan. Any earnings growth in a 529 plan is federally tax free, provided the withdrawals are used for qualified education expenses, and you may also receive state tax benefits. A 529 plan can be used for college, approved trade school programs, student loan repayments and some K-12 costs. And if the child you've named as a beneficiary chooses not to continue their education, and doesn't need the money in a 529 plan, you can generally switch beneficiaries to another immediate family member.

- Saving for retirement — This is the one goal that will remain consistent throughout your working years — after all, you could spend two or even three decades in retirement, so you'll need to accumulate as many financial resources as you can to pay for those years. Fortunately, you likely have access to several good retirement-savings vehicles. If you work for a business, you might have a 401(k) plan, which offers you the chance to put away money on a tax-deferred basis. (If you have a Roth option in your 401(k), your withdrawals can be tax free, although, unlike a traditional 401(k), your contributions won't lower your taxable income.) If you work for a public school or a nonprofit organization, you may be able to participate in a 403(b) plan, which is quite similar to a 401(k), and the same is true if you work for a state or local government, where you might have a 457(b) plan. And even if you invest in any of these plans, you can probably also contribute to an IRA, which gives you another chance to invest on a tax-deferred basis (or tax-free basis, if you're eligible for a Roth IRA). Try to take full advantage of whatever retirement plans are available to you.

Here's one final point to keep in mind: While some investments and accounts are appropriate for certain goals, they may not necessarily be suitable for your individual situation — so keep all your options in mind and take the steps that are right for you.

Turkey Valley posts winning mark despite brutal schedule

ALL-DISTRICT: FROM 16

He also came up with 52 tackles in the secondary.

“He worked in the weight room to be stronger and it showed on defense and his confidence on the field,” said Scott.

J.D. Kruse proved he’s going to be a treat to watch in his final two years as a Trojan as he was one of the most exciting sophomores in 8-Man on both sides of the ball. He was Logan Busta’s main weapon through the air and led TV in interceptions with six. That tied him for the fifth-best total in all of 8-Man. He came up with two of those picks in the regular season finale at Riceville, which helped TV lock up a playoff spot. Kruse was the team leader in receiving yards (321 yards, 13 catches) and also was tops in the team with six receiving scores. He averaged almost 25 yards a catch.

“J.D. moved to offensive end from running back and moved to our invert from defensive end,” Scott said about Kruse’s position switch.

Logan Busta broke out in a big way under center in his first year as varsity starting quarterback at Turkey Valley. He tossed 13 touchdowns with only two interceptions. He tallied 637 yards passing and also rushed for 159 yards to go along with four scores on the ground. His quarterback rating was an impressive 127.7.

“He made several big plays late in the season to keep drives going,” said Scott.

Hunter Kruse was TV’s center and he was a run stopper for the Trojans with 41 tackles.

Kriener has a very bright future as he started several games for TV, going both ways. He was able to come up with 7.5 tackles.

Those aforementioned TV standouts on the gridiron also excelled in the classroom as Schmitt, Burke Busta, Nieman, J.D. Kruse, Logan Busta and Hunter Kruse managed to secure a spot on the all-district academic team due to their hard work away from the playing field.

Scott also had kind words for senior Braylen Byrne, who made a position switch that helped the Trojans immensely this fall.

Byrne battled through injuries, but pushed through and contributed his talent up front on the line to help lead TV to the postseason for the third consecutive year.

“Braylen had played end every year before this year, but he made the choice to move to guard to make the team better,” Scott said.

TV managed a 5-4 overall record with a schedule that was one of the most difficult in its class.

That record included a 4-2 mark in arguably the toughest district in 8-Man. TV played a ranked Clarksville squad tough early on, but ended up succumbing to the talented Indians in the first round of the playoffs by a score of 68-26. Clarksville also beat TV in the regular season, 62-22.

wanted it, I had to go get it. It wasn't going to get handed to me,” said Cahoy.

Geerts said the talent pool to select from this year in Class 3A was substantial to pin down all-state squads. That made it difficult to determine who would be one of the eight first-teamers — which were comprised by all but one player that competed in last week’s state tournament in Coralville a few weeks ago.

“Marissa had a tremendous career at NHHS. I am on the selection committee and it is tough — 3A is tough. It took us two hours to figure out four teams. I was happy with the second team for her,” said Geerts.

New Hampton came tantalizing close to returning to the state tourney this year for the first time since 2018. The Chickasaws engineered a remarkable 2023 campaign, which included a 31-6 record. NH was stopped short of a state berth by perennial-power Dubuque Wahlert in the regional finals.

“Making history with back-to-back conference season and tournament titles, was just as amazing as a state title in my eyes. There’s no one else in Chickasaw history who can claim this title!” exclaimed Cahoy.

Cahoy was a big reason why the Chickasaws produced one of the best seasons in program history.

“Marissa has worked hard putting countless hours into volleyball. She has achieved several milestones, including working herself into a six-rotation player. She has built great leadership throughout the years,” said Geerts.

Cahoy recorded her 1,000th kill toward the tail end of the season. She led the Chickasaws in digs (260) and aces (44). Cahoy racked up 318 kills her senior year at NHHS.

Cahoy gave a shout out to those that mattered the most in her illustrious career.

“This year was easily the best year yet. Being able to play with my seniors was all I could have asked for,” said Cahoy. “If it wasn’t for our entire team putting in the time, I would not have been able to accomplish what I did, nor would we have accomplished what we did. Success creds go to my entire team and coaches.”

Cahoy recently competed in the prestigious IGCA Senior All-Star Classic in Johnson this past Saturday. There were four teams — Bulldogs, Panthers, Cyclones and Hawkeyes. Cahoy played on the Bulldog squad coached by Jackie Clubb — Clear Creek-Amana’s head coach.

“She also was our first athlete to be selected to the Senior All-Star team. She was one of 32 seniors who were selected across all five classes. The selection was made by position, so she is in the top eight middle hitters in the state who were nominated,” said Geerts.

Cahoy was also thankful for the backing she received from Chickasaw fans.

“I will never forget the Chickasaw support we received at our regional matches. It was such a great feeling knowing they were there for us,” said Cahoy.

NEWS BITS FROM OUR PAST COMPILED BY TERRI JOSEPHSON

Week of Nov. 12

1948 (75 years ago)

• Jeanne Marie Schilling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward N. Schilling of New Hampton has been appointed to the staff for the 1949 Old Gold student yearbook at the Iowa State Teachers College in Cedar Falls. Miss Schilling, a freshman, is also a member of the College Eye, student newspaper, the Foreign Language Club, and the Newman Club, Catholic young people's organization.

• On Sale at Ferkin's Super Market:

Pure Ground Beef, 49 cents per Lb.; Fresh Oysters, Pint, 69 cents; Pork Chops, 59 cents per Lb.; Head Lettuce, 19 cents; Rooster Coffee, 3 Lb. bag, $1.15; Grapefruit, 10 for 39 cents; Oranges, 2 Dozen, 59 cents; Carnation Milk, Tall Can, 2 for 29 cents and Fresh Creamery Butter, 64 cents per Lb.

1973 (50 years ago)

• Downtown New Hampton won't be taking on its customary Holiday Season glitter this year. A Chamber of Commerce spokesman said the overhead and curbside decorations in the downtown area and along Linn Avenue would be put up again, but they will not be illuminated, in line with the federal and state energy crisis recommendations.

It was also announced the Chamber plans to forego its annually sponsored residential outside lighting contest, and recommends ornamental lighting be curtailed in line with the nation-wide drive to curtail the use of energy.

• A Lawler business which dates back 35 years, closed Sunday and its owner, B.J. "Ben" Nulty is beginning a long deserved retirement. Nulty's Grocery, located in Lawler's main intersection, has been operated by Nulty since he purchased the business in 1938 from J.E. Landon. And other than discontinuing the soda fountain, the store interior has changed very little in those 35 years.

A native of the Lawler area, Nulty had farmed before going into the grocery business. And now, with the store closed and the stock sold to Jerry Meyer, Nulty is planning just to relax in his retirement.

1998 (25 years ago)

• There will once again be an annual community Thanksgiving dinner on Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 26, at 12 noon at the New Hampton Community Center. Dinner will consist of turkey, dressing, cranberry sauce, potatoes, gravy, rolls and pumpkin pie.

The dinner at the community center began several years ago and it not intended just for those who cannot afford a meal, it is for everyone. There is no charge for the meal, only a voluntary contribution.

• There is a familiar sight in the area, Jim and Julie Eckenrod, who farm south of New Hampton, have run out of bin room and are storing their corn on the ground. The pile contains approximately 25,000 bushels of the current crop. Checking with Farmer's Cooperative, they have two piles of corn at the Nashua plant and one pile in New Hampton, even though they had expanded their facilities. The crop is huge this year but farmers are still storing a large share of last year's crop.

2013 (10 years ago)

• Seven days after the last vote was cast, Nashua finally had a winner for its City Council two-year term. No one filed candidate papers for the unexpired term that was created by a combination of factors. On Election Day, both Cody Bilharz and Bob Mehman received 23 write-in votes for the two-year term. Under Iowa law, if a tie occurs, the winner will be drawn by lot by the canvassing board, which was the Chickasaw County Board of Supervisors.

On Tuesday morning, two papers with the names were placed in a hat. Supervisor Tim Zoll drew Mehman's name. The term will begin on Jan. 1.

• It was a tough ending to a brilliant season for the Chickasaw football team. With just two full-time starters on offense and five on defense, New Hampton was picked to finish anywhere between third and fifth in Class 2A, District 4. But the Chickasaws ran the table in the regular season, ending it with a convincing win over Union, then upsetting Waukon, which was ranked No. 1 in the state. New Hampton then rolled to playoff wins over Center Point-Urbana and Cascade to set up the rematch with Waukon.

The Chickasaws lost to Waukon 36-0 in the Class 2A quarterfinal state playoff game and ended the season 11-1.

2018 (5 years ago)

• Participants in the "Most Valuable Beard" contest are clean shaven and ready to "grow for a cause." They are taking part in a fundraiser during "no-shave November" to help Mercy Medical Center-New Hampton's campaign to bring a 3D mammography unit to the hospital. The hospital announced the start of its "Detect It, Treat It, Defeat It" campaign. First Citizens Bank's Denise Webster organized the "MVB" program.

• There were nine Chickasaws who earned all-class 2A, District 3 first-team honors.

New Hampton's first-team players included offensive lineman Noah Fenske, running back Tristan Sweitzer, tight end Tanner Lane, defensive lineman Dillon Roberson, linebackers Keegan Kane and Carter Ferrie, defensive back Mason Cleveland, kicker Austin Hemann and "utility" player Evan Rosonke. Fenske was also named the district's lineman of the year.

Farmers care about Iowa's water quality

Everyone wants clean-tasting water.

Rural and urban citizens share the responsibility in protecting Iowa's water supply. Here are some guidelines we can all follow in our homes:

Storm water runoff

Iowa receives 34 inches of rain a year on average. Rain or snow runoff can carry sediments and contaminants into surface or groundwater.

Cleanwater Iowa encourages all Iowans to take steps to better manage the rain that falls on their property by focusing on preventing runoff and promoting infiltration.

Pet waste

Pets outnumber children 4 to 1 in America. Many municipalities encourage their residents to remove and dispose of pet waste away from the water supply.

Improper disposal of pet waste raises the risk of contamination from parasites and bacteria.

Cleaning products

For the products we use to clean our home, the Iowa Department of Natural Resources (DNR) says to follow label directions for proper use, storage and disposal.

Do not pour hazardous chemicals into storm sewers, as it impacts drinking water quality.

Vehicle washing

On average, 38 gallons of water are used per vehicle at the car wash, according to WashMyCar.org.

The DNR says if you wash your car at home, it's better to do it on your front lawn than driveway to avoid runoff. But it says using a car wash is an even better option for the environment, as that water is properly treated.

Lawn and garden products

Did you know Iowa is the only state completely within the tallgrass prairie formation? Because of its rich soil and yearly rainfall, gardeners enjoy planting a wide variety of plants. The DNR says to minimize fertilizer use and don't overwater your lawn.

Most lawns need about 1 inch of water per week, so only water enough to make up for the lack of rainfall.

Together we can make a difference when it comes to making sure that Iowans have clean and safe water always at their disposal

Corn & Soybean

India, the quiet giant, offers opportunity for Iowa soy

By KRISS NELSON
Iowa Soybean Association

Earlier this year, India surpassed China as the world's most populous country, reaching more than 1.4 billion people. And the country is only showing signs of growth. China's population, meanwhile, is declining.

"China is in significant demographic decline, which they will not be coming out of anytime soon," says Frank Kelly, founder and managing partner of Fulcrum Macro Advisors. By the year 2100, China's population could be as small as 500 million.

Although China will remain a critical market for U.S. exports, including soy, Kelly believes little attention has been paid to the "quiet giant" of the globe, India.

Iowa Soybean Association (ISA) President-elect Brent Swart thinks market diversification when he hears about growth in a country, especially one that's not a significant soybean buyer.

According to Trade Data Monitor, India imported more than 160,000 metric tons of soy products (primarily soybean oil) from the U.S. in 2022. China meanwhile, was the U.S.'s largest export destination, importing nearly 30 million tons of soy products (primarily whole soybeans) from the U.S.

"It's exciting to be able to diversify our exports by having the potential to bring our product into a developing country like India," says Swart, who grows soybeans and corn near Spencer in Clay County.

A reliable soy supplier
India is the world's largest vegetable oil importer — with 75% of its sunflower seed oil coming from Ukraine. Sourcing a majority of their oil from a country engaged in war is risky, Kelly notes.

"I don't know what India's appetite is for soybeans, but going to where the market is safe and secure, like the United States, you would think, is going to be a huge factor moving forward," says Kelly.

The U.S. has credibility in being a reliable supplier in recent years, says Mac Marshall, vice president of market intelligence for the United Soybean Board.

"During the 2021-22 marketing year, when there were disruptions to the global supply of vegetable oils, India turned to the United States for a couple of large spot orders of soybean oil," says Marshall. "When other supplies became less available, the U.S. became a reliable and critical customer."

When soybean meal became less available to India in 2021, the U.S. again stepped up with available shipments.

"When you combine this reliability with the potential of the market from an animal productivity standpoint, there are opportunities," Marshall notes.

Growing protein markets
More people to feed means more demand for protein, Swart notes. "That presents a lot of opportunities for us as soybean farmers," he says.

How much demand for soy? It depends on the growth in various markets, including the animal sector and its need for soy-based feed.

"Anytime we talk about markets where there is population growth and economic potential, we talk about increased protein consumption and what that means for soy, which is a critical piece for making animal protein," says Marshall.

India is one of the largest shrimp producers, and has a rapidly expanding aquaculture industry.

"The aquaculture industry is a growing sector that is going to demand increasing amounts of soybean meal in the years to come for many reasons," says Marshall. "Not only will they be seeking a high protein, high-quality soybean meal, but fish meal is perpetually getting harder to source, so soybean meal plays an important role in that aquaculture space."

Soybean meal could also find its place in the terrestrial animal market. Although there are cultural limitations to India's protein consumption, poultry is increasingly becoming a part of the diet. Still below the world poultry consumption per capita, India's poultry consumption has increased by nearly 40% in the last decade.

"These markets take time to develop, but the metrics around the trajectory we see on poultry consumption are encouraging in the future," says Marshall.

A quarter of the world's dairy cows are in India. Although the country's dairy growers face challenges in efficiency, and their milk production pales in comparison to the United States, the inclusion of soybeans in dairy rations could heighten demand for U.S. soy. Research funded by the soybean checkoff is looking at the use of full-fat, high oleic soybeans in dairy rations and the potential to improve milk production.

"Here is a value-added channel we have for high oleic soybeans, and a market with a key trading partner that has underproduction of milk on a per-animal basis," Marshall says. "There could be an opportunity there."

Market headwinds
Kirk Leeds, chief executive officer for ISA, isn't as optimistic about the India market. He's seen the poverty while on a trade mission to India. He's aware of the challenges as they relate to food security, consumer perceptions of food and feed production technologies, and the restrictions in place as they relate to trade.

"I wish I could be more optimistic about India, but it is not going to be a large market anytime soon," says Leeds, who has worked with and for soybean farmers at ISA for more than 30 years. "However, that doesn't mean we shouldn't work to seize opportunities to export U.S. soybeans to India when they arise. They are in desperate need of increasing the protein in their diets."

In September 2023, India, the largest world exporter of rice, began restricting rice exports to tame domestic prices.

"The people of India are worried about their agriculture and having to feed themselves. They are hoarding," says Kelly, the founder at Fulcrum, the political and regulatory risk advisory firm in Washington, D.C. "A lot of this goes to the Ukraine War with the Black Sea Grain Initiative being broken by Russians actively attacking Ukraine grain shipments."

Work continues in India and globally in sharing the attributes of using genetically modified technologies in food and feed production, Marshall says.

ISA Senior Director of Market Development Grant Kimberley shares Leeds' sentiment on India.

"There may be small windows of exports, but in order for U.S. soy sales to grow in India, the country must continue to relax their regulations and trade barriers, which could happen if they experience more food shortages," says Kimberley, adding he is more optimistic about trade opportunities in other areas of South Asia including Bangladesh, Sri Lanka and Pakistan.

"As more customers experience the attributes of U.S. soy meal, the hope is other markets will look more to the U.S. as a critical provider in the years to come," Marshall says.

Is progress being made?
India is working on reducing trade restrictions and developing deeper relationships with the United States, Australia, Europe and Japan.

"There have been more free market agreements, more sales and building tremendous relationships between the United States and India," says Kelly. Although India faces challenges to its infrastructure and markets, the country is rapidly evolving with the development of a large middle class, Kelly says.

With the potential of increased availability of U.S. soybean meal, now is the time to look at more global markets, including India.

"There is potential for economic growth on the heels of a very large population in India," says Marshall. "As we think about the increasing

Opportunities for U.S. soy in India

AQUACULTURE

In the world of aquaculture, India is one of the top five largest producers of feed. While U.S. soy is currently not used in making aquafeed, the opportunities are endless. USSEC has consistently worked on capacity-building and knowledge sharing through events like regional animal production courses, In-Pond Raceway System workshops, on-site and in-classroom training, and more.

FEED INDUSTRY

In 2021, Indian poultry farmers were at a crossroads where they needed to feed the birds, but the feed cost was too high. The demand for feed outpaced local production. Soybean meal prices rallied to nearly $1,203 per metric ton at the benchmark location of Indore. The poultry, shrimp and feed milling industry, especially in the south, were compelled to petition the government for relief. Their petition pleas were answered with India allowing the importation of genetically modified soybean (GM) meal on August 24, 2021, for the first time in its history. This was a significant milestone for U.S. soy, and India imported around 800,000 metric tons of GM soybean meal, allowing new market access to U.S. soy.

EDIBLE OIL

Whether it's frying samosas or cooking dosas, food is an important part of Indian culture. Hence, it is no surprise that India is the second largest consumer and largest vegetable oil importer globally. Edible oil is also the sixth most significant import in India. It is estimated that by 2026, India's need for edible oil will be 26-27 million metric tons (mmt). While India historically has imported soybean oil from Argentina and Brazil, in 2022, the droughts in South America led the Indians to turn to U.S. soy. India imported a record 180,000 metric tons of U.S. soybean oil.

demand for soy meal from the poultry and aquaculture space, there could be a great opportunity for customers in India to enjoy U.S. origin soy meal."

Here's to stress-free 2024 for our farmers

YIELDS: FROM 15

Sobolik also said farming practices have changed over the years in that fields have better internal drainage and plants have better rooting capability. He pointed out that area growers took advantage of an earlier planting window this spring, which gave corn and soybeans a fighting chance to battle the drought.

"The earlier maturities, I think, helped carry this year's crop," he said. "Guys are getting planted earlier when they can, helping pollination, and even though we kept saying it, it turned out they didn't need the last rainfall because for a lot of guys, it never came."

Sobolik has been around farming for decades, and he remembers droughts like those that occurred in 1988 and 2012, and he said if anyone doubts genetics, he has a rebuttal.

"I talked with one farmer who took 12 bushels of corn an acre out of a field during a drought years ago," he said. "This year, he was in the 170s. That's mind-blowing to see how far we've come."

IF THERE WAS a positive to the drought, at least for farmers, it was the fact that drying costs this past fall were minimal.

"There was a lot of corn that did not get dried at all," Sobolik said. "The guys who took their corn to the ethanol plant, they could take it with 18 or 19 percent and they'd take it."

For many area growers, though, it was a frustrating, worrisome growing season, especially when they saw their neighbors get rainfall and their fields didn't get a drop.

"Around New Hampton, especially east of New Hampton, was pretty good," Sobolik said, "but then you get over by Nashua, and it was like someone forgot to turn the tap on. ... It was true this year. It might rain here and a half-mile away, there would be nothing."

According to the National Weather Service's La Crosse, Wisconsin, office, the reporting station at New Hampton has recorded 26.56 inches of rain in 2023 while Nashua has seen just 19.62 inches of precipitation this year, which is just 55 percent of the normal rainfall the city receives through the first 13 days of November.

Either way, though, late fall and early spring rains are important as the U.S. Drought Monitor's latest report shows that all of Chickasaw, Howard, Fayette and Bremer counties are still experiencing "extreme drought" conditions.

"We're definitely depleted, I don't think anyone's going to disagree with that," Sobolik said. "I do think more moisture late this fall and early next spring is going to be critical."

And rain is better than snow, Sobolik said.

"I'm not saying a snowy winter doesn't help a little but once the ground freezes, most of the moisture runs off and doesn't soak into the ground."

But the Five Star agronomist is also quick to point out that things can change in a hurry as he hearkened back to the severe drought that affected the area throughout 2012.

"And then 2013 came and we had one of the wettest springs we've ever had and were scrambling to get fields planted," he said. "It can change on a dime, and every single farmer will tell you that."

He paused for a moment and chuckled before turning serious again.

"You know, I think after this year, Mother Nature owes us a stress-free 2024," he said.

"All in all we had a decent 2023, but man, it was nerve-wracking the whole way through, that much is for sure."

Iowa farm facts

Farming in Iowa is a family affair – and very diversified, or different.

Farmers raise many different kinds of crops and animals on farms in Iowa. More than 85 percent of Iowa's land is farmed.

Take a drive around the state and you'll see their handiwork out every window. Fields of corn, soybeans, and alfalfa wave in the wind.

The barns and buildings you see dotting the countryside are used to care for animals including cattle, hogs, turkeys, sheep, dairy cows, meat goats, and poultry.

Here are some interesting facts about farming in Iowa:

- 35.7 million: Acres of land in Iowa
- 30,622,731: Acres farmed in Iowa
- 26,256,347: Acres devoted to cropland in Iowa
- 1,294,425: Acres of pastureland in Iowa
- 88,637: Number of farms in Iowa
- 345 acres: Average farm size

Iowa's has ranked No. 1 in the United States in producing these crops and farm products:

- Soybean production
- Corn production
- Pork production
- Egg production

And did you know that one acre is about the size of a football field. Can you imagine 30 million football fields, all being used to grow crops and raise animals?

OVERCOMING A CHALLENGING SEASON

DESPITE PROLONGED EXTREME DROUGHT, AREA FARMERS BRING IN DECENT CORN, SOYBEAN YIELDS

BY BOB FENSKE
editor@nhtrib.com

Bob Sobolik will be the first to admit that as reports of corn and soybean yields came into his office at Five Star Cooperative this fall, he was surprised.

In a good way, too.

"I would definitely say it was better than expected, in some places, way better," said Sobolik, an agronomist at the New Hampton-based farmer-owned cooperative that has 18 locations in 14 counties throughout northern Iowa. "The way things looked like in late August and early September, farmers were worried and they had reasons to be nervous." But now that the harvest is virtually complete, those fretting farmers can take a deep sigh of relief.

Sure, 2023 wasn't one of those bin-busting, record years, but all in all, considering the drought that plagued farmers the entire growing season, it turned out to be a solid year for most of the men and women who make their living in the myriad of corn and soybean fields.

Sobolik estimated that the average yields in the area were between the "upper 40s and low 50s" for soybeans and the "upper 190s to low 200s" for corn.

Considering those same fields endured the "Drought of 2023," those are numbers that farmers could live with this fall.

"I think with a cooler, earlier start to the planting season

Despite the drought (below) that has afflicted Iowa for much of 2023, farmers (above) were still able to bring in a decent crop of corn and soybeans this year.

and the dryer, earlier start to the growing season," Sobolik said, "that was a key. ... The crop started well this year, the plants were able to establish deep roots and really tap into that subsurface moisture. And it was able to hang in there a lot longer."

For sure, there were pockets that suffered, especially fields with lighter, sandier soils, but all in all, 2023 wasn't the nightmare that some growers feared during a summer when the skies were mostly blue and little, if any rain, fell.

AGRONOMISTS LIKE Sobolik and Terry Basol, who works for ISU Extension and is based at the Northeast Iowa Research Farm near Nashua, say the differences between this drought and past ones are many.

"The genetics that we have today," Basol said earlier this fall, "are absolutely amazing. The seeds we're putting into the ground can withstand a lot more than the ones we planted when I was a kid or even 10, 15 years ago."

NH/TV boys wrestling coach 'not a fan' of weight class changes

From 106 to 138, nothing changes, but Paulus says he was hoping there wouldn't be quite the spread for wrestling's 'bigger weights'

By BOB FENSKE
editor@nhtrib.com

One thing is for sure when it comes to New Hampton/Turkey Valley wrestling: Braden McShane, who placed third at the Class 2A state tournament a year ago, is not going back to Des Moines as a 220-pounder this winter. That's because the weight no longer exists when it comes to high school wrestling; in fact, once you get past 138, all the weight divisions in wrestling are changing.

"They do it every 10 years or so, and really, to me, it causes more hiccups than it's worth," NH/TV coach Matt Paulus said Sunday, the day before his Chickasaws' boys team held their first practice of the 2023-24 season. "Granted, there's not a lot that I can do about it so it is what it is."

The National Federation of State High School Associations (NFHS)

announced the new weight classes this past spring and gave states three options to use for the 2023-24 season. One has 12 weight classes, another has 13 while the third has 14.

Iowa kept the 14 weight classes it has been using for decades, and the new weights, at least at the beginning, look very familiar as the six-weight classes between 106 and 138 remain the same. But the eight remaining weight classes, save for the 285-pound limit for heavyweights, are different from what wrestling fans are used to seeing and include weight classes at 144, 150, 157, 165, 175, 190 and 215.

Paulus said the national federation uses a variety of demographic data to come up with the weight classes, but he questioned the fact that the "bigger weights" are so spread out.

"You get to 165, and you're going 175, 190, 215, those are big jumps," he said, "I was hoping we'd get some of the classes to shift up a bit because we got a decent number of big kids. It would have been nice to get more of them in the lineup."

The Chickasaws open the season on Tuesday, Nov. 28, when they host South Winneshiek, Central Elkader and Clear Lake at Turkey Valley.

"We're excited to get over there and let our Turkey Valley kids wrestle at their own school for a meet," Paulus said.

Chickasaws' Cahoy all-state again

New Hampton standout is named to coaches' Class 3A second team

By KELLY TERPSTRA

Marissa Cahoy will be the first one to tell you she didn't know what kind of volleyball player she would become when she was playing the sport back in middle school.

Then she got a phone call and an athletic undertaking she was playing just for fun turned into serious business.

Cahoy, with the help of her New Hampton coaches and teammates, was named to the all-state squad for the third-consecutive season to put a cap to a stellar career for one of the most talented Chickasaws to ever put on a volleyball uniform.

Cahoy earned a second-team Class 3A all-state distinction via the postseason awards that were recently handed out by the Iowa Girls Coaches Association.

New Hampton senior Marissa Cahoy finds the hole in the Waverly-Shell Rock defense to come up with a kill during a Northeast Iowa Conference match this season.

Cahoy clearly recalls a lightbulb moment around five years ago that set her on a path toward volleyball greatness.

"In middle school, I didn't know what I was capable of. I remember not being sure if it was 'my thing.' Around that same time, I remember going to a UNI volleyball camp with all of my (now senior) teammates. It was more for fun at that age, but to also get better if it happened," said Cahoy. "About a week after that camp, I had a club coach out of Cedar Falls reaching out to me. I had never heard of the coach or the club so I asked around. It turned out in the volleyball world, Six Pack Volleyball Club was an opportunity you don't turn down. ...and that's where the love started."

Cahoy — a six-foot, six-rotation middle/outside hitter who helped New Hampton secure back-to-back Northeast Iowa Conference regular season and postseason titles — gave a ton of credit to those that helped her along her journey to be the best she could possibly be.

"Dedication, commitment and great coaches, teammates/friends who help push you and keep you in check are 100 percent key in being successful, along with supportive parents!" said Cahoy. "I've been fortunate enough to have great players standing with me on every court I've played on and my parents and siblings are always there to celebrate the wins and pick me up from the losses."

Playing volleyball 10 months out of the year sure didn't hurt Cahoy's chances to mold herself into a jumping jack near the net that was tough to stop. She was selected to the third team all-state squad her junior year and was named honorable-mention all-state her sophomore year. Cahoy has been named all-NE-IC all four years she played varsity for head coach Jess Geerts.

"Being chosen for any all-state team is a tremendous honor. I remember my sophomore year being chosen for the honorable-mention all-state team and I was happy, but I wanted more. I knew it wouldn't come easy so I kept pushing myself more every year. If I

Trojans cap season with eight named to all-district teams

Turkey Valley's Schmitt, Busta lead way by being named to district's top squad

By KELLY TERPSTRA

The Turkey Valley Trojans had just five seniors on its roster this fall.

Four out of those five were awarded with all-district distinction — one of the key reasons Mark Scott's football squad qualified for the playoffs yet again in 2023.

Trojan seniors Oliver Schmitt and Burke Busta were awarded with a spot on the 8-Man District 3 first team — while seniors Russell Nieman and Caleb Kurtenbach played their way on to the second team.

Rounding out the second team selections for TV were sophomores Logan Busta and J.D. Kruse.

Sophomore Hunter Kruse and freshman Jordan Kriener were tabbed for the honorable mention team.

Schmitt once again demonstrated he's one of the best 8-man players in the state of Iowa on both sides of the ball as he led 8-Man at one point near the end of the season in all-purpose yards (2,001) at his running back position. But it was Schmitt's talent and tenacity at linebacker that placed on the first team defensive unit in his district.

He racked up 82 tackles and six sacks in his final year as a Trojan. He also came up with two fumbles recoveries and an interception.

Schmitt was the ultimate playmaker on offense and special teams for TV as he rushed for 1,124 yards and scored a whopping 18 touchdowns on the ground for Scott's offensive unit. Schmitt caught 16 passes for 197 yards and hauled in five receiving scores. He also passed for 164 yards and two touchdowns.

Schmitt was fourth overall in kickoff return yards (532) in 8-Man play and returned punts for 138 yards, with an almost 20-yard-per-return average. He was TV's kicker and punter as well.

"Oliver was a great leader for the team. He worked hard to be the best football player he could be," said Scott.

Burke Busta was a go-to weapon on offense for TV at running back and was placed on the first team at his linebacker slot.

He had a nose for the ball as he recorded 72.5 tackles and recorded one sack. He rushed for 423 yards and scored six touchdowns on the ground.

Busta was also a factor in the receiving department as he caught 10 balls for 158 yards and a score.

"Burke did a great job of helping the many underclassmen we played better players," Scott added.

Nieman pulled double-duty this fall, as he also competed on the all-cross country team at a high level as well.

Nieman was a fierce competitor for the Trojans as he registered 42 tackles, three sacks and one fumble recovery at his defensive end position. He was also a valuable lineman up front for Scott that helped lead TV's run game and protect Busta at quarterback.

"Russell was our pulling guard, often switching sides to be where the team needed him to be for us to be better," said Scott.

Scott said Kurtenbach was perhaps the most improved player in the senior class. He reeled in 11 passes for 185 yards and five scores.
